CHILDREN'S LITERATURE.

What "St. Nicholas has Done for Boys and Girls.

Victor Hugo calls this "the woman's century," and he might have added that it is the children's century as well, for never before in the world's history has so much thought been paid to children—their schools, their books, their pictures, and their toys. Childhood, as we understand it, is a recent discovery. Up to the time of the issue of the St. Nicholas Magazine seventeen years ago literature and children's magazines were almost contradictory terms, but the new periodical started out with the idea that nothing was too good for children; the result has been a juvenile magazine genuine with conscientious purpose—the greatest writers contributing to it, with the best artists and engravers helping to beautify it,—and everything tuned to the key-note of youth.

It has been the special aim of St. Nicholas to supplant unhealthy literature with stories of a living and healthful interest. It will not do to take fascinating bad literature out of boys' hands, and give them in its place Mrs. Barbauld and Peter Parley, or the work of writers who think that any "good-y" talk will do for the children, but they must have strong, interesting reading, with the blood and sinew of real life in it, reading that will waken them to a closer observation of the best things about them.

In the seventeen years of its life St. Nicholas has not only elevated the children, but it has also elevated the tone of contemporary children's literature as well. Many of its stories, like Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy," have become classic. It is not too much to say that almost every notable young people's story now produced in American fiction seeks the light in the pages of that magazine.

The year 1891 will prove once more that "no household where there are children is complete without St. Nicholas." J. T. Trowbridge, Noah Brooks, Charles Dudley Warner, and many well-known writers are to contribute during this coming year. One cannot put the spirit of St. Nicholas into a prospectus, but the publishers are glad to send a full announcement of the features for 1891 and a single sample copy to the address of any person mentioned in this notice. The magazine costs $3.00 a year. Address The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York.

Dog Donors.

Drake's magazine gives the following directions to those who desire to make presents of dogs to friends.

We should call it a species of dogology.

For a stock broker, speculator or investor in contingencies of any kind, get a pointer.

The same kind of a dog also goes well with a punctuator.

For a compositor, get a setter.

For military men, dogs of war.

For a man who has lost his fortune, a retriever.

For a balloonist, a Skye terrier.

For a pedestrian, a lap dog.

For a detective, a spatter.

For a cattle raiser, a bull dog.

For a millionaire, a deer hound.

For a negro, a coon dog.

For a jeweler, a watch dog.

For a sailor, a water spaniel.

For a tobacco chewer, a spitz.

For an explorer, a Newfoundland.

For a singer, a yeller dog.

For a prize-fighter, a pug.

For a messenger boy, a terrier.

For a dupe, a collie.

For an angry mother, a ma's tiff.

Her Anniversary.

Friday evening, November 7th, 1890, was a disagreeable day and the snow came flying.

A few of Mrs. Fred Johnston's friends came to help her celebrate her 27th birthday. An elegant supper was spread by Mrs. Johnston's many friends. Singing and pleasant conversation were the program of the evening. The following are the names of those present:

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Smith, A. C. Modie, Winberger, F. Johnston, N. A. Frame, Rev. and Mrs. Long, Grandma Modie, Mrs. J. Ebel, Misses Rosa Keller, Gertrude Coleman, Doug. Lawrence, Pernilla Smith, Anne Ebel, Lucie Modie, Bertha Droll, Nellie Frame, Lizzie Frame, Hannah Droll, Della Smith, Thilie Droll, Lydia Winberger, Etta Johnston, Messrs. John U. Albert, Elmer and Robert Smith, Albert and Marvin Frame, Henry Winberger, Chas. Kolb, Elmer Johnston, Clinton Schlegel, John Droll, George Troendly, John Divine.

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, postmaster of Leaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from kidney and liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best kidney and liver medicine, made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: "Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50 cents a bottle at A. McMillen's drug store. 25-1mo.

The publishers of the Homestead, the weekly twenty-four page agricultural paper of Des Moines, Iowa, edited by a practical farmer, inform us that they will send their paper from now until the first of next January, free of charge, to every farmer in this county not already a subscriber, who will send his name and address, plainly written on a postal card to the Homestead Co., Des Moines, Iowa. The copies will be absolutely free, and will be sent to any farmer to enable him to judge for himself of the merits of the Homestead as a paper devoted to his special interests. On the first of January the paper will be discontinued unless subscribed for in due form.

Worth Knowing.

It is not the cough that kills but what it leads to—cough, colds and bronchitis are always cured by Humphreys' Specifics Nos. one and seven, being used by thousands with the most triumphant success.

There will be a Democrat Silver Medal Contest at Box Elder, Friday evening, November 21st. All cordially invited. The last medal was awarded to Katie Pinkerton.
