How to Control Effectually All Such Morrible Habits.

Ebchester, N. Y., Post-Express. A gentleman who has spent the summer abroad, said to our reporter, that the thing that impressed him most of all was the number of holidays one encounters abroad and the little anxiety the people display in the conduct of business affairs. "Men boast here," he said, "that they work for years without a day off; in Europe that would be considered a crime."

Mr. H. H. Warner, who was present at the time, said, "This is the first summer in years that I have not spent on the water. Been too busy."

"Then, I suppose you have been advertising extensively?" "Not at all. We have always heretofore closed our laboratory during July, August and September, but this summer we have kept it running day and night to supply the demand, which has been three times greater than ever before in our history at this season."

"How do you account for this?"

"The increase" has come from the universal recognition of the excellence of our preparations. We have been nearly ten years before the public and the sales are constantly increasing while our newspaper advertising is constantly diminishing. Why, high scientific and medical authoriities, now publicly concede that our Warner's safe cure is the only scientific specific many diseases caused by them." "Have you evidence of this?"

"Abundance! Only a few weeks ago Dr. J. L. Stephens, of Lebanon, Ohio, a specialist for the cure of narcotic, etc., habits told me that a number of eminent scientific medical men had been experimenting for years, testing and analyzing all known remedies for the kidneys and liver, for, as you may be aware, the excessive use of all narcotics and stimulants destroys those organs, and until they can be restored to health the habits cannot be broken up! Among the investigators were such men as J. M. Hall, M. D., President of the State Board of Health of Iowa, and Alexanander Neil, M. D., Professor of Surgery in the college of Physicians and Surgeons and president of the Academy of Medicine at Columbus, who, after exhaustive inquiry, reported that there was no remedy known to schools or to scientific inquiry equal to Warner's safe cure!"

"Are many persons addicted to the use of deadly drugs?'

"There are forty millions of people in the world who use opium alone, and there are many hundreds of thousands in this country who are victims of morphine, opium, quinine and cocoaine. They think they have no such habit about them-so many people are unconscious victims of these habits. They have pains and symptoms of what they call malaria and other diseases, when in reality it is the demand in the system for these terrible drugs, a demand that is called largely by physicians' prescriptions which contain so many dangerous drugs, and strong spirits, and one that must be answered or silenced in the kidneys and liver by what Dr. Stephens says is the only kidney and liver specific. He also says that moderate opium and other drug eaters, if they sustain the kidney and liver vigor with that great remedy, can keep up these habits in moderation.'

"Well, does not this discovery give you a new revelation of the power-of safe cure?" "No, sir; for years I have tried to convince the public that nearly all the diseases of the human system originate in some disorder of the kidneys ordiver, hence I have logically declared that if our specific were used, over ninety per cent. of these ailments would disappear. The liver and kidneys seem to absorb these poisons from the blood and become depraved and diseased."

"When these eminent authorities thus publicly admit that there is no remedy like ours to enable the kidneys and liver to throw off the frightful effects of all deadly drugs and excessive use of stimulants it is an admission of its power as great as any one could desire; for if through its influencealone the opium, morphine, quinine, cocains and liquor habits can be overcome, what higher testimonial of its specific power could be asked for?"

"You really believe, then, Mr. Warner, that the majority of diseases come from kidney and liver complaints?"

"I do! When you see a person moping and groveling about, half dead and half alive, year after year, you may surely put him down as having some kidney and liver trouble."

"The other day I was talking with Dr. Fowler, the eminent oculist of this city, who said that half the patients who came to him for eye treatment were affected by advanced kidney disease. Now many peobecome so poor. A thorough course of treatment with Warner's safe cure is what they need more than a pair of eye-glasses. The kidney poison in the blood always attacks the weakest part of the body; with some it affects the eyes; with others the head; with others the stomach or the lungs, or rheumatic disorder follows and neuralgia tears them to pieces, or they lose the powers of taste, smell, or become impotent in other functions of the body. What man would not give his all to have the vigor of youth at command?"

"The intelligent physician knows that these complaints are but symptoms; they should come and receive it. The naare not the disorder, and they are symtoms not of disease of the head, the eye or stomach, or of virility, necessarily, but of the kidney poison in the blood and they may prevail and no pain occur in the kidneys.'

It is not strange that the enthusiasm which Mr. Warner displays in his appreciation of his own remedy, which restored him to health when the doctors said he could not live six months, should become infectious and that the entire world should pay tribute to its power. For as Mr. Warner says, the sales are constantly increasing, while the newspaper advertising is constantly diminishing. This speaks volumes in praise of the extraordinary merits of his preparations.

MAY JEW AND GENTILE WED?

Views of a Hebrew Divine Upon the Subject-A Difference of Opinion Among Rabbis.

"Did you ever notice how many Jewish young men marry Christian girls?" remarked a young Hebrew divine to a reporter for The Cincinnati Sun.

The two sat pleasantly chatting in the comfortable pews of a West-endcathedral, which the large congregation had just deserted after the morning service, and the newsman replied w.th interest:

"And how many Jewesses take unto themselves Christian husbands? Yes, I have noticed it. Is the custom of intermarriage growing?"

"Indeed it is sir," said the reverend gentleman. "The fact is that to-day more than ever do Jews marry Christians and Christians Jews. But less excitement and comment are now made about such wedlocks than in former times. A few years ago the marriage of a Jew to a Christ an would create quite a sensation. The papers would regard such a bit of news as very entertaining reading matter, and journals of other cities would nvariably copy such reports, even though the parties interested were neither known to them nor enjoyed celebrity in their own city. To-day things have changed. Intermarriages are of frequent occurfor kidney and liver diseases and for all the rence, and no more is said about a union between a Jew and gentile than between gentile and gentile.

"How do the Jews and Jewish divines regard such marriages?" the wr.ter asked.

"There are two answers to the question," was the reply. 'First comes the real orthodox-good Jew. The old-fashioned believer in the letter of the law, and not in the spirit of the law. These, without considering the matter, regard intermarriage as a crime, and as a very great crime at that. The more enlightened Hebrew thinks it no sin to look at the question from both sides. The reformed Israelite looks more at the spirit of the law than the letter of the law. The verse on which the prohibition of intermarriage is based is found in Deuteronomy, the fifth book of Moses, where it is said in the seventh chapter that with certain seven notions, the Hittites, the Canaanites, etc., 'Thou shalt make no marriages with them. thy daughter thou shalt not not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son. For they will turn away thy sons from following Me, that they may serve other gods." This verse again admits of two explanations: Looking at the letter of the law the Jew was prohibited from marrying these seven nations. No other nation was ever mentioned but these seven, and hence it is no sin to .ntermarry with others than these. The ancient rabbis, however, went further and took into consideration the spirit of such a commandment, For they will turn away thy sons from following Me, that they may serve other gods.' Hence they said, by analogical conclusion, as these seven will turn away thy sons from following God, so will other idolatrous nations turn them away from serving the true God.

"In later generations, when the Christian relig on had been established, the question was raised among the learned sages whether Christianity was another form of Juda sm or whether it was a pagan belief. While some held that the church of Christ was but a branch of the Jew sh faith, with but one God and immortal soul, others held that the theory of Earther, Son and Holy Ghost implied more than one God, and refused to look at Christainity or a monotheism. As in ancient times to-day the Hebrew divines are divided in their views on intermarriage. D vided as they are and have been, intermarriages have occurred from time to time. Even in the days of Ezra and Nehemiah there are records of intermarriages, as found in Ezra, chapter ix., and Nehem ah, chapter xiii. King Solomon married strange women, and even the great-giver, Moses, took unto himself the dauther of Yethro, a heathen. Although it may be argued that this occurred before the giving of the law, still it is claimed that Moses knew the law before it was given to provided always that the water is taken the children of Israel. "Speaking of the giving of the law," the entertaining divine continued, "a pretty legend is recorded in the rabinnical writings. It is this: A disciple once asked his teacher whether the heathen would be punished in the future world for not observing the law; for,' said the pupil, 'the law was given to the children of Israel and not to ple wonder why in middle life their eye-sight | the heathen, hence the latter ought to be exempt from pun shment for not keeping it. To this the learned teacher replied: 'When the law was given we find that there was thunder and lightening in heaven and the mountain was all in smoke. This was done for the purpose of communicating to all nations and tribes that God was about to hand ditions of health. Scalding hot water, down His law. There was thunder for those who could not see, so that they could at least hear, and lightning and smoke for those who could not hear, so that they could at least see. It was publicly announced to all that all who wished to accept the law tions of the earth will, therefore, have no excuse when they appear before the great tribunal, for the law was offered them and refused.' "Most of the modern rabbis of reformed congregations are very refuctant in expressing their views publicly on intermarriage. Some hold that although they see no objection against such unions, they would nevertheless refuse to unite the couple in their official capacity. The Jewish m nister trainer is relaxed the obesity, when can hardly perform the ceremony, they say, according to the Jewish rite and custom when one of the contracting Perhaps the oldest perscription, "Keep parties does not believe in it. THE AFTER-DINNER NAP.

Luxury About Which Opinions Differ. There is much difference of opinion concerning the desirability of an after-dinner nap. Those who advocate it cite the example of animals, but these gorge themselves with food whenever opportunity offers, and are heavy and drowsy in consequence. A short rest is, however different from lethargic sleep, and often appears to do good. Brain work should certainly be forbidden after d nner; the intervals between it and bedtime should be dovoted to recreation and amusement. In the case of elderly people a short nap after a late dinner often aids digestion, but as a general rule it is better for such ersons to make their principal meal at 2 P. M. The digestive powers of most elderly people are at a low ebb in the evening. When sleeplessness is troublesome-relief should be sought for in the discovery and removal of the cause whenever possible. The condition is often due to indigestion, and when this is the case the ordinary remedies for inducing sleep are worse than useless. The nervous relations between the brain and the stomach are so intimate that disorder of the one organ is almost certain to affect the other. Excitement, worry, and anxiety, which have their seat in the brain, interfere with the functions of the stomach, and in like manner anything that unduly taxes the power of or irritates the stomach disorders the circulation and nutrition of the brain. The sleeplessness often complained of by gouty persons is due to the poisonous effect of the morbid mater al upon the nervous system. Excessive smoking, too much alcohol, tea, and coffee, often resorted to by over-worked persons, are frequent causes of sleeplessness. In all these cases the cause is removable, while the effect may be counteracted by appropriate treatment. Nothing is more mischievous, however, than to continue the habits and to have recourse to drugs to combat the effects. A due amount of exercise tends to induce normal sleep, and such exercise need not be of a violent character. A walk of two or three miles daily is sufficient, and is, perhaps, as much as a busy man can find time for. A ride on horseback, the Palmerstonian cure for gout, is probably the best form of exercise for those whose minds are constantly at work. It has been well said that a man must come out of himself when in the saddle; he is forced to attend to his horse and to notice the objects he meets. Walking may be a merely automatic process, and afford little, if any, relief to the mind, and carriage exercise may be practically valueless if the mind is not diverted from what had previously occupied it .-Fortnightly Review: She Wasn't That Kind.

FAT PEOPLE AND FLUIDS.

Experiments Made in Paris by Dr. Debove.

The question whether water is fattening or otherwise has been much discussed. Formerly it was generally asserted that the victims of obesity should mortify the flesh and reduce the fat by abstaining as much as possible from I quids and remaining in a continual state of thirst. Latterly the opposite has been affirmed, and I am told that a reduction of weight is one of the results claimed by "the hot-water cure," as hot as possible, painfully hot and in great quantities.

Experiments have been made in Paris by Dr. Debove which controvert 16 years old. For One Dollar you have both these doctrines. These experiments indicate that, provided the same amount of sold food is taken, large quantities of water make a man neither thinner nor fatter. They were carefully made on a friend who took weighed quantities of food daily, and while these remained equal doubling the quantity of water had no measurable effect on the weight of the body. Still it is quite possible that the old therory of thirst cure and the new theory of hot-water cure may both be correct. Both violate the natural conlike tea or coffee or grog of similar temperature, unquestionably injures the teeth, the stomach, and other organs concerned in the early stages of the digestion, and it is very probable that deficiency of liquid impedes the latter stages, whereby the chyme, by the aid of the digesting fluids, becomes converted into chyle and blood.

A fat man may easily become thinner by injuring his health. Banting is dangerous, as many who have fairly tried can prove. The d flicult problem is to reduce the fat without reducing the atrength at the same time. A skillful trainer will undertake to bring any man down to his "figting weight,"-i. e., in the best condition for violent exertion; but as soon as the discipline of the constitutional, returns, and a long continuance of high training is murderous. your mouth shut and your eyes open." when followed with judicious limitaprovided they are obeyed in modera-
