

SETTLED THE BILL.

An Old Fellow Who Learned to Admire a Circuit Rider. A circuit rider, in a neighborhood with which he was unacquainted, stopped a man in the road and asked: "My friend, can you tell me of a place where a preacher can stay all night without money and without price?"

HOW THE SPOTTERS SPOT.

The Man with the Beans and Evangelize with Her Pincushion. "I took notice to-day," began a Cambridge horse-car conductor last evening, "that a number of conductors on the Middlesex road have been pulled off for knocking down fares. I am surprised at their doing anything of that kind after getting that 'extra quarter.' I don't believe there is a conductor on the Cambridge road who knocks down fares now. The boys use the road well and the road uses us well. As far as I know, no spotters are riding about in the cars now."

Comfortable Suicide.

One Italian resident of San Francisco made a unique record by smoking himself to death with a blanketed peanut roaster, but his style was not considered good because of the charcoal fumes from the deadly weapon escaped and nearly walled his wife, mother-in-law and three children into the harp-players' paradise along with him. The Chinese and French, the doctor observed, perform their last task in the easiest manner of most nationalities, the latter with their little charcoal loaded braziers, and the former with opium. The smart Chinaman, who wants to be foghish, and rams his opium pill home with a drink of vinegar. Vinegar dissolves the drug, forming an active tincture, in medical parlance, and sets to work in more of a hurry than the lazy drug exhibits when it is not driven by other agents.—[San Francisco Alta.]

Dubuque Daily Telegraph.

"A gentleman connected with the Telegraph has tested Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhea medicine, and declares that it is all that its manufacturer claims it to be. A few days ago he was attacked with a severe colic, and procuring a bottle took one dose. The effect was instantaneous. A gentle, pleasing heat was diffused throughout the stomach, the cramps and diarrhea disappeared, and in a few hours the sufferer was as well as ever. He is enthusiastic in his praises of the medicine and heartily recommends it to all who may be afflicted as he was. A bottle should be in every household, for no one can tell when he or she may need it."

"I Don't Want Relief, But Cure."

An Important Arrest. The arrest of a suspicious character upon his general appearance, movements or companionship, without waiting until he has robbed a traveler, fired a house, or murdered a fellow-man, is an important function of a shrewd detective. He Smoked and Prayed. The most absent-minded man in the world has been found, and he lives in Buffalo. He tells the story himself, as follows: "You know I am not awfully religious, but when a child I was taught to say my prayers at night. I am glad to say I have stuck to it ever since and generally manage to put in a few anyhow nearly every time I go to bed. A short time ago I went to my room as usual smoking a cigar, and continued right along puffing while I was undressing. Just before getting into bed I knelt down as usual, and when through, suddenly discovered that I had been taking my smoke as comfortable as you please while offering up my devotions. It struck me as being a little off color."—[Buffalo Courier.]

American Naval Engineers. Men who remember forty years back can recall the time when in both the British and American navies the engineer was considered as but little above a common sailor, a sort of blacksmith adrift, to be kept in coventry by the officers. But that state of affairs vanished with the progress of steam and the realization on the part of the government and the service that there was as great a demand for skill, pluck and trained intelligence in the engine room as on the quarter deck. Americans woke up to this truth before it dawned on the English mind, and to-day there is no class in the service more intelligent, more deserving or more respected than the engineers, who are as thorough gentlemen and as agreeable men of the world as the most learned and traveled admirals.—[Boston Transcript.]

How About the Fiji Senators? Early last week a member of the British house of lords had a fist fight with a candidate for the house of commons. On Friday a member of the United States congress knocked another member down with his fist. On Saturday a member of the French senate fought a duel with the minister of war. Having heard the reports from the three leading nations of the civilized side of the world, we should now be pleased to know what the statesmen of the Fiji Islands and the Hottentot country did to distinguish themselves last week.—[Pittsburg Post.]
