OUR EXPOSITION LETTER.

The grounds about the buildings are now dotted in living green, a foot high, or more, white clover and the deep green, moss-like Bermuda grass, forming the ground-work of a beautiful picture, while patches of radiant flowers of a thousand different hues and odors, fill the air with their delightful perfumes, the live oaks and other trees adding their grateful beauties to the scene. The many little parks, scattered like oases over the city, serve as breathing places for the populace and are covered on the warm afternoons with children, and visitors, who romp or lounge over the grassy sward. The present is really the best time for people to visit the city, the Exposition not only being complete but all nature adding her numerous charms to delight the eye of the stranger.

The awards recently made in the department of citrus fruits, have occasioned more popular comment than any hitherto made. The chief competition was between California and Florida, whose displays have been a source of constant interest and pleasure to all lovers of semi-tropic fruits. The first named state carried off a number of premiums on oranges, including two gold and several silver medals, one for best collection of not less than twenty varieties, while Florida took the special sweepstake premium, a gold medal and $250 for best general display from any state; Mexico was awarded a gold medal and $100 for best collection, not less than twenty varieties from any foreign country, and the state of Sonora, a silver medal and $50 for ten varieties. Mississippi and Louisiana also received some minor awards, and general satisfaction seems to have been secured, although there has been a little sparring between the two citrus fruit growing states. The tables in Horticultural Hall covered with these golden fruits, with thousands of blooming pot plants on every side, make a most interesting and fascinating scene, especially so to Northern people, and one that will no doubt lure many to the climates where such scenes are native to the manor born.

The railroads entering here, have kept up a constant rivalry as to which should have the honor of carrying the greatest number of passengers to the Exposition, and so far the great Louisville & Nashville railway is conceded the palm, tens of thousands having come in over that popular line, and its General Passenger Agent Mr. is correspondingly happy. This line brings visitors either via St. Louis or Cincinnati, through Louisville, Nashville and Mobile, and over the most interesting and novel territory of the southern country, and through industrial sections just now attracting the greatest attention from investors and settlers. It makes a very fine exhibit in the Government building, of the ores and crops, timbers and other resources for which its line and branches are famous.

The great convention of the Western Waterways improvement association, was held here in Music Hall, April 7th and 8th, and was attended by about a thousand delegates, representing boards of trade, produce exchanges, agricultural organizations, etc., of the twenty-one states and territories interested in the improvement of the Mississippi River and its numerous tributaries. Gov. Lowry presided, Mr. Dore, of Illinois, being temporary chairman, and making an eloquent appeal in behalf of the Hennepin Canal. Congressman Murphy, of Iowa, was also present and took an active part in the proceedings, which included an able address by Judge Blake, of South Bend, Indiana, member of the River Commission. All the speeches and resolutions were marked with a determination to have justice done to our water ways; the members of the convention made a trip to the Jetties.

WISCONSIN. Was admitted into the Union in 1848 and has to-day a population only a little short of 1,500,000. Her agricultural, mining and manufacturing industries have increased very rapidly. She is very proud of her great metropolis, Milwaukee with a population approaching 200,000, the home of her energetic and business-like commissioner, Hon. E. D. Holton who has done so much to make his state's display at the World's Fair a representative one, and has given liberally of his valuable time and private resources, as shown by the specimens of timber—both soft and hard wood. Wisconsin is the lumberman's paradise, and many fortunes have been made out of her almost inexhaustible forests. She exports largely to Europe, and (CONCLUDED ON EIGHTH PAGE)
