The republicans who wanted a new deal this year have it. Now they should vote the way they have talked this summer.

Vote for a lawyer for county attorney. J. Byron Jennings, the Republican nominee, is a lawyer of recognized ability.

Republicans, it is a question now whether you will allow the democrats to "work" you. Did you ever know the democrats to desert their party when election day arrived?

The republican who scratches his local ticket this year is ungrateful to his party and to his country. There isn't a man on the ticket that any republican need hesitate to vote for.

THE TRIBUNE is the greatest newspaper success of Western Nebraska. It has buried every one of its competitors in years past, and there are several large and adult newspaper wakes a coming.

The star of Bethlehem, which was visible at the birth of Christ, and which can only be seen every 315 years, can be seen every evening at 8 o'clock. It appears just a little south of east and is a very brilliant and beautiful orb. It will only be visible about two months and those who do not see it this summer will be denied that pleasure unless, however, they live over three centuries.

Did the Omaha Bee tell the truth two years ago when, in a spasm of disinterested virtuousness, it declared that the license system as it exists in Omaha under the Slocumb law, "has been a source of corruption and irregularity," "has exacted political support from the low dives and bums," and "has used the liquor men to do the dirty work at the primaries and elections;" or, does it tell the truth now, when it denies that state of affairs and sounds the praises of the High License law—at $2.10 an inch?

Everybody Takes Satisfaction

With so many convivial spirits within her walls it is rather remarkable that McCook does not have a lodge of the order of Elks.

Last week, J. S. McCoy, of Blue Mound, Macon county, Illinois, invested in a section of land in this vicinity. His two sons will probably move onto and improve the same.

In the near future A. T. Campbell & Co. will occupy the store on Main avenue recently vacated by McCotter Bros. This will give him more room and a better business location.

The farmers will rally to the support of Samuel Ellis, election day, in a way that will guarantee his election. It is quite natural that the farmers should vote for a "tiller of the soil," too.

The Beaver friends are supporting their popular son W. T. Henton with a firmness and warmth that means success beyond a peradventure. And the best of it is that Henton deserves it, too.

An opportunity is presented the farmers, this fall, to vote for a man from among them for representative. Samuel Ellis is a farmer and an old veteran. He should receive a hearty support from the horny-handed sons of toil.

Morning and evening services in the Congressional church, next Sunday, by Rev. D. L. McBride, at the hours of 11:30 and 7:30, central time. Note that the evening services will be held fifteen minutes earlier than formerly.

For the office of county attorney J. Byron Jennings is eminently qualified. Voters having economy in mind, and desiring the important duties of that office to be efficiently discharged to best interests of the people, should see to it that he is elected.

Editor Carpenter, of the Bartley Enterprise, who is a gentleman of excellent discernment and who is perpetually mashed on consistency, makes this truthful remark, which is wholly devoid of flies: "The McCook TRIBUNE is doing a noble work for the prohibitory amendment."

All of the proposed amendments to the constitution of the state may be read in THE TRIBUNE from day to day. They are official and may be relied on. If you are in doubt about what the amendment will or will not do take a copy of THE TRIBUNE and half a day off and study up.

There is a rumor abroad in the city that one of the McCook papers received two hundred dollars for its efforts against the prohibition amendment. Of course the idea is preposterous. Yet there are those who claim positive proof. This seems to be an off year for McCook Journalists—the capital J is intentional.

If you are of the opinion that the county commissioners are the servants of the people and should promptly comply with their requests, vote for Richard Johnston and C. W. Hodgkin for county commissioners. They are fair-minded men and will deal justly and without unnecessary expense with the people whom they serve.

It is of prime importance to the taxpayer that the office of county treasurer be conducted by an efficient man and that the county funds are placed in safe hands. W. T. Henton, nominee of the Republican party, fills all the requirements. He is competent, trustworthy and can give as good a bond as any man in the county. Work for him. Vote for him. He deserves it.

The voters of Red Willow county have a duty to perform, this fall. They must establish that they are the people, and that the county commissioners are but their servants at so much a day, subject to the expressed will of the people. The experience of this summer teaches that the people must maintain their rights, and must relegate to private life the man who dares to deny their petition, and presumed to add insult to injury. Vote for Johnston and Hodgkin and be served fairly and economically.

The independent rally at this place, Saturday, was quite a success so far as attendance and demonstration are concerned,—although the public were led to expect something more vociferous by the prospectuses issued by our misguided friends. The parade was all that could be expected under the circumstances. McKeighan's speech was characteristic and seemed to suit his following, but was a disappointment to others. His subsequent conduct in the Republican meeting in the evening, and in the office of the Commercial Hotel, was, to put it mildly, disgraceful and lost him many votes in this part of the district. In fine the net result of the affair is a failure, and THE TRIBUNE prophesies a costly one to that erratic and infirm champion of the independent movement. McKeighan is his own Burchar.

Kalsted, The Tailor,

Successor to L. Bernheimer, wishes to announce that he is now located in the rear of The First National Bank, with a new stock of latest and most fashionable fall and winter suitings, and is prepared to give the public correct and satisfactory results in all branches of the merchant tailoring business. He invites a trial and guarantees satisfaction.

MASON, RICHARDS, MAJORS, ALLEN.

The Grandest Political Demonstration of the Campaign.

AN IMMENSE OUTPOURING

Of Enthusiastic Republicans of Red Willow County.

There was not room in the opera house, Saturday evening, to accommodate the hundreds that poured into that edifice to hear the speakers announced for that date and place, and many disappointed ones were turned away. The audience was one of the most representative and intelligent ones the hall has ever held.

Mr. J. C. Allen of our city made the opening remarks. They were pointed, appropriate, terse and business-like. It was necessarily brief, but nevertheless one of the neatest talks of the evening.

Hon. L. D. Richards, nominee for governor, followed in order. His speech was clean, clear and concise, plain, practical and pointed. Delivered in a modest, manly manner, without unnecessary verbiage or too gaudy flowers of oratory. It created a marked and favorable impression.

Hon. T. J. Majors' speech was full of characteristic and impassioned patriotic utterance, and carried his hearers by storm. Blue-shirted Tom is in most sensitive touch with the people, the old vets especially, and his appearance is the signal for a warm reception, everywhere.

Judge O. P. Mason, however, made the speech of the evening. The judge is in the mellow ripeness of advanced years, and yet he has the mental vigor of the "grand old man." A keen observer, a full reader, of large and wide experience, analytical, of exact judgment, logical, comprehensive, sarcastic, humorous, he covered the issues of this campaign with matchless ability, and rounded off an unrivaled meeting with a master hand.

HON. E. ROSEWATER.

Well the Hon. E. Rosewater has been here and is gone. He did not bring his George Washington hatchet with him, hence was not able to chip off such adult hunked of truth as was expected. But he did fairly well considering how heavily he was handicapped. Instead of the G. W. hatchet Mr. Rosewater was armed with a deadly array of "figgers" quite as veracious. A very large and intelligent audience was therewith effectually pummeled into the Land of Nod. It may be said that the operation, like modern dentistry, was painless. With reference to Mr. St. John's respects to him in a recent speech here Mr. Rosewater proved that while his ancestry were worshipping in Solomon's temple, Mr. St. John's forefathers were hunting wild boars, and indulging in sundry other unseemly conduct in the primeval forests of the "tight little island."

Tracing his ancestry to the founder of the Christian era, Mr. Rosewater pointed with exuberant pride to the fact that while Mr. St. John wore a sunflower and in company with long haired men and short haired men—cranks and fanatics—made his living defaming Nebraska's fair name, that Mr. Rosewater "wore the white flowers of a blameless life, before a thousand peering littlenesses, in that fierce light which beats upon a" newspaper sanctum—or words to that effect. As intimated in the outstart, Mr. Rosewater left his G. W. hatchet with the janitor of the Bee building, and some of his statistics and "figgers" were mislaid; and yet to his sympathetic hearers his utterances are as Holy Writ, while his more critical prohibition hearers accept his effort with a few grains of salt, and are uncharitable enough to rend not a few of his statements into fragments. You pay your money and make your choice. But you can count the votes made by him on the fingers of one hand and have at least four fingers left.

SENATORIAL ELOQUENCE.

Hon. C. F. Manderson Delivers a Magnificent Address to a large Audience.

Perhaps the people of this section of Nebraska have never heard the political problems of the day handled with greater eloquence, vigor, comprehensive clearness than characterized the effort of our Senior Senator at the opera house, last evening. It was a brilliant speech setting forth the national attitude of the party, its promises and splendid performance under almost insuperable opposition. He touched that great bugaboo, the tariff, with a magic wand, dissipating democratic fallacies concerning it, and setting out in unmistakable characters the beneficence of that and other bills of national importance.

Congressman Laws also made a few remarks; taking occasion to acknowledge the warm friendship and fidelity of his home constituency and expressing his profound appreciation thereof, besides touching the issues of the campaign.

For Sale or Trade.

I have a house and two lots in McCook to sell or to trade for stock. M. ERMAN.

ARTESIAN WELL IRRIGATION.

While selfish office seekers in Nebraska and adjoining states are charging the republican congress with totally neglecting the farm interests of the west, the government is vigorously prosecuting experiments, the success of which must be of incalculable value to the producers.

The investigation ordered by congress to determine the availability of the underflow and artesian water for irrigation comprehends the arid and semi-arid empire between the eastern foothills of the Rocky mountains and a line drawn southward along the eastern boundary of North Dakota, passing west of Lincoln and south to El Paso, Texas. The law requires that the work be completed by July next. The comparatively brief period allowed for the investigation and the vast territory to be covered, has called out the energy and resources of the agricultural department, and every effort will be made to demonstrate by practical tests the truth of the claims of all geologists who have examined the region.

The experiments conducted in the Dakotas during the summer fully sustain the assertion of the advocates of artesian irrigation. The flow secured from each well is sufficient to irrigate 4,000 acres of land. It is not the intention of the government to bore wells promiscuously, but merely to demonstrate the force and quantity of the underflow, to supervise the use of the water obtained and report results. The feasibility of the scheme once determined in the territory mapped out, the government will leave private enterprise to do the rest.

Secretary Rusk regards the work as the most important yet undertaken by the government in the west. The data in possession of the department confirms what close observers have maintained, that a large proportion of the mountain streams is lost in the great stratum of gravel and boulders underlying the country from fifteen to one hundred feet. The Frenchman river in western Nebraska is mainly supplied from this great underground reservoir. Even in the driest season there is no perceptible depreciation in the volume of water, thus proving its subterranean source. To define the boundaries of this great basin and demonstrate how it will best subserve the interests of the country is a work of far reaching possibilities. The success of the undertaking means the disappearance of droughts and scorching hot winds which almost annually blight sections of the Dakotas, western Nebraska and Kansas. A supply of artificial moisture during July and August will render these sections in productive fertility the peer of any in the country.—Bee.

Postal Improvements.

Postmaster-General Wanamaker has an ambition to link his name with several important postal improvements, among them the reduction of letter postage to one cent and the establishment of postal savings banks and a postal telegraph. That all these projects are entirely feasible, and that their adoption would eventually rebound to the advantage of the country, will be seriously questioned. Every reduction in the postage heretofore made has been justified by the results which followed, and why should not a change from two cents to one cent prove as beneficial as did the change from three to two cents in 1883?

Experience with postal savings banks in England has strengthened the belief that they could be made equally advantageous here. They need not necessarily take the place of ordinary savings banks in cities and towns, but in many villages and out-of-the-way places there are thousands of persons of limited means who would only be too glad to lay away a little money from time to time if they had an accessible and safe place of deposit. As to the postal telegraph, there is a popular demand for it which will have to be met sooner or later, and the improvement cannot be introduced too soon.—Ex.

Will Answer Mr. Rosewater.

On next Sunday evening, Rev. Mather of the Methodist church, will answer Mr. Rosewater. Rev. Mather has had large experience in dealing with such men and measures, and a vigorous, effective response to Mr. Rosewater may be expected.

Of Course You Are

Going to the World's Fair in 1892. But in the meantime, one of the important questions of the day is, "Where can I buy the most and best meat for my money?" Brewer can answer you.

The Democratic Newspaper

Is announced to make its debut in a few weeks. E. J. Scott, the present foreman of the McCook Democrat, will be the publisher, and a creditable sheet may be expected.

FOR RENT.

A barn that will accommodate 30 head of horses. Buggy room, corral, well, and small house. Inquire of E. LINDNER.

Flour and Feed.

A. T. Campbell & Co., successors to E. W. Reed, are here with best grades of Flour and Feed of all kinds, and are prepared to meet all competition.

PARENTS

Save money by buying school supplies for the children, at Chenery's City Drug Store.

We warrant every sack of our flour. POTTER & EASTERDAY.

PERSONALS

A. J. Beecher is still confined to bed, but his condition is improving.

Frank Hess and family departed for Salt Lake City, Utah, Tuesday.

E. W. Reed, late in the flour and feed business, expects to go to Salt Lake City after pay day.

Mose Erman leaves for St. Louis, to-night. His family and goods will follow in a few days.

Mr. V. Franklin of the Citizens bank had important business in Denver, Monday of this week.

W. M. Sanderson and family left on Tuesday for Salt Lake City, Utah, where they expect to locate.

Rev. D. L. McBride has been attending a state meeting of the Baptist church at Fremont, this week.

O. Frost, C. W. Beck, M. N. Eskey and C. L. Knowles were among the Bartley people in the city, Saturday.

J. A. Cordeal of the Farmers & Merchants bank, we are pleased to learn, is down with an attack of typhoid fever.

Dr. A. J. Thomas left for Benkelman, yesterday morning, on professional business that will detain him a few days.

Special Agent Hutchins left for Grand Island and other points, Wednesday evening, on government land business.

W. W. Fisher and daughter, Miss Janie Fisher, are down from Wauneta, to-day, expecting to return home in the morning.

Mrs. J. D. Robb departed Sunday evening, for St. Joe, where she expects to make an extended visit to relatives and friends.

Senator Manderson's reception in the McCook Club Rooms, yesterday afternoon, was quite generally attended by our people.

Mrs. C. M. Wilson is entertaining her sister and husband—Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Blackman of St. Louis, who arrived Wednesday morning.

Miss Mimie Johnston and guest, Miss Maggie Allen of St. Joe, returned Monday night on delayed No. 4, from a brief visit to Denver and the mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mills, of Republican City, were guests of Congressman Laws and family, Saturday and Sunday, returning homeward on the evening passenger of Sunday.

K. F. High, the clever and popular political warfareman from Lebanon, has been spending a few days, this week, in the metropolis, in the vicinity of which he has been doing effective campaign work.

J. W. Hupp, Geo. W. Raisten, B. F. Bradburn and H. E. Waugh of Lebanon were up, Saturday, to witness the McKeighan fiasco, and to take in the grand republican rally ever held in western Nebraska.

F. P. Ostrom, late with J. Albert Wells, is now in the dry goods department of J. W. Winger & Co., Lincoln. THE TRIBUNE will keep the "hossy colonel" informed as to this section of the vineyard and wishes him the full measure of success.

County Clerk Roper, County Judge Keyes, J. W. Dolan, Walter Rowland, W. R. Starr, C. H. Oman and other county-capital friends swelled the grand audience that greeted Judge Mason, Gov. Richards and Lieut. Gov. Majors at the opera hall, Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Babcock, of Yuma, Colo., mourn the sudden death of their infant son, Churchill, which occurred at Cambridge, last Friday morning, while Mrs. Babcock was there on a visit to relatives. The remains of the dear one were buried at Yuma, Saturday afternoon.

B. A. Harlan of the Stockville Sentinel, J. A. Andrews of the Benkelman Democrat, F. Bert Risley of the Culbertson Republican, C. A. Warner of the Stockville Faber, C. H. Israel of the Benkelman Republican and Bill Brown of the Culbertson Sun were among the newspaper men in the city, Saturday.

Mr. Saxon of Arapahoe, a brother of E. A. Saxon of Box Elder, made us a brief call, Tuesday afternoon, in company with E. A. He reports a decided revulsion of feeling in Furnas county respecting McKeighan, and feels certain that Hon. N. V. Harlan will carry that county by a comfortable majority.

G. W. Bartlett and family left on Wednesday evening for Denver. They did not take their goods but will probably arrange to remain there. We regret the departure of so many of our good citizens, but the crop failure and diminished business makes it necessary for them to look elsewhere for business.—Bartley Inter-Ocean.

Edgar Howard, the clever and talented gentleman who formerly published the Benkelman Democrat, made a brief visit in the city, Saturday last, while en route for Benkelman on private business. Mr. Howard is a practical newspaper man and has spent most of the Nebraska weekly press said: "I have seen about every paper published in this state. THE McCOOK TRIBUNE, I regard as being the neatest and model newspaper of the state."

Engine 132 has gone to Denver to relieve 103 which returns to McCook.

Engineer A. C. Harman is in the city loading his goods preparatory to moving his family to Denver, where he is now working.

Engine 196, running on the "buckwheat" (Lyons branch) was disabled early in the week. Engine 194 relieved her temporarily.

Engine 139 is out of the shops after receiving new cylinders, general overhauling of machinery and painting, and is just like new.

Fred Allie, formerly of McCook, late of Lyons, has been transferred to Oxford, where he will manipulate the electric current with his usual dexterity and accuracy.

Engine 142 from Plattsmouth shops went through to Denver, this week, to give more help switching and handling the daily increasing business the B. & M. is doing at Denver.

Wm. Hamilton, hostler at Siding No. 7, on the Deadwood line, is visiting friends in McCook, this week. He has been very sick with mountain fever and is now visiting around till he is able to return to duty.

The railroad business of the past month exceeds that of any month before, since a long time before the strike of 1888. There will be quite a large number of men who will get their wages in two checks next pay-day.

A tail-end collision on Chief Creek hill, three miles east of Robb, on the morning of Oct. 26th, between two freight trains, was disastrous to life, rolling stock and freight. One emigrant, name unknown, was instantly killed when the engine crashed into the train ahead. Engineer A. J. Chambers, fireman Dennis Coucher, and a man (brother to the one killed) were badly shaken up and bruised by jumping when the collision occurred. There were a large number of cattle killed, the colliding train being a stock train, and an immense mass of dead cattle and cars piled thirty feet high was about all that remained of the train. Engine 134 was totally demolished.
