

Is There a Cure for Consumption?
The patient commences in time the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," and exercises proper care, allowed to run his course too long all medicine is powerless to stay it. Dr. Pierce never deceives a patient by holding out a false hope for the sake of pecuniary gain. The "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured thousands of patients who had nothing else seemed to avail. Your druggist has it. Send two stamps for Dr. Pierce's complete treatise on consumption with numerous testimonials. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

A NEW IDEA embraced in Ely's Cream Balm. Catarrh is cured by cleansing and healing, not by drying up. It is not a liquid or snuff, but is easily applied with the finger. Its effect is magical and a thorough treatment will cure the worst cases. Price 50 cents. At druggists. 60 cents by mail. Ely Bros., Owego, N. Y.

I HAVE BEEN AFFLICTED with catarrh for 20 years. It had become chronic, and there was a constant dropping of mucous matter from the roof of my mouth. It extended to my throat, causing hoarseness and great difficulty in speaking; indeed for years I was not able to speak more than thirty minutes, and often this with great difficulty. I also to a great extent, lost the sense of hearing in the left ear, and of taste. By the use of Ely's Cream Balm I have received more relief than from all other remedies beside. All dropping of mucous has ceased and my voice and hearing are greatly improved.—[Jas. W. Davidson, Attorney at Law, Monmouth, Warren Co., Ill.]

ANGLEWORM CULTURE.

Experimenting With a View to Supplying Florida Fishermen With Bait.

A Green Cove Springs, Fla., correspondent of The New York Sun writes: The St. John's river is fairly alive with fishes. "Teeming with fish and fishing with teams," is the way a newspaper of the river region headed an item about carting away loads of fish to be used for fertilizing orange trees. But there is a great scarcity of bait throughout this region. To the majority of men and boys who come down here from the north bait means angorworms, fish-worms, earth-worms—that species of the genus lumbricus which can be found anywhere in the north in sizes to fit any kind of hook by simply going around behind the barn and turning up the mold with a spade. But you could turn up a million acres in Florida without unearthing a solitary angorworm. The lumbricus doesn't know anything about subsisting on canned provisions from Chicago and New York, and so he hasn't tried to live in Florida.

Various substitutes for the angorworm are used by the native Florida anglers—such as fragments of dismembered crabs, cut-bait, cotton rolled in dough, chunks of canned beef, and bonnet-worms. To get crabs for bait you must have a string with a piece of meat on the end of it and a scoop net, and lots of time and patience. To procure a supply of cut-bait you must hire a dinky to go out with a cast net and get some shiners or hook you a catfish and cut some strips from along his backbone. This latter scheme for getting cut-bait is pursued to such an extent that you can hardly find a big catfish that hasn't scars on his back where strips of bait have been taken off. Cotton and dough make an easy bait to get, but a hard one to catch fish with, and the same is true of Chicago canned bait. Bonnet-worms are by far the most alluring bait procurable, but they are hard to get. It is necessary to go to the mouth of some creek where there are lily-pads, and hunt among them for pads that have a hole running down into the stem. At the bottom of this hole the bonnet-worm is found—sometimes. But he is made of stuff very closely resembling that of which the jelly-fish is composed, and therefore is not durable enough for the ordinary wear and tear to which bait, even in good fishing water, is subjected.

In view of the scarcity of bait and of the demand for the always reliable angorworm a lady of this town has started an angorworm nursery. The worms for making this interesting experiment were procured in the north last fall and brought in a small wooden pail filled with rich mold. Upon arriving here the pail of worms was buried in a corner of the dooryard, half the mold having been taken out and an equal quantity of Florida soil or sand put in, and holes having been cut in the sides of the pail to admit of the worms going out and returning in case they might be disposed to explore the new elements by which they were to be surrounded. Recognizing the fact that if angorworm culture was to be made a success in Florida it must be through the worms adapting themselves to the soil, and not by fitting the sand for the worms, the lady has done nothing to improve the quality of the soil surrounding her interesting brood, but has simply made their native mold half sand, as stated, and is anxiously noting the results of this dilution.

As the worms were fortunately transplanted deep enough to make them below the "frost line," they were not injured by the recent freeze. In the two months that have elapsed since they were introduced into Florida soil they have not perceptibly fallen away in size, but they have lost much of their conspicuous and alluring pink color, and have taken on a yellowish tinge. Whether this is due to making the mold half sand, or is a symptom of biliousness, has not been ascertained. A few grains of quinine have been stirred into the pail, and if the worms resume their original color it will be reasonable to infer that their off-color appearance was due to malarious influences. Much depends upon the settlement of this point, for, even if they should grow beyond all expectation in their new element and yet take on the color of the sand, they would be almost invisible in water, and consequently of no practical value as bait. Thus far they have seemed to be shy of the unfertilized sand outside, and have kept knotted together near the center of their pail.

What Mars Wants.
They say the planet Mars, The slayer of the stars, Is fairly filled with beings who have cut their optic teeth; And comet-catchers swear That far above the air They're trying to communicate with worlds which rob beneath.
What can the creatures want? We wonder if they're gaunt And famishing for fodder, or are suffering from a drought? Perhaps, deprived of drink, They're giving us the wink. In hopes we'll shoot some spirits thro' the sky into each mouth.
Ah, no! they are too fly For earthly things to sigh. The reason they are signaling they have an end in view; They're trying to communicate with worlds Who never asked the question, "Is it cold enough for you?" —Kryps in New York Morning Journal.

Evidence That It Moves.
Surely the world moves. To-day there are 75,000 women in Massachusetts alone who are self-supporting. Two generations ago no preparation was made for women's education, a little reading, a little writing and arithmetic, a little music and dancing. Not one college for women and not one educational college in the world. In the United States to-day there are 159 co-educational institutions. In 1841 women were permitted to engage in but seven occupations, to-day 289 distinct trades and professions are open to them. Let it be said to the credit of women that it is largely through their own efforts that these changes have been brought about.—Worcester (Mass.) Journal.

Biblical Examples.

A bright five-year-old at the Highlands, who, it will be needless to say, is an interested member of the Sunday school, was watching the moving of a family of boys across the street with great anticipation written in his face. His mother, noticing it, told him she didn't want him to play with those boys because they were Jews.

"Well, mamma," said the bright little fellow, after a moment's reflection, "wasn't Jesus Christ a Jew?"
Logical inference, surely. The same boy on another occasion was being admonished for his unruly behavior.
"Why," said his grandmother with a sigh. "I don't know what will become of you if you are such a bad boy."
"Grandma," said he, his bright black eyes twinkling and his voice full of hope for his own future, "wasn't St. Paul a bad man once? and he turned out well."

If that boy keeps on we shall see him at the bar or in the pulpit before many years.—[Profund Theologian in the Boston Gazette.]

Theological Geography.
A little boy who had heard a good deal about the work of the Home Missionary Society in the territories, was seen putting away carefully a cent which had been given him to spend.

"What are you saving your money for?" he was asked.
"Oh," was the reply, "I'm going to keep all my pennies till I get a lot, and then I'm going to send 'em all out West to Jesus!" —[Sunday School Visitor in Boston Record.]

The late State Chemist of Delaware, Prof. Chas. P. Williams, says that Red Star Cough Cure is safe and valuable and contains neither morphia, opium nor any other narcotic poison. The price is only 25 cents.

Sam Jones on Orthodoxy.
God knocked the orthodoxy out of Peter 1,800 years ago. Then the Jews couldn't see how God could save a gentile, and now, after 1,800 years, we are here and cannot see how God can save a Jew. What is man's orthodoxy? Nothing else but a fishing pole and line. If a fellow is eternally fixing on his tackle, how's he ever going to catch fish? The trouble with the preachers in Chicago is that they think God loves a christian better than a sinner, a church-member better than a bar-keeper. If we put the thing in the right light we could understand that Christ died because God loved us. Whatever man may have, if the spirit of love is wanting, he misses everything.

When Does Old Age Begin?

When does old age begin? At forty-five, it is said, the amount of combustion which keeps the furnace of the human body in blast commences to decrease and diminishes until three-score years and ten, more or less, when the fires are drawn and the flickering flames die out. That is the physiological way of looking at it. But some men are old before they are out of their teens, while others apparently never grow old, though they live to be centenarians. The poet's way of looking at it is the best:
"Call him not old whose visionary brain Holds o'er the past its undivided reign. For him in vain the envious seasons roll Who bears eternal summer in his soul."

This at least seems to be the way in which David Littell, of Sumner, Ia., looks at life, for though now in his eightieth year he has taken a new lease on life and is apparently determined to hold on to it. Athlophoros did it for him and he acknowledges his debt to it in terms of enthusiasm. Mr. Littell tells his own story:
"I was past seventy-seven and had been afflicted with rheumatism three years and eight months. I had lost one third of my weight and could not walk, but shuffled along with crutches. Sleep had deserted me, my nerves were all shattered, and there was no strength in my hands, wrists, knees or feet. I could not sit down or get up out of a chair without help, and oh! such pain, worse at night than in the day. There was neither sleep nor rest, and the outlook was painful in the extreme.

"Oh thank, be to God and Brother Inskip for sending me a paper containing a notice of the cures made by Athlophoros and thanks be to you for sending me a bottle. It appears to me the hand of God is in it all the way, and if you did not hear me shout, why then I did not shout loud enough that is all. The medicine arrived one Saturday night after I had gone to bed. In the morning my son prepared me a dose of two teaspoonfuls in milk. I took it and felt it at once all over. After that I took but one teaspoonful at a time until I had finished the bottle. How did it act? Why, like a charm. On Monday morning I rose, dressed, and walked out into the kitchen without crutches or cane and wished them all a happy New Year.

"My pain is all gone and I rest well. My son, seeing such a great change in me, wrote for ten bottles in order, as he says, to make a permanent cure of it. It is all more like a dream than reality. I have written to four of my friends who are afflicted with rheumatism about the great medicine and I shall write to others, and in this way try to pay the debt of gratitude.

"Some fourteen months ago," says A. Hayward, of Burlington, Ia., "I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism. I tried a dozen different kinds of medicine said to cure rheumatism, but to no purpose. Finally, I procured a bottle of Athlophoros. After using the bottle it did not do much good. I bought another, but did not have to use more than a third of the second bottle before I was entirely cured. From that time up to the present I have never had anything like rheumatic pains, and I thank Athlophoros for the cure."

Thomas McCue, Bush's block, Dubuque, Iowa, whose wife was cured by Athlophoros of a terrible case of rheumatism, declares it was "truly a miracle in my wife's case."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed, ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.
