The Nebraska Live Stock Shippers' association held its second meeting in the Exchange hotel at South Omaha on the 15th, being called to order by President Gibbs of York. Nearly all those who were present at the first meeting answered to the roll call, and the membership was augmented by eight new recruits. Considerable business was transacted, the principal of which was the adoption of a resolution declaring that unless the commission men locate at Omaha, Lincoln and other Nebraska points, deal fairly by the shippers, they will be forced to take their trade to other markets. While preferring to patronize the home markets, they do not consider it the right thing for the commission men to place buyers of their own upon the road, thereby injuring the business of the regular shippers; and furthermore they protest against the practice, which seems to be prevalent to some extent, of delaying the shipments made by the shippers in order to push the stock bought by their agents to the front and obtain first sale.
