

THE result of Tuesday's election indicates clearly, and in tones unmistakable, the temper of that portion of the voters of this county who have ever been "left out in the cold," through the over-reaching selfishness of some on the one hand and treachery at home on the other. It shows a determination to no longer brook humiliation and defeat through an inclination, which has heretofore operated, to concede and compromise, when such measures, so conducive to party harmony and success, are not appreciated and recognized. It is the expression of a desire for equity, long denied, but finally compassed, by a popular and almost unanimous recognition of the local issue forced upon them. An issue at once impolitic and unnecessary, in view of the honorable and more than equitable concessions and overtures made on the part of the leaders in this section of the county, to no avail. So much for the "straws."

The principle, as well as many of the fruits, of a refusal to ratify party nominations, is not without its undesirable phases, and is scarcely less reprehensible than the spirit of selfishness, which makes such courses necessary at times, in order to secure just representation. It is the exception—not that based on trivial or personal differences—but that having justice and fairness on its side, that is worthy of defense.

THE TRIBUNE hopes the situation will be taken in good part, that the lesson may be a profitable one, and that in the future self and locality may not assume everything, but that the existence of every locality will be recognized and their several righteous claims be properly met.

In concluding this homily we recognize that some feeling has been engendered, perforce of Tuesday's results, but the issue—strictly a local one—was not invited by the voters of this city, but when it was forced upon them, they took hold of the most potential means at their hands to sustain their city, independent of party affiliations.

THE Democrats confidently assert that Mississippi has gone Democratic.

THE United States army must be mobilized at once. The blood-curdling cry of "Settlers in Oklahoma" is sounded. Fall into rank, move rapidly upon the enemy and—find nothing.

THE mine of fourth class postoffice is a rich one and is still worked with a full force. The rate of removals for offensive partisanship is now one hundred a day. The days are not as long as they were, either.

MARK TWAIN always was a "lectic peculiar." Now he don't know whether, in the sweet subsequently, he wants to walk the golden streets, or to perambulate the murkier regions of his satanic majesty's domain, observe: "Well, I don't know where I am going to. It is a matter of a good deal of doubt, and I am afraid, of indifference to me, for I have friends in both places."

FERDY WARD has been graciously donated ten year's imprisonment at hard labor as a reward for his bank swindling operations in connection with the Marine bank, wherein the departed General Grant was financially ruined. Ward received his sentence with as much nonchalance as a veritable buccaneer. The judge in issuing the decree was sorry only that he could not give the villain ten years more.

LATER developments reveal the fact that the rogueries perpetrated by Reno Montgomery, late of the Cambridge Kaleidoscope, reach a much larger total than was at first intimated. It appears that he forged at least three checks, aggregating $2,200, in addition to forging his wife's name to a mortgage. He departed hence, in company with another woman, with about $3,000 in cool cash in his jeans, leaving behind him a wife and baby in destitution. The Chemical of New York is after him, and unless he is unusually smooth, he will speedily ornament (?) the pen.

A CASE of more than ordinary interest was decided last week, at Sutton. A Mrs. Percival obtained judgment for $2,500 against John Curran, a saloon keeper, for causing the death of her husband, Percival, who was about sixty years of age, who got beastly drunk in the saloons of Sutton on a winter's day three years ago, and in the evening started for home, three miles distant, in a heavy snow storm. He was intoxicated, and no doubt fell down and died from cold. He was found frozen stiff next morning a short distance from his home. This decision carries out one of the wise provisions of the Slocum liquor law, which makes all saloon keepers liable for any damages resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors.—Hastings Gazette-Journal.

THE annual report of the Utah commission has been submitted to the secretary of the interior, and shows that the work of the past year has met with some gratifying results. The point has surely been reached where no person living in polygamy can vote or hold office. Notwithstanding this nearly all the officers chosen at the last election were Mormons who, although they do not actually live in polygamy, subscribe to the doctrine of plural wives. The commissioners say there have been but few polygamist marriages during the past year but this arises from the enforcement of the present laws and not from any change of sentiment on the part of the Mormons. Should any weakness be shown in enforcing the laws, the report states that polygamy marriage would be as frequent as ever. The course of certain polygamists in declaring their intention of obeying the law in the future has aroused the wrath of the church. This shows evidence of internal dissensions and is an encouraging sign. The commission urges that no step backward be taken in legislature, as it would give great aid to the church in crushing out this growing spirit of opposition.
