

SCHOOL FIGHT
IN DIST. NO. 67

PATRONS DIVIDED ON WHO SHALL TEACH.

VIOLENCE BEEN THREATENED.

Superintendent Pinckney Will Try For a Compromise. Petition Has Been Signed Asking For Teacher's Resignation.

U. G. Brown and T. N. Southard of Ansley are in the city today trying to find some means of settling a fight over the school in district No. 67. Mrs. Ray Jones, who taught the school last year, was hired again this year by Director S. C. Thompson and Treasurer Lewis Kolbanek. Moderator U. G. Brown objected to hiring her and refused to sign the contract.

A petition asking the school board not to hire her was then circulated and twenty-two people in the district signed it. A part of these, so the friends of Mrs. Jones claim, were not school patrons. About this time Director S. C. Thompson resigned and moved to Sumner. Kulhanek and Brown, the two remaining members of the board appointed T. N. Southard to fill to vacancy. Southard joined with Brown and wanted to hire another teacher but the contract had been signed by the Director and Treasurer thus making Mrs. Jones legally entitled to teach the school.

Mrs. Jones has taught the school now for about a month despite the efforts of Brown and Southard to secure a change in teachers. About nine pupils have been attending the school and the parents of about twenty-nine other children of school age refuse to allow their children to attend. Under ordinary circumstances perhaps fifteen of these twenty-nine would attend.

Brown and Southard have made two previous trips to Broken Bow to get Superintendent Pinckney to interfere in the fight and settle it, but the County Superintendent says that there is nothing that he can do. They base their objection to her on the ground that she does not keep order in the school and Pinckney advised them to go to her and lay down a reasonable set of rules for the government of the school and then if she refused to enforce these laws it would constitute a legal cause for dismissal. Brown and Southard say that they went up to the school house last Tuesday to take up some supplies and to discuss with her the question of some rules for the maintenance of order. When school closed, instead of taking up the matter with them, Mrs. Jones went home and left them. On another occasion they claim that their efforts to get a hearing were unsuccessful and they notified her to quit the school.

Mrs. Jones' friends say that she taught a good school last year and that the opposition to her now is due to personal motives. J. B. Jones, since Brown and Southard notified her to quit the school, called Southard out of his house and threatened him personal violence unless he allowed his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ray Jones, to go ahead with the school unmolested and he has also notified Brown that he must be more careful.

Superintendent Pinckney has suggested a compromise, which was agreeable to Brown and Southard, and he will meet Mrs. Jones, the teacher, in Ansley tomorrow and try and get her to agree to the compromise.

Traveling men for Taft.

One of the many traveling men who visit Broken Bow in talking over the political situation with the editor said that he did not see how Nebraska could go for Bryan or how he could possibly be elected president. He has been all over the state and he said that he found four-fifths of the business men were for Taft, many of them being Democrats who were afraid to risk a change at this time.

Almost a Blaze.

Friday afternoon the straw and trash in Ira Glaze's barn yard on the north side caught fire from sparks from a passing train and for a few moments it looked as though his barn would go up in smoke, but willing hands and the fire company soon had it out. There was a strong south wind blowing and had the barn caught fire there would have been no saving it and possibly several more buildings in that section of the city.

You will not have another chance to get a piano or $10 for a guess again soon so why not take advantage of this one. You are nothing out if you loose and a great deal to the good if you win. A guess is good up to Saturday October 17. Write for Guess card and envelope to H. A. Watts, Broken Bow, Nebr.
