THE New York Pioneer, a third party prohibition organ, after aiding to elect a saloon Governor and establishing the saloons of New York for years to come, remarks: "Prohibitioninists must not cease their efforts to draw men away from the saloons while they are striving to take the saloons away from men."

ELIJAH W. HALFORD, managing editor of making his official appointments. He will follow the lead of his own judgment.

WHEN the Louisville Courier-Journal wants to be emphatic and lay down the law it double leads. It ca'ls the late election "a conspiracy to murder the peace of this country." It is all about the negro. It says: "The average ne-gro in the cotton, sugar and rice belts of the South is no more fit to vote, or capable of tak-ing care of his vote, than an orang-outang." It howls about "the grinning death's head of a satyr-like Ingalls, and all the looney incendiasatyr-like Ingalis, and all the looney incendiaries like Foraker, outside of hell!" But when the C.-J. gets clear of its bile it will feel easier.

It will have to work off in the usual way.

ALBANY Times (Dem.): There seems to be no doubt that the work of readjustment is going on in the lines of the prohibition party, and that its tendency toward complete amalgamation with the republicans on a platform of high license and local option. If the 40,000 prohibitionists of the state were to disband, the republicans would walk away with any democratic majority or plurality that has been polled in this state since the tidal-wave year It is unquestionably the fact that the recent canvass comes very near putting the republicans and the prohibitionists into much closer affiliation with each other, than they have been for years

An Indiana man has joined Gen. Palmer of Illinois in denouncing the G. A. R. Adjutant General Kountz of that state is the man and he is a democrat. Gen. Palmer could not succeed in having the Grand Army turned into a political machine to further his political aspirations and hence he has severed his connection with the order. The Grand Army leaders of Illinois would have laid themselves liable to severe censure had they turned the strength of the order to Gen. Palmer and against Private Joe Fifer, just as able a man, just as wrave a soldier and himself a member of the G. A. R. In the great majority of these cases where the charge is that the G. A. R. is a political machine, the cause of the charge is that some individual failed to make it a political machine.

Nine times out of ten personal disappointment has caused the bitterness which finds utterance in these charges and insinuations: the other time out of ten comes from ignorance and misunderstanding.

The joint convention of the cattle men and butchers at St. Louis has broken up in a row. The question of state inspection was the rock on which the convention split. The dressed beef men, the commission merchants and the majority of the cattle raisers united against the butchers. The convention was in some respects a remarkable one. It was the first time that the dressed beef industry was squarely banded together against the butchers, who demanded a rigid state inspection of cattie on the hoof. The butchers were outnumbered and withdrew, which practically brought the conference to an end. The question of state inspection of cattle is one which necessarily would be expensive and liable in the end to prove unsatisfactory. A national inspection. on the other hand, would be a guarantee of good faith, acceptable in the markets at home as well as abroad. As both the bee" packers and the butchers favor a national inspection. the difficulties now existing in the dressed beef industry are likely to be compromised.

Thanksgiving has come and passed, And many gobbiers have gobbled their last.

It is a pleasure to note that Mrs. J. N. Smith. who has been sick, is getting better; also Mrs. Frame and Mrs. Hollister.

The great need of this country is a more thorough cultivation of the soil, and better stock, and such a farmer on every quarter section of land.

The out building belonging to the school house in district 58 that was hauled away over a year ago should be returned at once, as it is badly needed.

Some farming done in this county, the past season, is a disgrace to the country, if not a reproach on the Creator of this beautiful land and rich soil. Come farmers wake up.

A granger was seen, Wednesday, visiting all the meat markets in McCook in search of three dozen chickens' gizzards, for a Thanksgiving dinner. He wanted enough so the family could have two apiece.

The only accident we heard of occurring on Thanksgiving day happened to a Hayes county granger. We heard it remarked. "He is not feeling well, this evening; he ate a couple of chickens and had to lie down."

If everybody will nush about hard times for the next thirty days, there will be nothing more of it for a month. Let there be a dispose sition of forbearance manifested in kindness toward all, and a hand stretched out, not empty, to the needy.

Mr. Sutton of Wayne, Iowa, was much interested in the products of this county exhibited at the Iowa state fair. Result, he has recently purchased 400 acres, six miles from McCook. Another man that saw the exhibit has boucht a quarter, eight miles from McCook, and others are coming. GRANGER
