THE war clouds in the Soudan, Central America and Afghanistan seem to be assuming a serious aspect. With the spring, notwithstanding the wind. Mahdi, General Barrios and the grasping Russians the world may yet experience more than a tempest in a tea pot.

In Paris the other day a meeting was called by the English and French workmen to make a protest against war. The anarchists turned out in great force and captured the meeting and made it a loud howl for everybody's blood. Paris is a lively town for a public meeting.

Jo Mackin and his companion Gallagher stood up in the United States court in Chicago on Thursday and were told that it would cost them two years in the penitentiary at Joliet and $5,000 each for their little attempt to stuff the ballot box and elect a democrat to the Illinois senate. This is about all that the law allows, but it isn't enough .-State Journal.

AT Salem, Massachusetts, the salvation army tried the devil by court martial, the other day. We suppose he was convicted of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman and let off with a reprimand because it was his first offense. It wouldn't do, you see, to retire him from service for the occupation of the army would be gone. His offense s not telegraphed, but we suppose he has been duplicating his pay rolls. He was always a hard customer to pay .--State Journal.

Oup Missouri has at last formulated a reform, and the democracy of that state has covered itself with glory after long years of perspiration and promise and no performance. A bill has been passed making it a misdemeanor for a circus manager to put anything on his posters that is not literally and honestly shown inside the tent. It is very singular that states claiming a higher civilization than Missouri have let her carry off the honors of this new and glorious departure.-Journal.

THE Columbus Journal says, concerning the location, by the late legisla ture, of an asylum for insane at Norfolk that, "legislation, these days, is mainly a matter of dicker, and from what we can learn, this particular dicker was un derstood about six years ago." Well, Bro. Moses ought to know something about this dickering business, having served sometime as state senator himself. But in this "particular" dicker our Columbus folks were badly out-dickered. Hence, these tears.

NOLISH AGRICULTURAL LABOR.

londition of the English Farmers-Misery of the Laborers. Alfred Trumble in American Agriculturist.]

The English farmers are like their ools built to last, but not to work fast. they take things easy, and are little in-erested in affairs of their farms. They lo not read many papers, and almost heir only relaxation is found at an anmal fair or two, and at election time. If late years, the sporting farmer has ormed an exception to the rule. He mitates the follies and extravagances of the great folks, goes hunting, plays oilliards, bets on the races, and irinks his way down the road o ruin, rapidly and easily, but he is an exception fortunately, and will remain one. The English farmer is a good eeder. He believes in treating himself and his household well. His house is commonly as solid and old-fashioned as is tools. One Welsh farm-house, is nore than 400 years old. Its tenant is a very wealthy man, but he cannot buy it, hough he desires to do so and rebuild. Here and there are found old manors, leserted to the winds sometimes, at others still inhabited. They are absoutely sepulchral in their gloom, and ustify the ghost stories with which hey are one and all associated. The condition of the English agriculural laborer varies with that of the disrict to which he belongs. On poor ands, he carns at the best 8 shillings about $2) a week, on good ones he rises to 15 and even 20. In some districts, we find him living rent free, in others he has to pay rent. But whether he onys the rent in money or not, the landord gets its price from him, and to seep body and soul together, he must work constantly and put all his family at tasks. His sons begin to do some cind of service almost as soon as they an walk. Then they are promoted to the plow, or otherwise to assist about the farm. If such a boy can get a job in the barns or stables, his highest ambiion is achieved.

The misery of the bulk of agricultural laborers in over-crowded England is indescribable. Numbers have of recent vears been sent to Canada and Australia by popular subscription, but the mass which remains is in no better condition than before. Not a little of this is due to himself. Many landlords do their est to improve the condition of their aborers, but those who should benefit y their efforts, are so steeped in ignorance and so unmanued by hardship, that hey are incapable of assisting their benfactors in their good work.

An English writer not long ago said: Though slavery has been unknown in England for centuries, we have, in the agricultural laborer, a creature, who is a slave in everything but name. He is a vassal of the soil. He sclongs to the Blank Deeds, Real Estate Mortgages, same estate his grandfather did, just as Bills of Sale, Band for Doed, a Russian serf belonged with the land he

> The Wear of English Coins. (World of Wenders.)

More than 11,000 pounds sterling worth of silver is wasted every year in the course of the circulation of crowns, dorins, shillings and sixpences, One hundred sovereigns of the date of 1820, which were weighed in 1859 by Mr. Milcirculation which was estimated at 1 pound is and 7d. There is, therefore, more waste produced in the circulation of gold and silver coins than is generally

A coin when turned out of the mint brand new has a number of vicissitudes to pass through before it is again called in. It is constantly being abraded, even by handling. An ordinary chemical balance which will turn the 1-1,000th part of a grain, will not show that a shilling has lost in weight when the thumb has been rubbed over it; but one of the feats performed by the induction balance-an electrical instrument widely different from the chemical balance has been to show that a coin undergoes less even when a finger is rubbed over it. It will readily be understood, therefore, that in the numberless hand lings a coin has to submit to in the course of years the loss arising therefrom becomes at last sensible to the ordinary balance. Coins likewise suffer much loss in weight by abrading each other's surface when jingling in the pocket, and they are damaged each time a shopman rings them on his table to see whether they are genuine or not. Every minute particle of matter removed in these or other ways lessen the weight of the coins, and makes them look old; and in the lesser coins, which are much used, this proceeds to such an extent that every one knows the diffi-culty experienced in telling three-penny from a four-penny bit.

Mr. Miller some years ago made a number of precise experiments, from which it was ascertained that 100 pounds sterling worth of sovereigns lost 3 pounds 9 shillings and 84 pence of their value in a hundree years; similarly 100 pounds sterling worth of half-crowns lost 13 pounds, 11 shillings and 8.8 pence; 100 pounds sterling worth of shillings, 36 pounds, 14 shillings and 3.1 pence; and 100 pounds sterling worth of sixpences lost 50 bounds, 18 shillings and 9.8 pence in value, or more than one-half in the hundred years. It will be noted here with regard to the silver coins that the less value the greater amount of wear. These lesser coins are, of course, most used; and so in case of a sixpence, a century's wear reduces it to half its original volume.
