The democrats are still in a squabble over their gubernatorial candidates. It all comes about by their candidate Shallenbarger trying to be a democrat and a pop at the same time.

O. H. Moody and W. J. Rice, the republican nominees for the state legislature are among Custer county best citizens and are entitled to the loyal support of the republican voters of this district.

It is reported that the breweries of the state already have paid workers on all trains in the eastern part of the state using their persuasive powers to the traveling public who live within the state to support Dahlman for governor.

In making up your list of candidates worthy of your support do not fail to include Walter A. George for State Treasurer on the republican ticket. Walt has always been able to make good and he will not disappoint his friends should he be elected treasurer of the state.

One of our contemporaries has been poking fun at Congressman Kinkaid by putting words to his initials thus—Making Promises Kinkaid. Without taking up the gaunt let with ashewing that the congressman generally makes good on his promises, etc., we may add that according to the primaries the words might be revised to read: Mighty Popular Kinkaid, and prove it by the primary returns.—Gering Courier.

M. L. Fries, the republican nominee for state senator of this district, is no new man. When member of the senate a few years ago he proved his ability as well as his friendliness to the interest of the common people of the state. You can well afford to give him your unqualified support.

The refusal of Col. Roosevelt to sit at the banquet last week in Chicago with Senator Lorimer puts a new emphasis on the importance of looking well to the kind of company you keep. The fact that Senator Lorimer was a member of the Hamilton club that was entertaining Mr. Roosevelt, made his refusal to sit at the banquet with him more pronounced.

In his speech at the state fair last Wednesday Mayor Dahlman publicly declared that no one should vote for him for governor if they do not believe with him on the liquor question. He reiterated his determination that if elected governor and if a county option law is passed by the legislature he would veto it. He claims his right to veto the will of the majority because he is making that issue his platform.

This is a time when the friends of good government and sobriety should band themselves together, regardless of the party affiliations against Dahlman. His supporters in the primaries were not confined to the democrat party for without the support of the whiskey republicans he would have never received the nomination over Shallenbarger. Those democrats who believe in good citizenship should prove their loyalty to principal by helping to defeat him.

The Oconto Register has changed from a six column quarto to a five column quarto. The lack of patronage of the business men of the town is given as the cause. It is not unusual for business men to forget the importance that newspaper is to a town and the country in general and adopt false economy by withholding their patronage from the newspapers that makes their town and maintenance that gives them and their town the business.

The republican form of ballot which was in vogue was very much superior to the one furnished us by the late democrat legislature. Under the republican law and ballot it provided you were given a chance to name your ballot and it was furnished you by the judges, you could vote for who you pleased of the party of your preference and pass out. The democrat ballot furnishes the names of all candidates on the same sheet which enables a republican to vote for the democrat nominee or the democrat to vote for republican nominees. It gives the republicans a chance to nominate democrat aspirants not at all favorable to the rank and file of the party or democrats may vote to nominate the weakest candidate on the republican ticket. This is another argument that the safe and sane way to do is to elect republicans to office in county, state and nation in order to secure the best laws possible for the people.

DAHLMAN AND PATRICK AT LINCOLN.

Chief among the notables at the State Fair who spoke Wednesday, was the democratic nominee for governor. His was largely a speech in appreciation of self, a tribute to his own proud record as mayor, and a promise to veto every old thing that came in his head and out of his mind and in part the Jim-Jim said:

"They say I'm a czar," said he, "just because I say beforehand that I will veto a certain bill if it comes to me. Well, you all heard em say I would veto it, didn't you. If I go out in this campaign saying this and you people vote me into office it is the will of the majority, aint it, and if I veto a certain bill I will be following that will, won't I? (cheers started on the platform by John G. Maher.) The veto power has been part of this government ever since its founding. It is put there to be exercised to secure justice and I will exercise it forty times a day if need be."

Senator Patrick didn't say anything calculated to warm the heart of the mayor, when he spoke in part:

"If the people of Nebraska desire a chief executive who stands for the highest and best government, for sobriety, decency, home and a square deal for the people of our commonwealth, they can have such a man by the election of C. H. Aldrich, the nominee of the republican party. On the other hand if it is the desire of a majority that the gubernatorial office be prostituted by the reign of lawlessness, debauchery and drunk on revelry, they may be entirely gratified by the election of the candidate nominated by the brewers, the railroads, the gamblers, the thugs, saloon keepers and every disreputable, lawless and criminal interest in the state. "The democratic party presents no candidate for the office of governor. For which omission we are indebted to the disreputable and dishonest primary law enacted two years ago, under which the worst element in the republican party nominated the worst candidates for the democratic party."—Dunning Booster.

A Compliment to Senator Burkett.

When Colonel Roosevelt was in Omaha September 2nd, and made a speech at the Auditorium, he was introduced by Senator Burkett. In response to the Senator's introductory address Colonel Roosevelt gave him a splendid endorsement. The former President's remarks, as reported in the Lincoln Journal were as follows:

"I am particularly pleased to be introduced by Senator Burkett," said the Colonel, "because he was one of the men on whom I especially relied while I was President, both while he was in the house and in the senate. On one occasion he paid a tribute to me which may have been entirely unmerited, in which he described what the typical American public servant must be. He said: In the great struggle of life he (the good American) must be prepared to take the side of the man rather than of the dollar. Old time methods in politics, old time ideals of governmental duty and prerogative are relegated to the junk shop of political antiquities. No man who is skeptical in his own mind of the righteousness of the advanced ground that the American people have taken socially or morally can have their confidence. No man who is fearful of popular rule, or is more afraid of the people's oppression of the people without law is eligible to popular esteem. "In my case," Colonel Roosevelt continued, "All I can say is that I have endeavored to live up to that description and that I was able to accomplish what I did accomplish in Washington only because of the way in which I was backed by men like Senator Burkett, and as we have a guest from Iowa present, let me say, a so, like Senator Dolliver.
