

THE WOOL GROWERS.

An Address to Those Engaged in the Business Throughout the Country.

In the National mass meeting of the wool growers of the United States, at Chicago, the committee appointed to prepare an address to the wool growers of the country submitted the following:

To the Wool Growers and Sheep Breeders of the United States: A national convention of wool growers and sheep breeders of the United States, held at Chicago on the 19th of May, 1884, and which was attended by delegates from twenty states, a committee was appointed to draw up an address to the wool growers of the country for the purpose of arousing them to a proper realization of the necessity that exists for immediate and energetic action if they would rescue the great industry in which they are engaged from its present depressed condition and from the impending dangers of a still more serious nature.

The undersigned members of the committee firmly believe that the existing sad condition of the interest you represent has been brought about largely by parties not altogether, but adverse congressional legislation, and that it will not again be prosperous until congress shall reverse its action at the last session and restore the rates of duty to those which prevailed under the tariff of 1867, by parties for the first time in the industrial history of the country, equitable relations were established between duties on wool and those on woolen goods. It can be conclusively shown that the tariff of duty now given to American producers of both wools and woolen goods steady markets—a secure expansion of production, and that through this expanded production it gave the consumers cheaper wools and woolens than they ever before had.

he had responded since 8 o'clock. "More, far more dear." Oh, ever so much more."

"Would you," she went on, and there was a tremulous impressiveness in her voice that warned the young man that the star was going to leave her lines and spring something new on the house—"would you be willing to work and wait for me, as Rachel waited at the well, seven long years?"

"Seven!" he cried, in a burst of genuine devotion. "Seven! Aye, gladly! Yes, and more. Even until seventy times seven. Let's make it seventy, anyhow, and prove my devotion."

Somehow or other he was alone when he left the parlor a few minutes later, and it looks now as though he would have to wait about 700 years before he saves fuel by toasting his shins at the low-down grate in that parlor again.

There are men, my son, who always overdo the thing; they want to be meeker than Moses, stronger than Samson and ten times more particular than Job, the printer; that is, he isn't, but he used to be.

GRAINS OF WISDOM.

Music opens to men an undiscovered realm, a world which has nothing in common with the outer world of sense.—[Mozart.]

'Tis an ill thing to be ashamed of one's poverty, but much worse not to make use of lawful endeavors to avoid it.—[Thucydides.]

Do not press your young children into book learning, but teach them politeness, including the whole circle of charities which spring from the consciousness of what is due to their fellow beings.—[Spurzheim.]

He who thinks his place below him will certainly be below his place.—[Saville.]

A modest person seldom fails to gain the good will of those he converses with, because nobody envies a man who does not appear to be pleased with himself.—[Steele.]

There is nothing so elastic as the human mind. Like imprisoned steam the more it is pressed the more it tries to resist the pressure. The more we are obliged to do the more we are able to accomplish.—[T. Edwards.]

Though we seem grieved at the shortness of life in general, we are wishing every period of it at an end. The minor longs to be of age, then to be a business man, then to make up an estate, then to arrive at honors, then to retire.—[Addison.]

Learning is wealth to the poor, an honor to the rich, an aid to the young, and a support and comfort to the aged.—[Lavater.]

At the workingman's house hunger looks in, but dares not enter; nor will the bailiff or the constable enter. For industry pays debts, as despair increaseth them.—[Franklin.]

In our pursuit of the things in this world we usually prevent enjoyment by expectation; we anticipate our own happiness and eat out the heart and sweetness of worldly pleasures by delightful forethoughts of them, so that when we do come to possess them they do not answer the expectation, nor satisfy the desires which were raised about them, and they vanish into nothing.—[Tillotson.]

The trite saying of good Bishop Berkeley, "Westward the course of Empire takes its way," is daily verified by events. Not least significant among these is the fact that the state department at Washington has just purchased a number of Rockford Quick Train Railroad Watches to be given by President Arthur to captains of foreign vessels in testimony of our government's appreciation of their gallantry in saving the lives of American seamen. A few years ago Geneva watches only would have been considered good enough for such a purpose, now, among many competitors, the movements to their proper honors and the trouble ceases. Carter's Little Liver Pills will do this every time. One pill is a dose. Forty in a vial. Price 25 cents.
