OUR EXPOSITION LETTER.

Among the important personages now visiting this section is Chief Gault of the Sioux Tribe of Indians, Standing Rock Agency, Dakota. He is accompanied by his squaw and pappoose; and they are making headquarters at the Dakota department in the government building, where the little family are the wonder, if not the admiration, of the populace.

The canceling of the engagement with Prof. Currier and band by the Exposition Management is nothing serious, as there are many bands, as fine, if not so large, which will be glad to furnish music, even complimentary, at any time. Notably, the Mexican Cavalry Band, one of the best organizations of the kind in America, tender their services without charge. Again, the grand organ in Music Hall is about ready for use, and will be played every day by celebrated performers.

The State of Chihuahua, Mexico, has a piece of silver bullion on exhibition in Main building weighing 5,640 lbs., worth $114,000.

Your readers may be surprised to learn that the Mexican iron building under headway, though covering a small space, will cost that government no less than $172,000. It is being so scientifically constructed that it can be taken down in sections, when the Exposition closes here, and shipped to the City of Mexico as a memento of its representation in the United States; and where Mexico itself expects to hold high carnival next year; when that Republic hopes to have the whole world visit her.

The Government building, wherein the territories and states display their exhibits, is occupied in the centre by representations from the various Departments of the United States Government at Washington City. The expenditure of the money appropriated by the government, amounting to something like $500,000, and the selection of articles for exhibition, was entrusted to a Board of Commissioners following: Col. S. C. Lyford, War; C. H. Hill, State; Lieut. B. H. Buckingham, Navy; W. F. McLeman, Treasury; A. D. Hazen, Post office; B. Butterworth, Interior; Cecil Clay, Justice; W. Sniders, Agriculture Departments; Prof. G. B. Gooden, Smithsonian Institute; and the National Museum and U. S. Fish Commission. The principal feature of this exhibit is an immense globe fifty feet in diameter, upon which is accurately delineated all the geographical and political divisions of the earth. Plainly described thereon appear various facts relative to each country and government, such as its area, population, principal productions and industries, commerce, etc. This globe is so arranged as to be illuminated from within, so that its appearance as seen by artificial light will be both novel and pretty. Grouped around the base below this globe are representative specimens of the principal economic productions indigenous to the different countries represented thereon.

Upon large illustrated charts and diagrams are presented to the eye information relative to the productions, manufactures, trade and commerce of each country, and upon other charts are shown the relative distances of the many ports of Central and South America from the various shipping ports of the United States as compared with the distances of these same ports from those of Europe. This department, is surmounted by an immense seal of the state department, painted on glass for illumination at night, around and over which is hung and draped our own national emblem while in with the flags of all nations.

The postoffice is about finished and naturally attracts the visitor by its unique and business appearance. It is regulated after the manner and under the management of the New Orleans Postoffice, by Postmaster W. B. Merchant. One can transact business as well here as anywhere, being supplied with all the conveniences necessitating mail transactions, even to letter carriers who deliver mail anywhere properly addressed within the ground.

It will be glorious news to every good citizen of this great country to learn that the south is entering on a new life, and New Orleans will be the busy center of that life. The seven million bales of cotton raised from the Ohio to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Atlantic to the western border of Texas, will find a market here, and not only a market but a place of manufacture, from whence it will be dispersed abroad to clothe the people of the world. The cotton alone is worth more than $200,000,000. Place the imports but that it will have paid for at a similar sum, and you have a possible outcome of commerce of $400,000,000 per annum, arising from a single article.

SOUTHERN NEBRASKA.

EDITORIAL WESTERN TRIBUNE.—Emerson says in his Society and Solitude, that "the first farmer was the first man, and all historic nobility rests on possession and use of land." This is eminently true of the great West, where spreading to vision are thousands of acres of fertile farming land waiting for occupation and ready to yield upon sowing and tilling its rich harvests of corn and wheat, succulent grasses, vegetables and fruit. Much interest is being taken now in the settlement of the Republican Valley, not by a class of pioneers seeking government lands so much as by those desirous of buying direct from the pioneer and getting deeded lands or relinquishments, thus saving from four to six years time necessary to earn the government patent. In two former articles your splendid paper reviewed fully the characteristics of soil, topography, climate, products and advancement of the eastern and central part of this valley in Nebraska; in this we will confine ourselves to the western portion included in Furnas and Red Willow counties. In a general way the characteristics are very similar all along the Valley. Beautiful streams fed by perennial springs ripple and flow through the land emptying into the Republican all along its course. As you go to the westward there is a gradual diminution of the rainfall, but the peculiar composition of the soil, its spongy and porous character makes it serve as a subterranean reservoir from which nature can draw an abundant supply of moisture. A farmer who had spent a number of years in Furnas county said to us: "I have lived in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Iowa and have never been in any country where crops stand a drouth like Nebraska. The leaves of the plant do not shrivel up and wither, but are bright and green, and a cornstalk dug up after a severe drouth, has abundance of moisture around the roots."

In this portion of Nebraska no lands were granted to railroads or corporations, or for any other purpose, thus all of the land has been taken up under the provisions of the United States law by homestead, pre-emption or timber culture acts, except a small portion which is yet open, but which is not the choicest land. These pioneers, after obtaining their patents, frequently sell to the permanent settler and at prices much lower than any land could be sold by railway corporations who having alternate section grants spend large sums of money to place their lands upon the market and are still doing so day by day. There are also opportunities to secure relinquishments from $200 to $1,000 per quarter section upon which the purchaser can locate according to government laws and prove up at the specified time. Of course the price of these lands depends very largely upon the location, desirability and the amount of improvements already put upon them. Deeded lands which is unimproved, not as many Eastern lands that is unimproved, and is worthless—sell from $4.00 to $8.00 per acre, while farms with more or less improvements bring from $5.00 to $15 per acre. If any man desires to obtain a home in Nebraska, no time should be lost as prices of property are advancing with wonderful rapidity. It has been evident to all of those who have watched the growth of this remarkable State that the character of the immigration has been constantly improving, that more Eastern farmers have recognized the advantages of settling their farm at home for from $50 to $75 per acre, and going to the blossoming West where five acres can be bought for the proceeds of every one sold which will yield as much or more, with less labor and the farmer will have the advantage of the rise in valuation. The Lincoln Journal says: "An acre of raw prairie covered with the native grasses of Nebraska whose fattening properties cannot be rivaled by timothy, clover, or even the vaunted fodder of the blue grass region of Kentucky, carefully husbanded and fed will produce five dollars' worth of beef, wool or mutton every year. Let some mathematical granger figure up what five dollars per annum is five per cent of. The farms of the East and the old world are considered dirt cheap at a price per acre of which the annual production with careful cultivation will not five per cent. An acre of good bottom or upland in Nebraska put into corn will fatten more beef or pork than any other acre of land on the foot-hold outside of the corn region of the Northwest of which we are the center."

This is in the main true and still to secure these very desirable results it requires labor and skill. A farmer that expects to come to the West and live like a "dude" without work and his farm a mass of sunflowers, and his time wasted. It is hard labor in all pursuits united with diligence and economy which ensures success. The markets of this region are good. It is but a day's run to either Denver, Kansas City or Omaha. The Burlington & Missouri River Railway which hugs the Republican river closely in its westward course gives to the people available transportation facilities. The Kansas cut-off, a new departure upon which one through passenger train each way runs daily, strikes the Denver line at Oxford. This has created a boom for this bright town which is destined to bring it and its many advantages rapidly into prominence. Arapahoe the county seat of Furnas county and Cambridge an active village in the western part are also reaping the benefit of the new line in an increase of immigration and a rapid building up. Just think, in these two counties not more than five per cent of the soil is actually under cultivation while north and south, east and west are farms awaiting the farmer. Many of those wishing to visit Nebraska do not know that cheap land explorers' tickets can be obtained reading to Lincoln, Neb., at any station on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Wabash Route, and some twenty other lines. These tickets are good for thirty-five days and give land seekers ample time to look around and determine the most suitable location.

Now for some interesting and instructive points: The principal cereals raised are wheat and corn. Brown corn is a favorite crop. The native grasses are so good that tame grasses are not much raised as yet. Stock, especially cattle and hogs, is being rapidly introduced. The water is pure, good and plentiful. The climate is bracing in Winter, cool in Summer. The strong winds waft away all malaria and offensive exhalations. The country is new for fruit, but every needed constituent for success is here, and plums, haws and cherries grow wild in abundance. Schools and churches are being introduced with great rapidity, and the society is improving daily. The frontier era has passed, and in all respects of markets, both to sell and buy, we are reminded of an Illinois or Indiana town. The county-seat of Red Willow county—Indianola—was made such May 27, 1853. The site is upon a gentle slope toward the Republican river, skirted with groves east, west and south, and with rich fertile plains extending northward. There are good churches, excellent schools, and all classes of trade represented, although there is abundant business for another bank, a good hardware or dry goods store. The real estate business is in able hands, and a good newspaper is published weekly.

McCOOK, the terminus of the division, with its population of 1,301 is a phenomenon. It has been built entirely since June, 1852. Had last year a commercial business of $250,000 to $750,000 and expended in permanent improvements some $10,000. It is a division point on the Burlington and Missouri for terminal train service, with a round-house of fifteen stalls and repair shops. Over 1,000 employees are paid here, receiving approximately $30,000 per month. It is a splendid specimen of the pushing western aspirant for commercial and manufacturing conspicuity. Fair lumber yards, large, well-stocked stores, sound banks, readable and interesting newspapers, and a pushing, enterprising pull-together-and-don't-hang-back class of citizens, whose efforts ensure complete success.

"Know most of the rooms of thy native country before thou goest over the threshold thereof," is good advice, and a Western trip will be interesting to any man who has only read of the beauties of his country for travel makes all men country-men; makes people noblemen and kings, every man taster of liberty and dominion."
