

A Mysterious Explosion.

At about 8 o'clock Tuesday evening a terrible explosion occurred near the Praed street underground station of the Metropolitan railway, London. On the first alarm a strong cordon of police was summoned to preserve order, to keep the way clear and convey the wounded people to the hospitals. Passengers on the train at the scene of the explosion say that there was suddenly a loud report like a cannon, then a sudden darkness, the gas lights from the front to the rear being put out. Glass was broken, and splinters of wood flew about the cars, cutting and wounding many passengers. Above the din were heard the shrieks of the injured and panic stricken people. All this occurred in a moment, and for awhile confusion reigned supreme. The train, which was crowded, contained principally country visitors returning from the fisheries exhibition. After leaving the station the train traveled steadily ahead, although the concussion smashed nearly all the lamps in the Praed street station and caused much damage to the permanent way. When the train reached the next station, at Edgegrave road, the first effort was made to rescue the wounded. Some were dreadfully burned, but more were prostrate with fright. All doctors, surgeons and dispensaries in the neighborhood were called into requisition. The first impression was that explosion of the gas caused the disaster, but later inquiries tend to show malice. The two rear carriages were damaged most. They are mere skeletons. Another theory is that the explosion was caused by foul gas accumulating in the tunnel. The general opinion of railway officials is that the disaster was caused by some explosive material which had been placed in the rear most carriage. About forty persons were injured, some dangerously. Almost simultaneously with this affair another explosion occurred in the underground railway between Charing Cross and Westminster station. At Charing Cross the glass of the station collapsed. The effects were similar to those at the Praed street explosion.

A cablegram Wednesday says: The excitement over the explosions in the underground railway line is very great. A large number of police, under special inspectors, were on duty all night at the various railway stations and guarding the line. A heavy force also watched the houses of parliament and other public buildings. The explosion at Charing Cross occurred a distance of two hundred yards west of the station. There was no train there at the time. The walls of the tunnel were battered but the rails were not misplaced. The windows in the station were blown out. The roof was not damaged. The police deny that any rocket or cartridge has been found near the scene of the explosion. No traces were discovered of the nature of the explosives. It has been ascertained that the explosions could not have been caused by coal gas. No clue to the persons causing the explosions were obtained. All the detectives of the Metropolitan police are searching for the perpetrators of the outrages. Up to 3 o'clock no explosive matter was found at the Praed street station. The inspector from the home office viewed the scene of the explosion there and afterwards examined the damaged train. He expresses his opinion that the cartridges, made of the first order of explosives, such as gun-cotton, were used. The guard states that while looking out of the car window, just after the train left Praed street station, he saw some sparks nearly underneath the carriage, and immediately afterwards heard the explosion. The explosive used at Charing Cross station was a small quantity of some material other than dynamite.

At the Praed street station the force of the explosion was terrible. Although workmen have been busily engaged all night removing debris, they have not yet finished their task, nor has the damage at that place been repaired. The tunnel there was not destroyed but a deep hole was excavated in the road-bed. The brick work was blown out and the gas-pipes and telegraph lines broken, the refreshment saloon wrecked, and the windows of other rooms of the station cracked. The explosion occurred immediately under a passing train, 40 yards west of the station. All the persons injured were in the last two cars. Twenty-eight persons wounded were taken to St. Mary's hospital. Four of them are seriously hurt, but they passed through a favorable night and are expected to recover. Others were able to go to their homes during the night.

The explosions caused intense excitement in Irish circles in London. The Irish almost unanimously think the outrages were due to deliberately planned machinations of enemies of the national party of Ireland, who intend to create an anti-Irish feeling in England. It will be next to impossible, they think, to have a perfectly impartial jury to try O'Donnell now. It is also remarked that the explosions occurred about the moment when Davitt was opening his address in St. James hall. It is stated the police are unaware of the presence in London of any of O'Donovan Rossa's dynamiters. However, all Irish rendezvous are closed and watched.

The government and railway authorities offer a reward of £500 each for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons connected with the late explosion. Physicians say that dynamite must have been used to rupture the membrane tympanum of people injured.

Strike at the Bottle. A nervous and disease-stricken old gentleman was sitting in his room on an easy-chair, his physician being at his side. Said the old gentleman, "Now, doctor, you have been treating me for a long time, and haven't done me much good. I'm tired of all this. I want you to strike at the root of all my disorders." Said the doctor, "Do you mean exactly what you say?" "To be sure I do," said the venerable invalid. "Well, here goes!" said the doctor;—and with one whack of his cane he broke to pieces the brandy-bottle which stood on the mantel. The old gentleman was angry and excited, but he had a good answer ready for the doctor. "Doctor, if it hadn't been for your doctrine, I never would have got into the habit of drinking." In Brown's Iron Bitters there is strength for the debilitated, refreshment for the nervous, and new life for the broken-down.

Uncle Sam's Condition Powder

THE BEST MEDICINE NOW KNOWN FOR HORSES, CATTLE, SHEEP, HOGS, ETC., ETC.

An animal with deranged digestion, impoverished blood or diseased kidneys cannot thrive. It becomes weak, spiritless, of scraggy appearance, which renders it unavailable. It costs no more to market, and shrewd farmers find it pays them to give Uncle Sam's Condition Powder freely to diseased stock, and occasionally to all; because it purifies the blood, aids digestion, stimulates the various functions to healthy secretion, and thus promotes growth and gives a smooth, glossy coat of hair. MILCH COWS are much benefited by the occasional use of Uncle Sam's Condition Powder in slop or feed. HOGS fatten faster when it is given three or four days in succession every month or two. SHEEP.—All diseases common to sheep, such as coughs, colds, scabs, etc., are removed by this powder. We caution all who desire a truly meritorious article to be sure and ask for Uncle Sam's Condition Powder, and accept no other as a substitute. Prepared only by THE EMMETT PROPRIETARY CO., CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.
