The Ruin of the California Missions.

The ruin of the Missions was completed by the American contest. The few remaining Indians were speedily driven or enticed away, for the rough frontiersmen who came over the plains knew nothing of the missionary friars or civilized Indians; they came here to squat on public land and respected no possession beyond 160 acres, and that only in the hands of one familiar with the English language and modern weapons. None of the establishments retains its original character.

Where population has grown up around the site, as at Santa Clara, San Francisco, and San Rafael, they became parish churches. At other places squatters took possession of them, extruding priest and mayor-domo impartially, and in more than one case even the churches were sacrilegiously degraded to the use of stables and the like. In others many parts of the buildings were demolished for the sake of the timber, tiles, and other building material they afforded.—John T. Doyle, in January Century.

The people of Culbertson turned out en masse to see if the water from Frenchman river would run up hill through the irrigating ditch that has been dug to water a good portion of the land in that vicinity. The old miracle was performed in due time. The water, after a little hesitation, concluded to go right up and the prophets of evil were disappointed. Fact is that all irrigating ditches and mining flumes appear to the uneducated eye to run up hill. The eye is deceived by the grade of the natural water channel which appears to it a plane, whereas it is always an inclined plane, or there would be no current. The irrigating ditch certainly runs up hill, granting that the stream from which it flows is running on a level. But it isn't running on a level, and there is where the eye gets left.—State Journal.

It Means Muchly.

Work is progressing on a canal water power for Culbertson. McCook is also arranging to tap the Frenchman and thus receive power. Why couldn't the Culbertson canal be extended? McCook should get this water power by all means. It means much.—Hastings Democrat.

S. E. Taylor of McCook, who is a traveling salesman for an Omaha grocery house, was in Bartley, Wednesday, the 24th inst. Mr. Taylor speaks in high terms of the manufactured product of the sugar beet. He says his firm receives orders for samples from some of the states east, and that beet sugar makes a superior article of candy, and gives it as his opinion that there will be a beet sugar plant located in the Republican valley in the near future.

What is a cold in the head. Medical authorities say it is due to uneven clothing of the body, rapid cooling when in a perspiration, etc. The important point is, that a cold in the head is an inflammation of the lining membrane of the nose, which, when unchecked, is certain to produce a catarrhal condition—for catarrh is essentially a "cold" which nature is no longer able to "resolve" or throw off.

Ely's Cream Balm has proved its superiority, and sufferers should resort to it before that common ailment becomes seated and ends in obstinate catarrh.
