It will be just a shade out of proportion—five saloons, and but one church and one school building—but it is the part of wisdom to embrace all such blessings as they present themselves.
The City Bakery is in receipt of a car-load of the "Cream" and "Fancy" brands of the celebrated Grand Island Flour—the house-keepers' delight—and the finest flour offered for sale in the city.

The saloon men refuse to give anything to support the Night Watchman, (Welsh), but will each subscribe $10 for a man to be chosen by them. Pretty good reason why the citizens ought to retain the present man.
The Culbertson skating rink was thrown open to the public on Tuesday evening and by Saturday evening a young man by the name of George Siglinger had made sufficient progress toward expert proficiency as to be able to break a leg.
The Park block has been plowed up, this week, preparatory to setting out trees. We also notice that a number of residents in that neighborhood are doing likewise, and that a general move in the line of improvement and embellishment is progressing.
The patent bird cage received by the B. & M. surgeon at Prof. Martin's first grand prize distribution, Monday evening, was decidedly unique in design, resembling the old style "hoops" in vogue some years since, in every essential particular—save in proportions.
Although portions of the striking machine that has been located on the corner of Main and Dennison streets for the past ten days, have been carried away and destroyed, the "old thing" has been repeatedly repaired, and is still in the ring, with as large a number of "heavy hitters" hanging around as ever.
While our business men are being worked for advertising and job work and subscriptions and, well, we will no further enumerate, by Tom, Dick and Harry, with untiring energy and perseverance, we hope they will not forget THE TRIBUNE, although we will covenant not to bore them to death with such importunities.

She has already sent us two educational institutions, with all needed scientific apparatus, saloons, and a democratic newspaper, to complete the work of evangelizing this community. Ora pro nobis.

We were in error in our last issue in locating Philip Katzenmyer's residence. Mr. K. is building just south of J. A. Snyder. The same will be veneered with brick, and will be a very creditable addition to the residence part of our town.

A gentleman by the name of Bowman, from Iowa, has commenced the erection of a residence on the corner east of the school house. We understand that Mr. Bowman comes to our city for the purpose of starting a Democratic newspaper, which with R. O'Donnell of Hastings, who will commence their missionary work from that stand on or about June 1st, or as soon after the first as the preliminaries required by law for the establishment of a saloon have been complied with. The usual course of study will be observed, and graduates will receive the highest degrees bestowed ordinarily.
Great Reduction in Watches and Jewelry at McCracken's.
A resident of our town, while under the beatific influence of coffin varnish, came near losing his life at the round house, Monday night. While in a state of intoxication, and wandering around the shop, he must have fallen into the pit of the ponderous turn-table, and gone to sleep. During the night the turn-table was used, and fortunately for the man in the pit, one of the men who was assisting in moving the table, and who carried a torch, spied the form of the sleeping person, else the probabilities are, we would have had another temperance lecture to present to our readers, and another soul would have been ushered into eternity.

BUILDING NOTES.—Work on the foundation of the Catholic Church has commenced, and the superstructure will be carried right up. The church will be a fine building, 32x50, with a rear addition for vestry rooms, 12x37, with tower and other artistic effects. A parsonage, 18x24, is also in course of erection. The Catholic people are working with their usual zeal in this matter, and will undoubtedly have a handsome property. * * The Methodists are pushing the foundation for their house of worship along rapidly, and are about ready to commence work on the building proper. * * Messrs. Welsh and Boyd have a house well under way, north of the school building, and will, we are informed, build three more dwellings at once, all for rent. * * A. E. Lytle commenced the erection of his residence on Main Avenue, just north of Mr. Trowbridge's handsome property, the first of the week.
Boston Brown Bread at the City Bakery constantly.
A tramp entered the room of one of the coal-heavers at Akron, some days since, and took a suit of clothing hanging therein, leaving his own time-worn garments in the place of the borrowed (?) ones. Ascertaining, the following day, that a well-dressed tramp was at Eckley, the coal-heaver took the train for that station, where the would-be gentlemanly tramp was detained by the agent, who promised the tramp transportation on the coming train. The clothing worn by the tramp proved to be the coal-heaver's, and his trampship was unceremoniously disrobed, and having been given what remained of a pair of overalls and a blouse, he was promptly bounced. The tramp struck the road running, and those who witnessed the tramp's exit, think he is running yet, somewhere down in Kansas.
House plants for sale at the Metropolitan Drug Store.
A very neat (and withal practical) joke was perpetrated by Inspector Lee of the U. S. Interior Department upon the land attorneys at Oberlin, Kansas, recently. The Inspector assumed the role of a land seeker, and visited each land man in the town, inquiring concerning the timber-claim relinquishments in their possession. Every man took the bait in a surprisingly voracious manner, and gave Lee the information desired, whereupon the Inspector went to the local U. S. land office at Oberlin and instead of making application for the numerous and sundry timber claims, had them all cancelled. Oberlin land men are very cute—not men that can't learn and profit—and we imagine that the person who catches them napping again will be smooth, very.
For pumps and pipes go to Spanogle & Rinker.
Some queer things have transpired in this city, the past few weeks, that evidently merit investigation; and it is rather surprising, indeed, that those parties interested do not investigate the affair fully and conclusively. Whatever other facts exist, it is evident that some one is short $800, if the statements concerning the matter are veracious. If such is the case, the guilty party should be ferreted out and just punishment meted to the same. If, on the other hand, current statements are false, unjust suspicions should be removed. While there seems to be an inclination to smooth over and suppress, it were much better that the real facts in the case be made public.
Two sets of harness, (one light and one heavy), for sale at B. F. Olecott's, very cheap.
CLOSE CALL.—Roadmaster Phelan's youngest child narrowly escaped death by poison, Wednesday afternoon. The poison, in the shape of strychnine pills, sugar-coated, was administered to the little one by older sisters, who were innocently "playing doctor," and but for the timely arrival of a physician the baby must have died in terrible agony. The doctor reports the child as doing very well at last account. The poison was supposed to be beyond the reach of the children.
Blue grass and white clover for sale at Spanogle & Rinker's implement house.
The saloon man at Indianola had such a rustle to get a sufficient number of resident free-holders on his petition, that three of the board of trustees of that village had to help him out—and petition their honorable selves.

W. J. McGillin, Manager of the Harlem Cattle Co., with headquarters at Stratton, was in town, Saturday and Sunday, expecting a shipment of Iowa stock to arrive here on the latter day. The company has recently become owner of a ranch in Indian Territory, upon which they have some 12,000 head of stock, four or five thousand of which they will probably move up to their ranch in this section, this year. The company has been making large additions to their range in the vicinity of Stratton, by purchase, but having a capital stock of $500,000, they have not drawn very heavily upon their resources.
Lewis Pate came up from Friendville, Sunday night, on a week's visit to his brothers in this vicinity. He had quite an experience en-route, with the conductor who had charge of the train. Being late upon his arrival at the depot at Friendville, he barely succeeded in getting on the front steps of the baggage car, after repeated attempts, supposing that he could get back to the coach. About four miles out of Friendville, the train was stopped, and Mr. Pate of course took advantage of the occasion to board one of the coaches, or rather to attempt to do so, as every attempt was frustrated by the conductor and crew, who fired him off repeatedly into the ditch, notwithstanding Mr. Pate's protestations that he didn't want to steal his way but wanted to pay his fare. As the train moved out, Mr. Pate tried to board each car, and was repeatedly thrown off, until the train had attained such a speed and he was so exhausted as to be unable to make further effort, and he was compelled to walk to the next station, a tiresome journey through the darkness of night. The conductor must have taken Mr. Pate for a would-be robber, as he went so far as to threaten to shoot him if he attempted to board the train.
We understand that whiskey, women and cards in McCook are receiving the attention of the grand jury now in session at Indianola. Judge Gaslin is no compromise-policy man on these points, and should the grand jury find any indictments and the offenders be found guilty, somebody will think that the mills of the gods grind terribly fine.
