A very pleasant entertainment was Sunday, in the absence of the editor. given on the night of the 4th inst., by the scholars of School District No. 41, (Miss Belle Hickling, teacher,) consisting of Declamations, Dialogues, Tableaux and Singing. Considering the fact that some of those who were to take part were absent, the program was well rendered.

The way that subscriptions and job work are coming in is a pleasing recognition of our efforts to give the people of Red Willow county a paper worthy of their support, and a job office that gives satisfaction. We take pride in stating that the work from THE TRIB-UNE presses cannot be excelled in the Republican Valley, in price or workmanship. Thus shall we strive on.

A meeting of all our business men, who are interested in a flour mill, is called to meet at THE TRIBUNE office, to-morrow, (Friday evening) at 8 o'clock, central time. Mr. McKay, who is figuring on putting in the mill, asks that our business men raise $1,000 to assist in defraying the freight on the mill and in helping to put the same up. If our citizens want a mill, and think it will be of any advantage to the business interests of our town, let them turn out and assist to the best of their ability in securing its location here.

The current issue of the Frontier Co. Faber contains the following bit of sarcasm: If a man holds to a different opinion on any subject from the one you entertain it is the proper thing to call him a crank. It is the most convincing argument you can use and all the bystanders will be ready to swear that you coulden't possibly be a crank.

Mr. Mathes has returned to McCook to take possession of the furniture store he recently puachased there. Mr. Mathes is one of the best business men ever in Atwood, and we wish him continued success and prosperity in the new venture he is making at McCook. He invites his old customers in Rawlins county and the Northwest to give him a call when in McCook .-- Atwood Citizen.

THE river bridges at Oxford, Alma, Naponee, Franklin, one at Orleans and at this place have been swept away by the ice. When the bridge at Oxford went out there were four persons on it but they got out unhurt. The mill dam at Orleans was swept away. A number of our citizens did what they could to save the bridge but were not successful. Bonds will have to be voted and a new bridge built.-Republican City Topic.

Boston has had a surprise and a shock. It commenced in the office of the Atlantic, now presided over by Mr. Aldrich. A slightly built young lady entered the office and demanded an interview with the editor. Mr. Aldrich posed himself for the ordeal, but nearly jumped out of his boots when the lady introduced the subject by remarking, "I am Charles Egbert Craddock." The name has become very familiar all over the land within the past few months since the publication of "In the Tennessee Mountains," and there has been a great deal of gossip about the unknown young man supposed to be, from his familiarity with law, a young lawyer of the south who was building up a new school of literature. Not a single soul including the Atlantic men who published the first productions of the rising star in the south ever dreamed that Charles Egbert was a female. Yet so she is. He turned out to be Miss Murfree, the daughter of Mr. A. L. Murfree of St. Louis, formerly of Murfreesboro, Tenn. The young lady was immediately given a dinner, to which the literati of the hub were invited, and is the lioness of the day. St. Louis will have a big time when she comes back, and will chala timber-claim in Hayes. Mr. McClung lenge Chicago to measure feet with her and take a new enumeration of the census, forthwith .- Journal.
