The attorney general of Ohio is hard at work trying to devise some means whereby the "White Caps," who have been conducting their villainous operations in that state for some weeks past, may be brought to justice. The undertaking is a most difficult one, owing to the danger attending the giving of convicting evidence. It is probable that the state will employ detectives to procure the evidence upon which proceedings may be commenced.

The governor of Nevada, in his Thanksgiving proclamation, stirred up the democrats of that state wonderfully, and all about nothing. The governor merely remarked in that document that "with malice toward none and charity for all, we ought to be thankful that the issues of the late political controversy have ended so favorably for the future happiness and prosperity of our people." The style is a little unusual, but there's nothing wrong about that.

On Thursday evening of this week, at the handsome residence of Thos. J. Pate, Esq., situated just outside the city limits, the Methodist folks and friends held a delightful church soiree. More than half a hundred people were present, and sociability was the order of the evening. The "Blind Artist," the "Target Shooter" and the "Shoo Fly" crowd created a good deal of amusement. The singing and playing of Miss Nellie Lee, and the duet by Lena and Hattie were greatly enjoyed by those present. It is needless to say that ample justice was done the coffee and "fixins" by the entire company; when all went away seemingly happy.

The Masons are agitating the Masonic Temple pro, et contra, again.

Notice Squire's public sale local elsewhere in this issue.

A new wrap for ladies is called "Glover." It is only worn when they go out.

Put $1.50 into the publisher's pocket and get THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE for one year.

A handsome new pulpit will grace the Methodist church, next Sunday morning.

The J. H. Bennett building, south of the Star restaurant, is now Captain J. S. Leffew's office.

Some one describes a philanthropist as a man who loves all mankind and neglects his own family.

The Congregational people are making nice progress on their Christmas carols by the Sunday School.

Our Methodist friends are raising funds for their customary Sunday School entertainment and treat on Christmas.

Bullard doesn't sell drugs; but it is a caution the amount of hard and soft coal he is weighing out, these chilly days.

Bullard has "the cream" of the coal trade. He keeps in stock a large supply of best grades of both hard and soft coal.

District court opened in Indianola on Tuesday of this week and will continue in session until Saturday. Cases are mostly "in equity."

The ladies of the Geometrical Society will give a "crazy reception," some time in the Christmas week. Further notice, next week.

Decorating cattle is being quite extensively practiced in our county and with uniformly good results so far as our information goes.

We hope, next spring, to see the beginning of a genuine, substantial boom in farm property in Western Nebraska. Let proper efforts be exerted to this end.

The banquet at the opera hall, Tuesday evening next, is a new feature in the social life and activities of the churches of the city. It promises to be interesting.

The Indianola Masons are preparing to celebrate St. John's Day, December 27th, in an appropriate manner, with literary and musical exercises and an oyster supper.

The Republican Valley Medical Association holds its annual meeting and banquet in our city some time during the second week in January. A notable time is expected.

If you are contemplating starting a new set of books, the first of the year, it will be to your advantage to call and inspect our stock and learn our prices. We can save you money.

A contemporary says if women ever become voters they will not be found on both sides of the fence as men often are. No, but they will be found swinging on a gate with a man on the opposite side.

We understand there will be a change in the management of the Press & Herald. The new editor will be Mr. J. H. Bennett, who will take Mr. Rollings place.—Indianola Times.

A daughter came, Wednesday afternoon, to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Coffey. Mother and child are doing nicely. With proper care Tom will survive, although his delicate constitution is "a little thin."

Did you ever think of it that you can get 250 envelopes printed with your name and business, if any, on them for the same price you pay for them by the single pack? This is true. Call at this office and see samples.

Wedding and visiting cards and anything from that up to a full sheet sale bill printed with dispatch, in a neat manner and at reasonable rates at this office. Call and see samples and prices before placing orders elsewhere.

Never go where you are not wanted, do not intrude on privacy. If your neighbor wishes you to call at his house, he will invite you; if a business man wants you to call and in respect his wares he will make known the fact by advertising.

Barney Hoyer of the Hayes Court Times and John H. Christy, county clerk of Hayes, came down from the Court, Saturday evening, on a business mission. They returned homeward, via Culbertson, on the Monday morning following.

A work on etiquette says: "A gentleman always sits when he curves." Perhaps he does; but it is pretty certain that there are times when he yearns to put one foot on the table and the other on the bird while struggling with the fowl.

There is a fine, large girl baby at the Davis residence in which Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Davis are taking an intense parental interest. Her residence dates from Monday morning, and the boys at headquarters earnestly asseverate that Will's pulse isn't normal yet.

The case of the Commonwealth versus M. A. Pridem, which has received some attention in district court at almost every session for the past two years, was dismissed on Tuesday of this week, the prosecuting witness being absent from the state—in unknown parts.

"I don't say marriage is a failure," said Adam, candidly, as he sat down on a log just outside the garden of Eden, and looked hungrily at the other side of the fence, "but I had remained single this wouldn't have happened." Of course marriage was a decidedly bad failure with Adam.

Mr. J. D. Harris has his fourth residence in this city well under way. With the others it is located on the east side. Mr. Harris is so well pleased with the city and his investments here that he is seriously considering a removal from Oberlin to McCook. It will be for the best, Mr. H., no doubt.

"Mama," said Johnnie, still smarting from a humble application, "is the roof of anything on top of it?" "Of course it is," she said shortly. "And don't shingles always go on the roof?" "Certainly they do," then Johnnie was silent for quite awhile. Finally he said, in a quivering voice, "Mama, ain't my roof upside down?"

A banquet will be held in Menard's opera hall, next Tuesday evening, by the Lutheran people of the city. Toasts on the political parties of the day by McCook speakers, will be an interesting and amusing feature. Admission free. An enjoyable occasion is promised. Ladies will bring baskets with lunch for two to insure admission to the hall.

The recent action of the secretary of the interior in suspending issuance of patents on a large number of proofs made in this district, and calling for additional proof, has had the effect of greatly reducing the number of proofs now being made; and the average democratic publisher finds it convenient to fall back on his stock of "plates" to make good the deficiency.

Last issue, in referring to Little Jessie Johnson's being bitten by a dog, facts were unintentionally misrepresented, it seems, both as to the child's injuries and the canine's disposition. The little girl's injuries are now said to have been but slight, and were received in an accidental manner; while the dog is highly esteemed by its owner, Mr. Chapin, on account of its gentleness. This in justice to facts.

It is not from lack of knowledge altogether that so many men fail to make farming profitable. Another element is the cause of this failure, is the lack of enthusiasm and push. The business man goes out enthusiastically into his business and the more he prospers the deeper he plunges into the sea of endeavor. Full of business he plans and maps out operations and strives to succeed and excel. Brisk competition most undeniably quickens this spirit in him. But the farmer should develop more enthusiasm for his work; more interest in the results of his labor. A herd of half starved calves; a flock of scrawny hens; a shed barn filled with horses which are a cross between a skeleton and a pony, are not indicative of enthusiasm or interest. The clothing merchant who carried only a stock of jeans and cotton clothing could not expect the success which would crown the investment of the one who carried a large and complete stock. This the merchant realizes, and adds to his stock as he is able, constantly striving for the best. Cannot the farmer learn a lesson here? Shall we not arouse ourselves and plan and work for success as the merchant does, adding all the time not so much, perhaps, to the quantity as to the quality of stock.—Nob. Farmer.

Preserving eggs for better prices in the winter and spring, is something all have a right to do if it can be done. Here is simple and very good plan: Get some boxes and fine dry salt, cover the bottom of the boxes with the salt, then place your eggs, small end down, in rows, no two touching, then fill it with salt and so on, layer after layer, until the box is full. Set the box in some cool place and let it alone until you wish to remove the eggs. No turning the box upside down every other day. The salt will enter the pores of the shell, which is all the better for the egg, while on the other hand if you preserve them with lime, lard oil, flaxseed, etc., you run the risk of your eggs spoiling by the ingredients entering through the pores of the shell, and which can easily be detected.

An Iowa farmer has constructed a corn crib on a novel plan that may be an improvement. The sides and ends are tight, but the bottom is made of "slats," affording free circulation of air through it. Two ventilating chimneys are inserted in the roof, and the theory is that the air will pass in a continuous stream from the bottom up and dry the corn thoroughly and keep out mould. This may be an improvement on the old plan, which relies on the horizontal movements of the air through slatted sides.

Invitations are out to the "first grand reception" given under auspices of the B. & M. employees of McCook, in Menard's opera hall, December 31st, 1888. Mr. J. F. Forbes is master of ceremonies; Messrs. F. E. Kennedy, F. C. Stuby and F. B. Dignan compose the reception committee; J. H. Moore, F. S. Reid, J. A. Tumb, F. H. Clark and J. D. McAlpine the floor committee; and F. C. Stuby, J. H. Moore and J. D. McAlpine the committee on invitation. Arrangements are about complete for a grand affair.

"He is a wise man who says but little," according to the Latin proverb; and since the proverb was written the reasons for taciturnity have been made more forcible. Of what use is it for a man to talk for himself when he can hire a new-papper to talk for him? There is no successful merchandising that does not grow out of judicious advertising. The peddler relies on individual exertion; the merchant relies upon public information, and the topmost merchants are the heaviest advertisers.

Scene I. Butcher shop. Enter republican with his hat thrust away back upon his head and whistling Yankee Doodle. Throws down a ten dollar gold piece and says: "Give me a half dollar's worth of the best steak in the house." Scene 2. Same place. Enter democrat with his coat collar turned up and a general air of dejection pervading his every movement; steps up to proprietor and whispers: "Have you any liver?" If there is a moral to be deduced from this narrative, it is worth keeping.

Any man who thinks he would be seriously missed by his community, if he should die or move away is indulging a big illusion. Very few men are missed by anybody but their dearest friends. The wheels of business and politics and social life keep on going round all the time when one after another drops out of the game. No man is so essential to be necessary to his town, his county or his state. There is always some one to fill a vacant place.

There is a widespread feeling favoring a change in the state assessment laws. The papers are agitating the matter, and the people are thinking about its advisability. The next legislature will no doubt take the matter into careful consideration, and will give the state an improved and greatly modified assessment law. The present statute does not fill the bill and it is not a credit to Nebraska intelligence.

Perhaps Red Willow County's greatest need is a "buying" immigration,—one mean influx of settlers who are able to buy a farm, have the means to stock the same in a small way, possess money enough to purchase the necessary farm implements, and have the inclination, industry and intelligence, to cultivate the soil like finished husbandmen. Thousands of fertile acres in this county are absolutely tenantless.

At an early day the successor to "Our District" will be issued from this office. The persons who have it in charge will be likely to furnish excellent matter, and we are preparing to print it well, hence let everybody prepare the way to give it a hearty, liberal reception.—Bartley Inter Ocean.

The liveliest, most business-like scene ever enacted in this yard, perhaps, was the one that occurred on Wednesday evening, when there were six different trains arriving at the same time. The yard force was kept on the run straightening them all out.

The road grader is being used on Upper Main Avenue, this week, with good results. Chief Payne is doing most satisfactory work of the streets, sidewalks and crossings of the city, which are rapidly assuming a uniformly smooth appearance.

This week, Messrs. Jay & Simpson moved into their new quarters in the building lately occupied by Leffew & O'Donnell. The room has been thoroughly renovated, papered and painted and makes them a very neat and cozy barber shop.

Is your coal bin empty? If so, consult Bulhard, dealer in "dusky diamonds" of best grades, at the Bolger lumber yard.

Wednesday was an off "off day" in the yard, the boys succeeding in running three different locomotives through open switches during the shining hours.

Canon City, and other grades of soft coal, and both Pennsylvania and Colorado hard coal at Bullard's lumber yard.

Corn! Corn! Corn!!!

We hope the farmers will take enough interest in the call of Wm. Coleman for corn, to exhibit at the corn show of the State Board of Agriculture, as to select the best samples of all varieties at once and have it ready. The exhibiting of farm products is the cheapest and most successful mode of presenting the prosperity and productiveness of the country.

As a partial result of the exhibit at the last Iowa state fair, parties whose capital in the aggregate amounts to above $15,000 have already purchased land here, while many others have visited this county and were well pleased with it, so much so, that they have offered their property for sale in Iowa, and as soon as disposed of, will come here to invest in farms, and improve them.

The most effective way of countering reports of drought is to exhibit the productions of the soil in connection with circulars descriptive of the country, the lay of the land, soil, crops, climate, water, fuel, advantages of schools, and church privileges, etc. Now let the farmers select the corn, and the town will bear expenses. Let there be a grand display of corn from this county at the corn show of the state board. This county has had seven fairs, and never been represented at a meeting of the state board. Mr. Coleman is a member of said board, and has received an invitation from the secretary to be present with an exhibit of corn. We hope a united effort will be made, and it will certainly result very beneficial to the county.

A Wise Determination.

Below we give a list of names comprehending almost all the business men of the city, who have signified their willingness to close their stores at 2:30, central time. The new order of things goes into effect on January 1st and continues until April 1st, and by that time it is hoped that it will be so satisfactory in its operation as to become a permanent rule. All the business of the city can be transacted within the hours allowed and business men and their employees will secure an hour or two of needed rest and recreation by the new arrangement. This plan is and has been followed elsewhere with entire satisfaction and success and its operation here will doubtless be of that character.

We, the undersigned, agree to close our places of business at 2:30 C. T. Saturday and Sunday night, excepted, from Jan. 1st, 1889, until April 1st, 1889:

C. M. Noble, Joseph Venard, F. L. McCracken, Bowen & Laycock, Wilcox & Fowler, C. G. Potter & Co., L. Lowman & Son, Leffew & O'Donnell, McCook Book & Stationery Co., Ludwick & Towbridge.

Famous Clothing Co., H. C. Cochran & Co., H. J. Fowler, J. F. Gaschew, W. Geo. Shepard, Coleman Bros., C. H. Rogers, C. C. Allen & Co.

McEntee Collins.

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 28, Mr. Lawrence McEntee and Miss Anna M. Collins were united in marriage by Rev. Father McDevitt, in Saint Mary's Cathedral, on Stout street. Mr. McEntee is a member of the well-known firm of McEntee Bros. in San Juan valley; also brother of the present Mayor of McCook, Nebraska. Miss Collins is the eldest daughter of John P. Collins, the contractor and builder, recently of McCook, Nebraska, but now living at 227 1/2 Gilpin street, this city. The young couple have gone on a trip to the Pacific coast, with the intention of remaining until spring or later. They have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.—Rock Mountain City.

ALMOST A FIRE.

The residence of Mr. John F. Majors, corner Macfarland and Dolan, narrowly escaped destruction by fire on Monday afternoon. It was fortunately discovered before the flames had made much headway and was extinguished without the aid of the fire department. The fire originated in an upstairs sleeping room, a mouse and some matches evidently forming the combination that fired the box, which was the seat of the inept conflagration. The charred remains of the mouse were discovered in the almost destroyed box. Damage minimal.

Over the Dark River.

Early Sunday morning, at the residence of John Unicker on North Manchester, a brother of the deceased, the spirit of Samuel Unicker suddenly joined company with the house of its earthly tenant and winged its flight to its Maker. The immediate cause of the young man's death was an "illegitimate abscess," the departed being convalescing from a long siege of typhoid fever, however. The funeral services were conducted at the house, Monday afternoon by Rev. J. W. Kimball, the remains being shipped on the evening train to Illinois for interment.

Woman's Relief Corps.

The corps will meet in Masonic hall, Saturday afternoon, December 15th, at half past 2 o'clock, M. T. The members are requested to be prompt. By order of the president, NELLIE LEE, Secretary.

A SHAWL LOST.

Saturday evening, between McCook and S. J. Shaffer's farm northwest of the city, a dainty, red-brown, wadded shawl. Finder will be rewarded by leaving same at store of Hall, Cochran & Co.

Central Time.

Beginning with the first of the year the banking hours of the city will adopt central time, and will conduct business thereon. The hours will remain as before from 9 to 4. The change will no doubt be appreciated by customers.

"What's the Matter?"

With Bullard's filling your order for hard or soft coal? "He's all right." So is his large stock of coal. So are his figures. Give him a trial order.

THREE OF 'EM.

McCook now has two bridges across the Republican river, which will be a great help to that city in the future.—Bartley Inter Ocean.

That was very naughty in that poor Howard in giving our boys away in his fearful manner. But then poker is a very uncertain business—when Benkelman blows have a hand in the game—and it is apparently fascinating at all times. But is ruthless to place such matters in cold, cold type, Edgar, very.

McCook will take great pride in the flouring mill. It will be a model of convenience and compactness. The best of the mill will see it in operation with the latest improved roller process machinery throughout.

The "Star" restaurant is now under the management of S. T. Smith.
