THE Greeley family has been exceedingly unlucky. The tragic deaths of Horace Greeley and his wife just after unlucky campaign as a democratic candidate, no one is likely to forget. Of the two daughters that survived, the eldest, Ida, married a Kentucky dude and lived unhappily for several HARDWARE, STOVES, QUEENSWARE, years, when death relieved her from her troubles. The last survivor, Gabrielle, and very seriously injured.

The pursuit of science in England is now attended with difficulties on account of the watchfulness of the lynx-eyed police. In a South London house the other day there was a violent explosion. The police had been watching it for a long time, and they rushed in and found the head of the family with an arm blown off. They arrested him and took him to a hospital, only to find that he was a well known scientist who had been blown up while indulging himself in some chemical experiments. Thus one hunt for a dynamite fiend was brought to a sudden conclusion.

If the United States does not want to buy Cuba, it is certainly very clear she dosen't want any European power to buy it. Spain might just turn Cuba loose to shift for herself to the satisfaction of everybody. It is maintained that the visit of Minister Foster to Washington was at the request of the Spanish government, to see how the administra tion stood upon the matter. It is probable that the matter might be adjusted by the national independence of Cuba in consideration of the island assuming a share of the Spanish debt, or buying her freedom outright with bonds guaranteed by the United States. But Cuba isn't worth much. The only object the United States could have in figuring in the matter is to prevent a strong foreign power from getting a foothold on the continent.

There is no sense in getting alarmed over the kicking of a few of the dude newspapers of New York and Boston. The New York Times bolts because it is a free trade paper and Blaine is a protectionist. The concern is said to be owned, manned and edited by European Bohemians. The New York Herald is democratic, except when it knows the other man will be elected. It is a big paper, but its political influence is not great. The New York Truth is not in the proper sense a republican journal, but a half-and-half affair. It is also uninfluential. The Telegram is simply the echo of the Herald. The Brooklyn Union is welcome to all the glory it will get out of the bolt. It is not much more than a mere reflection of the Times anyway. The Springfield (Mass.) Republican is a chronic bolter, growler and sorehead, and has become known for and wide as such. It cannot effect anything against Blaine in Massachusetts, no more than it did in fighting Grant in 1872. The Republican has been the originator of more lies on prominent republicans perhaps than any other paper in the Union. The party is better off without it. The New York Independent is one of those unreliable religio-politico journals that are to be found everywhere, but it won't hurt Blaine to any alarming extent. The Philadelphia Times is a quasi-democratic journal at best. The Record is quoted as having bolted, but that is not the word. There was no republicanism to bolt from. The Harper's Weekly kick may prove a very serious affair indeed, to the publishers, but the republicans will live as of yore. The New York Post is Carl Schurz's paper, is republican only occasionally, and then merely for business. There is no loss in that bolt. The Boston Herald never did amount to anything as a republican paper, it is naturally a demoeratic concern and is perfectly at home in opposing Blaine. All the papers that have denounced the ticket will have no perceptible effect on the canvass adverse to the nominees. The people don't care a continental what the journals say they are going to vote for the Plumed Knight anyhow and thus he will be elected. There must be a bolt among the people to be of any advantage to the democrats, but there is none visible at present.—Gazette Journal.
