Banker Hupp came over from Lebanon, Monday evening on business.

Capt. Holmes leaves shortly for Wurtsboro, N. Y., on a protracted visit.

Treasurer-elect Henton gravitated to the metropolis, Monday on business.

Dr. Jones professional services were called to Oxford, Tuesday, and to Stratton, Wednesday.

H. H. Easterday is enjoying a family reunion, this week, down in Tecumseh, Johnson county.

S. E. Solomon drove down from Culbertson, Wednesday afternoon on an important mission.

Frank Carruth was up from Plattsmouth over Sunday, returning home on the evening passenger.

Miss May Clark departed, Sunday evening, for Arkansas City, Kansas, where the family is now residing.

Mrs. H. C. Shriner arrived from Curtis, the close of last week, to spend the holidays with McCook friends.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Walsh of McCook, Neb., are visiting Mrs. Sanford at 1204 Twentieth street.—Sunday's Denver News.

County Clerk and Mrs. Roper returned to the county-seat, Sunday evening, from a short visit on their south side farm.

Capt. Eric Johnson of Holdrege is a city visitor, to day. The Captain is a leading candidate for clerk of the next house.

Risley of the Republican and Floyd of the Register represented the Hitchcock county press in the valley's metropolis, Saturday evening.

Judge Israel of Benkelman and J. P. Davis of Hayes Centre visited THE TRIBUNE in a social way, Tuesday evening while in the centre on business.

Mrs. C. W. Knights arrived home, Sunday, from a delightful visit to friends in Denver. Her daughter, Mrs. McAlpine, met her at Akron on her homeward way.

H. R. Edwards, who has injected a little elixir of life into the defunct Allston Times, was a caller at these headquarters, Monday, while in the city on land business before the local officials.

The new clerk in the land office to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George M. Gage, is Miss Ida Hollister, chief clerk for seven years in the land office at McCook, Neb.—Salt Lake City (Utah) Tribune.

Dr. Jones and Father Hickery went up to Hayes county, last Friday, to minister unto John Kunner, who was seriously ill of the fever. They returned home, Sunday, leaving the patient somewhat improved in condition.

Messrs. Likes and Hatch of the late Farmers and Merchants Bank of Hayes Centre were business visitors at commercial headquarters, Saturday. They have sold their bank building to the county, and expect to go to Texas to engage in business.

John G. Eaton is here from Lebanon, Oregon, on business connected with his extensive real estate interests in Valley Grange. Mr. Eaton has a prosperous appearance and looks as though that far western clime agreed with him. His many old-time friends will be pleased to greet him.

C. E. Robinson left for McCook, Saturday morning, where he goes to seek employment. Chas. has been in this city for the past six years and has been one of the leading young men of the town. We believe that all our people are sorry to see him leave, and that they will all join the Press in wishing him all the success possible in his new field.—Orleans Press.

Prof. C. M. Charles, the genial and talented principal of the Culbertson schools, was a city visitor, Monday, doing a little shopping, and paying his respects to his admirers in McCook. The Professor dropped into THE TRIBUNE office long enough to discontinue his subscription on the ostensible grounds of "close times." But there was that in the Professor's portentous look which was only explained when he stated that the real reason was because Joe Goggles of Goosetown wrote for THE TRIBUNE. Between the broad-minded, large-souled Professor and caustic Joe there exists a glacial period which will not away till the final conflagration.

Go where you will, and the fair name of McCook receives nothing but the highest of compliments, as the most substantial and the most thrifty city of its size in the state. Her citizens and business men receive nothing but the kindest of words for their enterprise and go-ahead-tiveness from those abroad. May the eulogizers never have occasion to speak anything but words of praise for McCook and her citizens.

FROM THE COUNTY SEAT.

Epitome of the Week's Events at the Seat of County Affairs.

Joe Goggles, the Irrepressible, Special News and Society Reporter.

Dr. Eskey is expected back from Great Falls by the first of January.

Drayman Brown refuses to haul goods for Indianola's great cheap store.

After January 1st, 1891, this world will begin to revolve round the Indianola ocher mine.

Everything moves but the county-seat. It remains as stationary as if fixed in an eternal center.

C. H. Oman has closed out all his interests in this city and is on his way to the state of Wyoming.

It is rumored about that the proprietor of the Courier will return in the spring of the year 1891.

There is more sickness in Indianola so the square inch than ever before and but one physician.

J. J. Lamburn says: "THE TRIBUNE is the best local paper he has ever seen in this western country."

Samuel Parks expects to depart for Colorado in a few days, to work. He has rented a house in his city for his family.

Capt. Frank Strout's uncle, of Culbertson, was gyrating around this yellow ocher hole, the day before Christmas.

As a rule the bright side of life's picture is hung to the wall, and just now everybody is inclined to nail it that way.

With no more mortgage foreclosures the prospects ahead for lawyers is as dreary as Greenland's icy mountains.

Judging from the looks the coal that was shipped to this place for free distribution will last long and keep a man hot.

The Courier took a spurt and got out on Wednesday. Had Bishop been here such a thing would never have happened.

The Bret Harte club has postponed the entertainment to have been given Saturday evening, January 3d, until the 17th of January.

J. H. Berge, justice of the peace in and for Indianola precinct, Red Willow county, Nebraska, appears to be a very busy official of late.

Jim McClung, who recently went out to Great Falls, has accepted the position of night clerk at one of the hotels in that city, at a good salary.

A former Indianolaite, now a resident of Denver, writes that Denver is duller than Indianola and the filthy lucre much sought after but seldom found.

Uncle Jim Hetherington writes some readable letters to the Courier, but it is very significant that so far he has extended no general invitation to us to come and see him.

As time speeds merrily on and the earth continues in its usual course we grow less frightened, because the legislature this winter is properly built to tear things out by the roots.

Tom Teas has sold his farm for $1,000, and returned to Iowa to stay. We shall miss the sweet singer of Israel very much. As a story teller and worker in a county-seat fight Tom was a four-horse team with a yellow dog under the wagon.

There is a marked similarity between Bill Nye's "Baled Hay" and that which we find at the feed stores this fall—each comes high, quality considered. It would be in keeping with the eternal fitness of things to sell them both at the same stand.

Taylor Quigler, a farmer living north-west of this city, is very bad off with rheumatism. Fore part of the week he went to McCook to consult the gentleman who has been leading the patent medicine revival, but when the doctor told him the trouble was with his blood and not his hip joint Taylor came home and told his wife he guessed he had been dreaming.

The word that our old friend C. F. Wehner sent back from Great Falls is not calculated to go very far in establishing an Indianola colony in that city such as in Denver. Charley made several thousand dollars in Indianola selling quinine and pills, and he thought that by adding on a side line or two he could go to Great Falls and soon buy a railroad. As a result of Mr. Wehner's frankness, quite a number of us will remain and engage in the profitable business of "cussing" the country generally and Indianola particularly.

COUNTY COURT.

A Word in Season.

The barking of a pack of hounds may be music, but the barking of the human family is certainly discord. Stop that cough with Humphreys' Specific No. Seven.
