Sheep Farms.

Do you know that farmers in this county are making a big mistake that that they do not keep sheep. First get a large acreage of alfalfa. Be sure you have plenty of hay, (alfalfa) and grain. Buy say 100 ewes in the early fall, join with your neighbors, and buy a car load and distribute them out in bunches of one or two hundred lots. Don't be in a hurry to get a lot of experience and be a big sheepman, chances are you will lose, but commence small, breed the ewes for early lambs. Give them plenty of range so they can gather up all the roughness and clean the farm of weeds. Feed enough alfalfa hay and grain during the winter so they will gain in flesh and be in fine condition at lambing time. Then keep crowding them along with a view of fattening both ewes and lambs. You should have a fine fat bunch of sheep and lambs by early summer which, together with the wool clip will give you three crops from your investment, one crop of wool and two of mutton and all within eight to ten months time. There are three things to insure your success. Buying weight, plenty of feed, and proper care. The market you will have to take your chances on. The first three is your business and I believe you will and a good market. I hope to try it another year when I get more land in alfalfa. Willis Cadwell,
