DENVER, Colorado, has been posturing before the country as the fortunate abode of countless millionaires who scatter their riches lavishly for the good of the community. The tax assessor has been trying to hunt them down for the past month or two, and he has yet to find a Denver man who will confess himself the owner of $100, 000 worth of taxable effects.

THE Burington proposes to contest with the Northwestern for the trade of the Niobrara country. Both roads will tap that country next summer. Meantime Omaha remains inactive between these two cut-offs, and unless she builds a road of her own to the north and northwest, she will not receive a dollar's worth of benefit from the trade of northern Nebraska. This is a matter that ought to receive immediate attention at the hands of our board of trade, and if possible some steps ought to be taken not only to protect the interests we have but to acquire new tributary territory .- Bee.

PROF. PERRY, the economist, predicts that the Republican party will be missing when the roll is called in 1888. We fear the professor has been too economical with that sterling principal called truth-or absurdly ignorant of the qualities of the average Republican. Observe, that in the year of Our Lord Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-Eight. the grand old party will come to the front, re-juvenated and re-inforced, stronger and more combatative than ever. Purged and purified, in martial array, she will do battle in a manner that will not be indicative of any symptoms of death.

THE rush to secure seats at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, in Washington, of which Rev. Dr. William Alvin Bartlett is pastor, and which President Cleveland will attend, is some thing unprecedented. The membership of the society is very large, and vacant seats command a premium. Pews that could readily have been secured two months ago for $150 per annum are now eagerly snapped up at double that sum, although the occupants will not live here on an average of six months in the year. Old mossback Democrats who have not seen the inside of a church in a generation, are said to be among the most importunate of bidders.

It is announced from the seat of war in Soudan, that El Mahdi will cease his efforts to bag Gordon in Khartoum, ad mitting at last that he has a charmed life and cannot be taken or killed, and will concentrate his efforts upon Dongola and endeavor to defeat Wolseley before he can effect a junction with Gordon's forces. The new arena will have many advantages to the Mahdi. He will probably make his attack in the worst part of the march, between the river and Berber, where the invading army will take a short cut across the big bend. The desert is most deadly in that region and the advantage will be on the side of the children of Sahara. -Journal.

THE York Republican, in common we presume with other papers, has received one of Rosey's circulars, and pleading weariness, lays down the gospel as follows: Why, God bless your soul. What a Kentucky Burgoo Is.

[Washington Cor. Philadelphia Record.] If you should go out to Kentucky about this time," said the old judge, "you would probably be invited to a burgoo. You don't recognize him by that name, do you? No? Well, a burgoo good thing. It is an all-day pienic in the woods, with a feast which throws the clam chowder and the barbecue into the deep shade of obscurity. In fact the burgoo usually includes a barbecue as a sort of incident. You go out to a corner of the woods, where the thick underbrush has been carefully cut away, and where there are trees enough for shade, but not enough for gloom, and there you sit and play poker and smoke the finest tobacco in the world and drink oily 10-year-old sour mash and sniff the delightful aroma of the burgoo until along in the afternoon, when the niggers pronounce the burgoo ready and adle it out to you in big bowlfuls. "The burgoo is a dehcious broth which is a perpetual reminder of the aborigines who handed it over to our pioneering forefathers when they began coming across the mountains from Virginia. You take-or rather the darkies takea gigantic kettle and hang it over a roaring fire. A light broth is made first then they throw in young chickens, young ducks, sucking pigs, and all sorts of small game, with fresh potatoes, green peas, string beans, corn and every other vegetable. Everything is cooked until the meat begins to fall to pieces. Then the waiters, with shining, smiling, black faces and snow-white jackets and aprons, bear great bowlfuls of the toothsome stew through the grove. Oh, how good it is! My mouth waters as I tell you of it. Afterward there is more burgoo, and then more burgoo, until everybody has actually had enough. Then the darkies satisfy themselves, while you return to your pipe and your glass, until the shadows of evening gather sleepily around you." His vo.ce became low and his look became dreamy. Suddenly he roused himself, and remarked as he turned away: "A few weeks later the darkies hold their camp meeting on the

The Course of Rivers. [John Swinton's Paper.]

What is the reason that Indo-China, which is more than half as large as Critish India, contains only 34,000,000 eople to the latter's 250,000,000? In harbors, minerals and soil, Indo-China s the equal of British India. The seret is found in the course of the rivers. In Indo-China they run from north to outh. Unlike the dwellers by the anges, the Burmese and Siamese have o natural highways in the same latiude. From the heights of Yunnan to the torrid delta of the Mekong, the change is so rapid that climate itself keeps the different tribes separate and hostile. This effect is not produced by emperature throughout.

In our own country one sees many examples of this great law of migration. In traveling due west from a Connecticut village to the Mississippi, except that you have grown fat and caught the ague, you hardly seem to have changed your domicile. This law explains the magical rapidity with which the great valley of the Ohio

And the valley of the Mississippi, a river navigable from the gulf to St. Paul, why did this fertile valley have to be settled by sections? Why did it have to wait for settlers from Virginia, New York and New England? Why did not Louisiana people the valley of the father of waters? For the same reason.

So, too, it was not until the new northwest opened its polar gates that the Scandinavians arrived here in large numbers-though this may be a mere

Is it not perhaps in part for a similar reason, that railroads running nor h and south rarely prosper?

The Hudson river and its railroad which at first sight seem an exception to this law, are in reality examples of it This river is, with the exception of th St. Lawrence and the Mississippi, the only natural outlet to the sea, of the lake, Ohio, and all the western states.

Profits of Poetry.

[Cor. Pioneer Press.] "Writing for the magazines," says a genileman who is a frequent contributor to The Atlantic and Century, "is a most exasperating way of turning work into ay. Say what they will, there are 'sets' that have essified about each magazine, and it is hard for the beginner to break through. If one is unfortunate enough to be a poet the chances multiply against him. For one thing, the compensation is disheartening, although I suppose it is all that good business judgment can offer. I have been foolish enough to write what would make a fair-sized duodeeimo vol ume. For poems that were printed on half a page my checks have varied from $10 to $20. For one poem occupying a page of The Atlantic I received $25. It was copied far and wide in this country an in Lurope, and I now and then see it although it is ten years since it was first printed. For a poem covering three pages of The Century and elaborately illustrated, the dot was but $20. Thus you see there seems to be no well-conceived theory of payment for the poet. The vexations in prose offerings are only greater and more numerous."

The First Kritted Stockings.

[St. Paul Pioneer Press.] Queen Elizabeth was one of the first the were knitted stockings imported from Flanders, and it is on record that s wax model of the royal limb was fabricated and sent over so as to secure an exact fit. It is stated that one of her favorite courtiers made her majesty a present of a pair, and she was so pleased with them that she said she would never again wear stockings made on the old plan. It is perhaps not generally known that stockings in those days were neither knitted nor woven as such, but consisted of a sort of cloth, cut to shape and sewn up at the sides.
