dragged down stairs. It is not expected in Hastings that there wil be serious trouble in bringing about the union of Bellevue and Hastings colleges, in accordance with the directions given by the Nebraska synod at the meeting in Kearney Monday. , Priends of Hastings declare that the movement for the union of the colleges was not urged in a spirit of hostility to either institution. An unknown man was found in an unconscious condition at Central City and removed to the jail, where he was attended by local physicians, who pronounced it a case of acute kidney trouble. He died soon after without recovering consciousness. Under the direction of the Women's Christian Temperance union there was held at the Methodist church in Harvard a Silver Gray contest, consisting of recitations by six women none being eligible to enter under 40 years of age. One woman, in her 80th year, gave an interesting paper. which she read without glasses.

La Camargue Alone in France Preserves the Ancient and Honorable Sport of Falconry.

La Camargue scorns commonplace diversions. La Camargue alone, in this latter-day France of ours, provides the great and entrancing spectacle of hawking. Falcon on wrist, the southern sportsmen come to the Rhone delta to indulge in the aristocratic pastime of falcony, which is the princely relaxation of Arabia, India and the Kirghiz Steppes, the noblest sport of old France, the royal sport above all others.

One cannot meet a hawking party in the Camargue plain without having irresistibly brought to mind a vision of the days of old. Behind the varlets urging on the greyhounds, the howling, barking pack, the whole court follows the flight of the falcon pursuing the kite in the clouds above; a gallant chase, if ever there was, in which the ladies on their palfreys, clad in velvet gowns and feathered hats, worn Guelphic fashion, canter in the front rank, with their coats looped up above the knee and boots of embroidered leather, vigorously spurring the horse. It was for them, always for them, that each vied with the other in the skill and elegance wherewith he threw the falcon, recalled him after his victory and placed him gracefully upon his mistress' gloved wrist

La Camargue is one great heronry; and, to a falconer, nothing in the world comes up to "flying a heron." He is the finest bird of all to hunt. The pink flamingo lets himself be bled without uttering a complaint, hardly more than a sad little cry, as though to beg for mercy; a few drops of pale red blood and all is over. He dies gently and easily. With the heron the game is more evenly matched; he is a fine, strong bird, a formidable and very crafty enemy. The falcon shoots up like an arrow in pursuit. The gray bird tries to disappear, but his enemy, who is struggling to soar above him in order to swoop down upon him, runs him close, harasses him, compels him to pass the clouds. The tragedy is consummated at a giddy height .-- Andre Castaigne, in Harper's.

Just to Annoy.

"In Lady Cardigan"s new volume of memoirs," said a Chicago publisher, the virtue of one of the artistocratic Tollemache ladies is assailed. The lady herself has long been dead, but all her descendants, to the third and fourth generation, are writing to the papers, denying the truth of Lady Cardigan's attack.

"It all goes to show how sensitive we are about the virtue of our ancestors. This was understood by a Chicago pro-suffragist who wrote to the papers the other day:

" 'Senator Blank's shameful attacks on the motives of the militant suffragettes must cease. Before Senator Blank traduces those pure-minded ladies he had better look after his thieving, drunken old mother.'

"A friend to whom this letter was shown said to the pro-suffragist: "That is all very trenchantly put. It's libelous of course. I suppose you're quite sure of your ground?' "'Sure of my ground?' said the prosuffragist, impatiently. 'I never heard a word against the old lady. All I know is, if Senator Blank has the common feelings of a gentleman he'll be very much annoyed."

"Bobs" and the Boy.

An interesting incident is recorded in connection with the visit which Lord Roberts paid to Marylebone to distribute the medals won by members of the local rifle club, recently. One of the gold medals was won by a lad (a competitor in the juvenile section), who belonged to very poor parents. Thinking that his clothes were too shabby to appear before the fieldmarshal, he had broken into a neighbor's house and stolen money for a suit of clothes. He was detected, brought before the Marylebone magistrate, and let off under the first offenders act. When the matter was brought to Lord Roberts' notice he called for the lad, took him aside, and gave him some words of advice, telling him that it was character and not clothing that mattered. The boy got his medal.-London Mail.

How Welsh Women Carry Babies.

The quaint old Welsh way in which Swansea women carry their babies attracts every one's notice when visiting that town for the first time. A big shawl over the right shoulder is drawn down to the left hip, where the two ends of the shawl are met and held together, forming a sort of pouch or pocket, in which the baby snuggles cosily and safely.

Its weight is so suported by the hip and distributed by the shawl over the whole uper part of the body that there is no strain at all nor any tiring of the arms. This probably accounts for the upright carriage of the Weish mother. Moreover, the method is comfortable for the child and so safe that in Swansea small boys swathed in their mothers' shawl are seen carrying the family's latest baby.

A Father's Relationship.

A New York business man has a small daughter who is extremely fond of her mother. She likes her father well enough, but does not go into raptures over him. A caller at the house, knowing the situation, asked the child why she didn't love her father as she did her mother.

"Oh, you see," she explained very evidently to her own satisfaction, "papa is only related to us by mar-

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL MAKES SOME NEW PLANS.

TO MAKE COUNTER PROPOSAL

Attention of Congress Is to Be Called to the Possibilities of Having Ownership and Control of Freight Ships.

Washington, D. C .- The ship subsidy measure is generally expected to go through congress at the present session, but it will not do so until after an interesting counter proposoal has been forced upon the attention of congress. This counter proposal is no less than the government building a number of fast freight steamships and operate them in the South American trade on its own account. They would then be available as naval auxiliaries in time of war, and if there were any loss in their operation, the government would stand it directly, instead of indirectly through the payment of a subsidy. The proposal of the government going into the shipping business is not regarded as so startling as it might have done a few years ago, for the reason that the government is already in that business. It operates a line of steamships in connection with the Panama railroad and the Panama canal construction work, from the ports on the zone to United States ports. These boats handle freight for the government, and also freight and passengers in general business. Moreover, the government is in the railroad business, as the owner of the Panama railroad: and it is urged by members of congress who are going to present this plan, that it would represent nothing more than an extension of the enterprise in which Uncle Sam is already engaged.

The names of Senators Newlands and Cummins have both been connected with this proposal, and it is said that such an amendment to the ship subsidy measure is certain to be offered. The opponents of subsidy have small doubt that the votes have been listed to pass the measure through the house. Although they are determined against it, they all expect it will carry. There is a strong support for the plan of subsidizing a line from the east coast of the United States to the east coast of South America, and another line from the west coast of the United States to the west coast of South America. Not so much strength is available for the support of a line to the far east, but it is believed the votes can be mustered to include it.

Suggestion of the government building its own boats and operating them has attracted much interest.. The plan commonly discussed is to increase the number of vessels owned by the Panama Railroad company, and have them put into the general South American trade. This would do away with the possible embarrassments of having the government directly handling commercial business, which might cause difficulties in relations with other countries.

Acclaim Peary Discoverer.

Washington.-The national geographic society Wednesday night publicly acclaimed Commander Robert E. Peary the discoverer of the north pole, and in recognition thereof presented to him a gold medal.

There was no reference to the claims of Dr. Frederick A. Cook and only a slight one to the polar contro-

Captain Robert A. Bartlett, the master of the Roosevelt, also received a medal. This was presented by Ambassador James Bryce of Great Britain. Andrew Carnegie, Ambassador Jusserand of France: Baron Desplanches, the Italian ambassador; General Thomas Hubbard, president of the Peary Arctic club and Speaker Cannon sat at the speaker's table. Mr. Carnegie made a short address.

It was also announced that a medal has been ordered presented to Grove Karl Gilbert of Washington in recognition of various scientific investigations he has made.

To Pension the Blind.

Washington .- A bill granting pensions of $100 a month to blind children of civil war veterans was introduced in the house Wednesday by Representative Hinshaw. The pensions are made available to all calldren who were so afflicted before reaching the age of sixteen and who are now fifty years old and the pension of $100 shall be paid in lieu of any pension now being paid by the government. Representative Norris introduced a pension bill authorizing the restoration of pensions to widows of civil war veterans who remarried and who later either became widows for a second time or were divorced.

Will Form Supreme Lodge.

Kansas City-Representatives of the Missouri, Kansas, Azrizona, Ne braska, Colorado, New Mexico and Masaschusetts grand lodges of the Ancient Order of United Workmen decided at a meeting here Wednesday to form a new supreme lodge under the name of the National Ancient order of United Workmen. A committee of which L. M. Penwell of Topeka, Kas. is chairman, and W. J. Howell of St. Louis, secretary treasurer, was delegated to make plans for the new organization.

Contentment That Is Chief Part of Life.

If a man doesn't love his work, he had better get something else to do. But the trouble is that such people will hardly love any kind of work. The trouble is in them. They lack intelligence. If they knew enough to know good work, they would soon learn to love it. The manual-training scheme has this in view-to surround the job a man is doing with such intelligence and taste as will make it attractive to him.

"The man who is in love with his job gets more contentment out of life than any other," says Brander Matthews; and he gets a great part of his contentment in doing his work right. No man can love his work who shirks, No man can be contented who is dishonest about his work. This is shirking or doing it negligently. So these things always go together-honest work, contentment and love of the job.

AGONIZING ITCHING.

Eczema for a Year-Got No Rellef Even at Skin Hospital-In Despair

Until Cuticura Cured Him.

"I was troubled with a severe itching and dry, scrufy skin on my ankles, feet, arms and scalp. Scratching made it worse. Thousands of small red pimples formed and these caused intense ftching. I was advised to go to the hospital for diseases of the skin. I did so, the chief surgeon saying: "I never saw such a bad case of eczema." But I got little or no relief. Then I tried many so-called remedies, but I became so bad that I almost gave up in despair. After suffering agonies for twelve months, I was relieved of the almost unbearable itching after two or three applications of Cuticura Cintment. I continued its use, combined with Cuticura Soap and Pills, and I was completely cured. Henry Searle, Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8 and 10, 1907." Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.
