IS A FREAK OF NATURE.

Peculiar Fossil Which Was Found In a Limestone Bed.

A remarkable freak of nature and a rare find from a geologist's point of view came to light on the farm of John R. Sanderson, located a few miles from Latrobe, while Charles D. Fausold was digging a hole in the ground. The hole, about six feet square, was being put down through a bed of soft limestone, and one of the stones encountered, a piece of limestone about eight by six inches in dimensions, was accidentally struck upon the edge with a pick. It split open at the blow and inside was found a grapevine leaf. It was of an ordinary size, looking exactly as a leaf from a modern grapevine looks, and it was as green and as fresh and tender as though it had just been plucked from a vine. It withered as soon as it was exposed to the air and sun. The leaf was found in the center of a 15-acre field of corn, says the Philadelphia Record.

Expert Pickpockets.

A strange story from one of the Balkan states, where commercial morality is still in its infancy, is told by the Cleveland Leader. At a recent banquet given at the house of the prime minister a distinguished diplomat complained to his host that the minister of justice, next to whom he was sitting, had taken his watch. The prime minister said: "Ah, he shouldn't have done that. I will get it back for you."

Sure enough toward the end of the evening the watch was returned to its owner. "And what did he say?" asked the guest.

"Sh-h! He does not know I have got it back," said the prime minister.

Terrors of War.

A sweet young thing was being shown over one of the battleships. "What is the captain's name?" she asked incidentally of the marine who had been detailed to show her around. "Mitchell, Capt. Mitchell," replied the marine; and he added, by way of historical interest, "during the Spanish-American war it was Converse, but now it is Mitchell."

"Oh," said the s. y. l., gazing at him with all the animation of boarding school intelligence, "do they change their names on account of war?"

The marine fell overboard, and all of the crew within hearing jumped in to rescue him.

An Improvement in Girls.
Ten or twelve years ago, when a girl got married, she left such a debt for wedding clothes and expenses that it ordinarily took the family six years to recover from it, says the Athlison Globe. Fathers should take off their hats to the modern girl. She earns the money to buy her own wedding outfit, and in many cases has a little left to help in buying things for her new house. The modern girl is more of an improvement over the young woman of 20 years ago than the modern young man is over young men of that time.
