There are simple means by which the hands may be kept in a presentable condition, as the use of glycerine or honey after washing them, and a little bran or oatmeal to be used sometimes instead of soap. Wearing gloves when the work is rough or dirty is quite admissible. Ladies who have rough, coarse hands should rub them with cream at night and may wear loose gloves. Should the hands become hard and horny, treat them with pumistone and lemon. Lemon is always good for the hands; it cleanses them as well as soap and makes them soft.

BILL NYE.

A Somewhat Gloomy but Timely Topic Not Flippantly but Humorously Discussed.

The subject of what we shall do with ourselves after death, writes Bill Nye to The Boston Globe, is one that should be duly considered at an early date. In all seriousness, the soul is not the only thing to be looked after, either during life or after death. We are too prone to neglect our health during life and then bequeath our accumulated microbes and other results of a long and perhaps, crooked career to some sightly cemetery set on a hill like a city that can not be hid.

Longevity is a good thing, though I have known public men to overdo it. To die at the proper moment and leave a good impression on history is one of the lost arts. To flicker out of life with the applause of a great people still ringthat is born of woman -and the majority of them are that way-are too prone to linger on this side of eternity until they have done some little thing that is never properly explained on their tomb-

But after death, what shall we do with ourselves? In this brief treatise I dare not attempt to be thorough, or even lucid. Leaving others who know all about it to state exactly what disposition will be made of our souls, let us look into the matter of what we shall do with our bodies.

I hope that what I may say will not be regarded as flippant, for this is no place for flippancy, but allow me to medicine, and well worth the trial by any speak plainly of it as I would on any sufferer from rheumatism.' other subject concerning our health.

Death has some very peculiar characteristics. For instance, it will wake up the dormant old crank, who has never missed a funeral for sixty years. He goes for miles to see "deceased." It is his holiday. It is the one saving sport in his otherwise joyless life.. We all remember him. He is sometimes a

The thought that the time will come some day when this man will put on his funeral clothes and come to my funeral makes my hair rise up on end. He can not gloat over me now, but the day may come when I shall lie low, instead of lying otherwise, as I do now; and he may outlive me and come to see me properly buried. Then he will enjoy himself! Ah, what a blessed relief it would be could I hover over doorway when he comes, and hear my footman announce to the old vulture that he "is a little late, as Mr. Nye was put in the kiln

I could suffer a good deal through life | have not suffered any since." if I knew that I could at last head off the funeral fiend-the man who wouldn't loan me a dollar when I was struggling for grub, but who cheerfully visits my funeral and shows his approval in every rapidly become popular. In the first place, if the space between life and physical annihilation could be made just as narrow as possible, it would be far more cheerful to consider. Death itself is cruel enough, but to add to it a hippodrome of a public funeral and turn our parlors into a gaudy morgue, and then repose in a crowded cemetery till the cit, wants the ground for a park, and then to pick up our crumbling bones and move away to a new grave, is not cheerful to contem-

It could be made to teach us pledged to genuine national reform. British territory in 1871. Let the nation try it, and if it works all right on the nation I will try it myself. Then I am committed to the unlimited soil with the poisonous gases which the poor, as well as the rich, may indulge in after death. Death should end our career, so far as earthly affairs go, but with the embarrassing prospects of a premature burial, the cheerful chances of being boiled by the janitor of a medical college and our skeletons wired together and hung in a museum, and the opportunity, if we escape the first two, of being tipped out of our graves by a flood, an earthquake, or the act of the common council, it is no wonder that people cling to life. If I thought that for centuries after my decease my long but symmetrical skeleton would be used night after night in a nude condition to illustrate fracture of the tibia, I wouldn't be able to sleep nights.

"Why, I thought your father had the rheumatism."

"Oh, yes, so he has; he always has that. I forgot all about it.'

And so it is with many people who suffer with the most aggravating pains. They hobble around as best they can and get very little or no sympathy on account of their healthful look, and from the fact that it is only rheumatism and they always have it. What pains are more severe than those from rheumatism? Said W. S. Hopkins, living at No. 179 C Avenue, Cedar Rapids, Iowa:

"My wife and daughter were both stricken with inflammatory rheumatism at the same time. The lower limbs were much swollen. The pain seemed almost beyond endurance. Sleep was out of the question. They suffered so much that to move or even touch the sheet on the bed would cause the most violent pain. They were confined to the bed four weeks. During in the ears is a good thing; but man ing that time and previously, I bought many kinds of medicines. Then I employed a physician, but nothing gave relief until I bought some Athlophoros, which I had heard of, and I am glad to say in a very short time the swelling was reduced, the pain gone and they were entirely well."

> "How much did they take, Mr. Hopkins?" "I think it was three bottles in all." "Have either of them had any return of the rheumatism?"

> "Not in the least." "It was rather a strange coincidence, both having an attack at the same time?" "Yes, it was, but such was the case, strange as it may seem. They were both helpless, but are now well, and all from the use of Athlophoros. It is an excellent

> Mrs. C. J. Albeck, living at No. 1067 Clay street, Dubuque, has used Athlophoros, and gives this as her experience with it: "Yes, I have used it and it cured me. Up to the time I used it, which was in Febru ary, 1884, I was subject to frequent attacks of inflammatory rheumatism and have been nearly all my life. At times I would be almost helpless. As sure as I would take a little cold I would have an attack of rheumatism, sometimes in my lower limbs and at others in my arms. When I commenced with Athlophoros I was carrying my right arm in a sling. It was very much swollen and I could not move my fingers without causing me considerable pain. One evening, while I was suffering in this way, I heard of Athlophoros, and the wonderful cure it had made in Mrs. McCue's case. The next day I sent for a bottle and commenced using it at once. I was a little afraid of it at first, on account of the buzzing sensation it caused in my head, but reduced the dose and kept taking it regularly. It worked like a charm. The swelling and pain were gone, my rheumatism was well, and I had free use of my

South African Diamonds.

Early in 1867, the first South African diamond was brought to the town of Colesberg by a hunter named O'Reillly to whom it had been given by a Dutch boer family named Jacobs whose child had found it in her play. It was carried to the Paris exposition, and by the following year diamond digging had been begun in earnest. In 1869 the African Kohinoor valued at $150,000 was discovered. By 1870 public attention had become completely aroused and capitalists began to invest in the enterprises. In 1870 there were 40,000 people within a ine of seventy miles on the banks of the Vaal river. The South African diamond fields are situated chiefly in the colony of a valuable lesson.
