Vol. 1, No. 1 of the Blaine County Booster, published at Dunning by Phil Wadhams, is on our exchange table. It is a 7-column folio, all home print, printed on book paper and is replete with interesting matter. The editor is new in the editorial harness but he works up in the collar like an old timer. The mechanical department is under the supervision of Roy Kennedy, one of the good printers of the state, and having lots of good material to work with he is making the typographical appearance of the Booster a dream without a nightmare to mar its beauty. The advertising patronage consists of fourteen handsomely displayed columns and can't help but create a feeling of envy in the mind of the average country publisher.

The Belle of Japan.
A success that has no parallel, unique in conception and gorgeous in presentation is "The Belle of Japan." W. Wamsher's latest offering, dealing with a nation that has so recently become famous and is so rapidly acquiring our European way of living. It will no doubt be a surprise for many to learn of some of the customs that are still in vogue in that country. This comedy drama is the first true picture of present day life in Japan. The play is not entirely Japanese characters as one would imagine, but has other interesting characters including an old sea captain of the whaling ship, "The Nantucket," his daughter, a young vivacious American girl, a young artist from America, his old maid aunt, also an English variety house owner, who with an accomplice, a woman of the world, cause most of the trouble. One of the chief fun-makers is an American kodak agent who generally bobs up at the right time. The principal Japanese character is that of "Titi" an artists model and Geisha Girl, which part is in the hands of that clever comedienne, Miss Mento Everett. The costuming, scenery and mountings of the play are said to be beautiful. That they must be novel there is no doubt when one stops to think of the great opportunity the locality of the play offers.

"The Belle of Japan," will be seen at the Opera House, Friday evening, December 3rd. Seats will go on sale at once at Holcomb's and Stockham's stores.

Value of Publicity.

A merchant in a small town who saw a farmer receive goods at a railroad station from a mail order house told him he could have sold the same goods for less money and saved the freight besides. The farmer asked why he didn't let people know. Though he had taken the home paper regularly for years, he never saw a line in it that such goods were to be had. The mail order house came after the trade and got it. Merchants and manufacturers who fail to advertise what they have should not expect to compete with those who do. The very best articles at the lowest prices will be passed by when people are unaware of their existence. Probably if the merchant had advertised and the farmer had bought from him he wouldn't have known that his advertisement had brought the business anyway and so wouldn't have given it credit. Publicity often reaches much further than is outwardly perceptible.—Exchange.

An Enjoyable Surprise.

A crowd of young people, friends of Mr. A. G. Montgomery, attempted to surprise him last Friday night at the home of Mr. Wash Rankin, but A. G. was too sharp for them. Having learned of the plans he entered into the arrangements also for a good time.

About fifty, young and old, spent a very enjoyable evening at the pleasant home of Mr. Rankin, playing games in the moonlight the first part of the evening. Later all participated in telling yarns and cracking jokes until their mouths were stopped with an abundance of sandwiches, cake and fruit served by the hostess Mrs. Rankin.

Mr. Montgomery leaves this week to visit friends in Missouri. Later he will enter college and fit himself for the profession of teaching in which he is much interested.

Meets Death Alone.
Elisha Sanders, a well-to-do farmer and Grand Army man, about sixty-five years old, living alone on his farm near Milburn, died some time during Thanksgiving afternoon from what was probably ptomaine poisoning. The old gentleman, realizing that he was in a dangerous condition, and not being able to communicate with anyone, crawled to the stable, turned his horses loose and allowed them to wander to a neighboring farm, thinking it would attract attention, which it did. When assistance arrived he was discovered sitting in the door sunning himself. A doctor was summoned from Anselmo, but could render no relief. Coroner Cole took charge of the body and brought it to Broken Bow. A son and daughter of the deceased arrived from Osceola, Iowa, Saturday and will try to arrange about settling up their father's estate, which they may find some difficulty in doing, inasmuch as Mrs. Mason of Kearney is alleged to have laid claims to having married the deceased eight years ago. As the wife of Sanders has been dead only three years this seems to complicate matters not a little. A. J. Bowers, an undertaker of Kearney, is authority for the statement that Mrs. Mason has been investigating the amount of property that Sanders possessed.

The remains of the deceased were taken by his children to Osceola, Iowa, for interment Sunday.

Cures Disease With Salt.

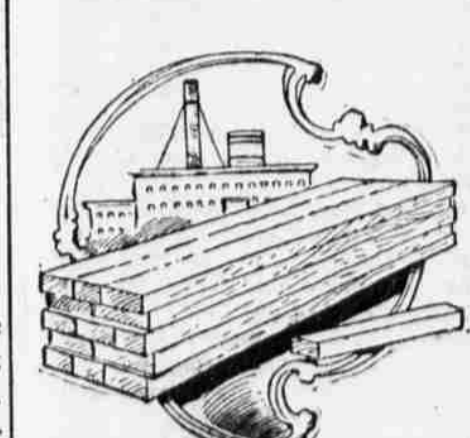

Holdrege, Neb., Nov. 20.—The "corn stalk" disease which affects cattle and horses turned in the stalks about this time of year, has been conquered by R. S. Collitter of Bertrand. The remedy is as simple as the treatment. As soon as possible he gives the animals a quart or so of hot water and after this is down throws a handful of salt into the animal's throat. He repeats this in twenty minutes and if necessary a third time. However in all of the cases so far treated in this county the third dose has been unnecessary.

STOP TO CONSIDER

If you stop to consider the excellence of the drugs you get here, you will readily see why so many people trade here. We are more than careful in the selection of our stock, and in the compounding of our prescriptions. That's why satisfactory results always follow the use of our medicines. The doctor knows this and is never disappointed when his prescriptions are filled here. Trade with Lee, he stands behind everything he says about his goods.
