ANYTHING that makes the human heart warmer, anything that makes the current of affection run fuller, anything that makes gratitude and love and honor and truth and faith stronger, makes the man stronger.

SCRUPULOUS fairness in estimating the doings and characters of others is not a very common characteristic, and the man who builds much of his happiness on a recognition of his personal merits is very likely to be a melancholy person.

A DELEGATION of Judge Advocate General Swain's friends are said to have besieged the President the other day, headed by Congressman Calkins, to ask for the cancellation of the order for a court martial. The President merely expressed his surprise that under the circumstances the general does not demand a court martial as his right, and declined to rescind the order.

AURORA, Indiana, is the seat of the latest sensation. Three or four women clubbed together and administered an orthodox tarring and feathering to another woman, whose offense was that, she was suspected of being beloved of a man who was the divorced husband of one of the lynchers. The ground was hardly sufficient, but the job was said to have been very neatly done.

BOB BURDETT says man, born of woman, is of few days and no teeth.
And, indeed, it would be money in his pocket sometimes if he had less of either. As for his days, he wasteth one-third of them, and for his teeth he has convulsions when he cuts them, and as the last one comes through, lo! the dentist is twisting the first one out, and the last end of that man's jaw is worse than the first, being full of porcelain, and a roof-plate built to hold blackberry seeds. Stone bruises line his pathway to manhood; his father boxes his ears at home, the big boys cuff him in the play ground, and the teacher whips him in the school room. He buyeth North-western at 110, when he has sold short at 96, and his neighbor unloaded upon him Iron Mountain at 63½, and it straightway breaketh down to 42½.
He riseth early and sitteth up late that he may fill his barn and store-houses, and lo! his children's lawyers divide the spoils among themselves, and say, "Ha, ha!" He growleth and is sore distressed because it raineth; and he beateth upon his breast, and sayeth, "My crop is lost!" because it raineth not. The late rains blight his wheat, and the frost biteth his peaches. If it be so that the sun shineth, even in the nineties, he sayeth, "Woe is me, for I perish;" and if the north wind sigheth down in forty-two below, he crieth, "Would I were dead!" If he wear sackcloth and blue jeans, men say, "He is a tramp;" and if he goeth forth shaven and clad in purple and fine linen, all the people cry, "Shoot the dude!" He carryeth insurance for twenty-five years, until he has paid thrice over for all his goods, and then he leteth his policy lapse one day, and the same night fire destroyeth his store. He buildeth him a house in Jersey, and his first-born is devoured by mosquitoes; he pitcheth his tents in New York, and tramps devour his substance. He moveth into Kansas, and a cyclone carryeth his house away over into Missouri, while a prairie fire and ten million acres of grasshoppers fight for his crop. He setteth himself in Kentucky, and is shot the next day by a gentleman, a colonel, and a statesman, "because, sah, he resembles, sah, a man, sah, he did not like, sah." Verily, there is no rest for the sole of his foot, and if he had it to do over again he would not be born at all, for "the day of death is better than the day of ones birth."

THIS is what Sir Lepel Griffin says of the American girl: "Stylish and pretty, independence personified, but very honest and pure-minded is the American girl. She adores pleasure, dress, luxury; shows herself morally without concealment, such as she is, in a manner to deceive no one; knows she is attractive and loves to attract without committing herself; flirts all the winter with this one or that one, only to dismiss him in the spring, choosing immediately another.
Her resources are capital which never lies idle. She goes out alone; she travels alone; or, when it suits her better, with a male friend, with a confidence without limit, and in intimacy in appearance almost conjugal. The one thus elected is allowed to describe his feelings and to speak of his love from morning till night, but is not permitted to kiss even the tips of her fingers. Words without deeds she amuses herself with as much as possible before marriage. In one sense she has created the Paris fashions.
Yet men of all nations are bewitched with her, though they do not marry her unless she has a large fortune.
With reddish hair paler than gold, frank, black eyes, which neither droop nor quail, and a figure which it is impossible to imitate, she lies back in a carriage as if it were a hammock; a natural and easy pose, quite unconscious of voluptuousness. On foot she steps along briskly and unconcernedly, her heels tapping the pavement as she walks. Attracting many glances she is yet much occupied with herself and little with others; a plant from the broad wilds, which, put in a narrow space, and finding itself hemmed in, stretches across the glass without disquieting itself with the thin, frozen plants which vegetate around it. If understood better and criticised less, this young girl would be more truly estimated at her just value."

A GREAT many people suffer during the warm season from worry and restlessness. They will not take life easy. Of course there is work that must be done, and duties which must be accomplished, but due allowance should be made for the season. In the race for riches men are apt to forget the duties they owe to themselves and their families. The laws of nature cannot be broken with impunity, and yet men strain every nerve, taking no relaxative, paying no regard to the calls of nature for a halt until they break down under the strain. The summer is a season for relaxation. If it be impossible to entirely discard business cares, there are many ways in which a moment of rest can be snatched between times. There is nothing to be lost by giving the almighty dollar an occasional rest.
The American people are not as a usual things, prone to take life easy.
But it would be for their own good if they cultivated that habit a little more. The increase of nervous diseases in this country is becoming appalling.
The continual hurry and worry is driving thousands to an early grave.
And yet a great deal of this might easily be avoided if people would consult their natural comforts and necessities to a greater extent. The faculty of taking things coolly should be cultivated as naturally as a pes-trian takes the shady side of the street on a hot day. And in no season should the health and mind be guarded more carefully than during the summer months. It is the season when people are the most careless. In a hundred ways physical and mental life can be made enjoyable by the exercise of a little fore-thought, even though circumstances would indicate otherwise.
