This is the way the railroad boys address "Neighbor" now: Mr. R. B. Archibald. The whimsicality of this is that "Neighbor" is the presiding spirit who hovers over and around things at the round house as Master Mechanic.

The foundation for LaTourette's hardware store is being raised twelve inches higher than was originally designed. In view of the washing and filling being done on Main Avenue by the water, the move is a sensible one.

Just a little correction. That antelope referred to last week was killed by Mail Agent Alden eight miles west of Akron, and not in the Circle Ranch pasture. H. H. is one of those doughty ninnyrods who do not have to have their game corralled.

The building adjoining the Central Hotel, West Dennison street, is being fitted for occupancy by the young lady proprietors of the West McCook Restaurant. The rooms now occupied by the restaurant will be used by A. W. Shaeffer as a residence and shoe shop.

Segrist, Howe & Co.'s Great Monster Aggregation showed at this place, Monday night. The canvass was pretty well filled and the performance received its full meed of approval, rather out of proportion to the deserts of the same, however, as the circus can be safely catalogued in the list called "snide."

An evidence of the great increase in the population of this section of country is to be seen in the immense amount of lumber and supplies now going out of this town. Great quantities of freight are being hauled to Kansas also, showing that Decatur and Rawlins counties are sharing largely in the increase of population.

Through courtesy of Mr. Hotze, agent for the Crete Nurseries, we enjoyed some excellent varieties of grapes grown by that well-known firm at Crete. We did not learn the names of varieties, but can fully attest their excellence in taste and flavor. We also placed on exhibition a number of specimen apples grown at the same nursery.

Dr. Willey went up to Parks, Monday night, to attend to the injuries received by a step-son of Aug. Plasmyere, the section boss at that point, while firing off an old blunderbuss that had been overloaded. The gun burst and mangled the young man's hand horribly. The doctor hopes to save the lacerated member, and the injured man has come down to McCook to receive treatment.

A new residence is being erected on the hill near the school house by Mr. Ludwick of Onargo, Ill., the gentleman who purchased A. McG. Robb's claims. We understand that Mr. Ludwick purposes moving to McCook and embarking in business in our midst. Men of means will find ample opportunity to invest their capital here. Money is one of the things necessary to develop this country.

The editor made a trip to the western portion of the state last week and was agreeably surprised to see the advanced stage of improvements and civilization along the route. Crops of all kinds looked well. We passed through thriving little towns, by farms well improved, and noticed many herds of fine cattle, everything bearing evidence of enterprise and prosperity.—Table Rock Argus.

There was an apt illustration, a handsome fashion-plate, of the beauty and general symmetry of the Father Hubbard, at the depot, Sunday night. The instructions had been implicitly observed: That garment—of the finest linen—which is supposed to adorn the wearer's manly breast was artistically draped down his nether extremities, a la F. H., producing a wierd and fantastic effect—in the gloaming.

We have an excellent communication from Culbertson on our table, that we are unable to publish by reason of the writer failing to attach his name to his epistle. We can never deviate from our rule, name of writer must be signed to all communications—not for publication—but as an evidence of good faith. If the writer will send his name, there is much of interest in his letter that we will take pleasure in producing next week.

Probably you have observed an unusual buoyancy of spirits about W. C. LaTourette and Dr. Johnson, and were at a loss to account therefor. Well, the facts in the case are that St. Peter must have been drowsy and in a measure careless about the gates celestial, Sunday, and allowed two of the little ones up there to wander out into this stern world. Whether we have properly located the responsibility or not, W. C. purposes in his heart to adopt the girl, and our "big medie" the boy. Of a verity.

A number of our denizens are now engaging in the cheerful and healthful occupation called in local parlance, "Setting up with the sick." The exigencies of this game are such that whereas some enter into the same with zeal, health and a replete wallet immediately after the arrival of the pay-car, in a few short days they are the happy possessors of none of the above beatifics. "And thus runs the world away." In the kindly dispensation of Providence have we the "suckers"—(and many there be)—and the "bleeders"—in numbers few.

The social given at the residence of W. O. Moody, under the auspices of the Independent Order of Good Templars, Friday evening last, called together a goodly number of the members of that order and friends, all of whom enjoyed the short literary program, the music and social intercourse of the evening in a manner encouraging to those having the affair in charge. The members of this order purpose, at stated periods during the coming winter, giving other socials, which we have every hope will be largely attended, and in which great interest will doubtless be taken and much good done.

By reason of a press of other matters we omitted to mention last week the departure of Mark Morris and family for Western Nebraska, where they go to reside permanently. Mark designs going into the stock business in Red Willow county, near McCook, and hopes by being relieved from the hard work and drudgery incident to crop farming to regain his health which has suffered in that style of farming. He is an enterprising, wide awake man and he and his estimable wife are acquisitions any community may be glad to make. The Tribune and their many friends here wish them health, wealth and unbounded prosperity in their western home.—Lineville (La.) Tribune.

The body of one, John Coville of Cambridge, was found along the railroad track about one and a half miles east of Cambridge, Sunday morning, bearing marks indicating that he had been struck by an engine, although none of the east-bound engineers saw him on the track, Saturday night. It appears that the young man had been cutting broom corn in the neighborhood of Burton's Bend and was returning to his home in Cambridge. Nothing further is known other than the fact that he was found dead in the weeds a short distance from the track at the point above mentioned, and that he bore marks indicating that he came to his death by being struck by a locomotive.

Messrs. Whitaker & Jackson, after making due preparations to burn another kiln of brick, abandoned the work and this week started for McCook where they expect to take charge of a yard already in operation. They also succeeded in getting a homestead each within a day's drive of that town, which we think was the principal inducement for them to move. We are sorry to learn that they have concluded to make this move as they were producing an excellent quality of brick, and a brick yard is something that cannot well be dispensed with at this place. However we wish them success in their new location, and congratulate McCook people on the addition to their town. They are men who understand their business, and will be found upright in their dealings.—Guide Rock Signal.

Scientific men say that the kidney disease in this country is becoming most alarming, and that it is caused by using adulterated food. We hear it remarked quite frequently by the ladies that "very few men have the slightest idea how to hold a baby," and they might add with equal veracity that probably not one man in a hundred has the slightest desire to hold one—except it be an entrancing little bundle of femininity who has attained the exuberance of 16 summers. —JUNIAS.

AMONG the most interesting features of the Nebraska state fair are the displays made by the far-west counties, which only a few years ago were considered non-productive on account of a lack of rain in that section of the state. It is a well-known fact that the rain belt is constantly extending westward over this state. Regions that formerly were rarely ever visited by a rain storm now have an abundance of rain, and the soil has proved to be as productive as that in any part of Nebraska. Lands that were formerly thought to be fit only for grazing purposes are now being tilled and abundant crops are being produced. In a few years there will be but very little land left in Nebraska that is not used for agricultural purposes.
