WE "PASS" NOBODY.

George Goodwin is back twisting brakes again.

The railroad boys will be "in it" about April 7th.

Supt. Harman of the high line was at headquarters, Monday.

Engine 110 went to Omaha, this week, to be used by the Omaha Land Co.

Engine 198 in the shops is about completed and will be out on the road shortly.

Engineer Tyler and fireman brought the 147 to McCook for work, last Sunday.

Buy a house from S. H. Colvin on the monthly instalment plan and save money.

Five snow plows were in use, Thursday, on the western division and all east of McCook.

The snow in the valley is in greater quantities than at any time before in the past five years.

R. R. Woods, of Buffalo, Wyo., soliciting agent of the Burlington, was a city visitor, Sunday.

Fireman Fred Koger was called to Denver, the early part of the week, by his wife's illness.

Conductor Pope was called east, early in the week, by a telegram announcing his wife's illness.

Mrs. J. H. Burns and the children went down to Hastings, Monday evening, on a visit of recuperation.

Geo. Lavery is once more around on his feet, but has not recovered from his serious illness so as to be on duty.

Elmer DeLong, fireman at St. Francis, has moved his family and goods to McCook and is firing out of McCook now.

Al. Harris who has been doing the hostler at Akron has returned to McCook, on account of his family being sick.

Assist. Supt. C. H. Harman from Holyoke spent Tuesday in McCook, taking in the sights and seeing the trains go by.

John Griffin, wiper, who has been sick for the past month with typhoid fever, has recovered sufficiently to be removed to his home in the country.

Noah B. Thomas an employee of the water service department, died at Holyoke, on Thursday the 25th inst. He had had a long time been unable to work.

Col. Cooper, the tallest man on earth, (being somewhat over 8 feet in height), was an east-bound passenger on No. 4, Wednesday, so Conductor Burns informs us.

General Manager Geo. Holdrege was in Denver, the fore part of the week, and in company with Supt. Campbell made some changes in the motive department.

Master Mechanic Archibald had the ill luck to spend all night of the 25th in a snow drift near Orleans with his engine and snow plow off the track, but he got them on again.

The rail road boys are willing to wager a month's wages that Jim Ritchie will be one of the members of the board of education after April 7th. And he will make a first-class member, too.

Leon D. Reynolds, the jovial fireman, has moved from Holdrege, where he has been working for some time past, to his old town McCook. This time he brings his family with him and has gone to housekeeping.

A destructive wreck happened on the B. & M., four miles east of Sutton at 7:30 Thursday morning. Freight train No. 77, running twenty-five miles an hour, had its rear end run into by the flyer, which was running at the rate of fifty miles an hour. The latter had two engines and a snow plow on the front engine. As the snow was drifting and flying thick at the time it was impossible to see anything ahead. The flyer struck the train ahead with full force, sweeping the trucks from the under side of the freight cars, scattering them like chaff, bending the rails and crushing ties for many rods. The engineer on the front engine sat at his post and with his fireman escaped unharmed. The second engine of the flyer was thrown off the track sideways bodily to the distance of thirty feet and lit on its side. Her engineer, John G. Roberts, fell under the engine and was killed instantly. As he lay pinned to the earth under his engine his hand grasped the steam gauge with the grip of death. Fireman Udel was also injured and died shortly afterwards. The last freight car that was struck stood on top of the engine bodily. It was filled with cattle, nearly all of which were alive. A platform was built up to the car and the affrighted animals were tumbled out. The baggage and express cars and smoker were thrown off the track and smashed up. As near as can be learned there was something wrong with the order on which No. 77 was running. None of the passengers were hurt.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW.

Citizens and Visitors Briefly Mentioned. We Have Had Our Eye on You.

"I Know Not What the Truth May Be,
I Tell it as 'Twas Told to Me."

Judge Cochran was at the capital, Monday, on business.

E. C. Ballew had business at the county-seat, Saturday.

Helen Trowbridge is in the city on a short visit of business.

Miss Cora Murphy of Buda, Ill., is a guest of Mrs. M. E. Knipple.

H. H. Easterday was down the road, yesterday on firm business.

Miss Jenkins, Mrs. McCabe's millinery, arrived from Chicago, yesterday.

Genius Bob Williams of the Stratton Herald was a city visitor, Monday.

Secretary of State Allen sojourned in the city our Sunday on private business.

Dr. A. J. Thomas spent Sunday with his family out on the ranch, returning to his dental work here on Monday.

Dr. A. P. Welles was called up to Akron, Saturday, on an important professional visit, returning home on Sunday.

Judge J. E. Cochran of McCook, says the Lincoln Journal, occupied a sofa in the senate chamber, Wednesday.

J. H. Goodrich, Jr., formerly county treasurer of Red Willow, now a resident of Lincoln, was a city guest, Wednesday.

Lowell Clyde, who has been attending the Illinois College of Pharmacy, at Chicago, during the winter, returned home Tuesday.

D. L. Brace, the Lincoln real estate dealer who has cleaned up a neat fortune out of capital city realty, was a city visitor, Monday.

City Clerk Kelley, who has been absent a few weeks attending to an uncle's business in Des Moines, Iowa, arrived home, Sunday noon on the flyer.

Mr. John Hatfield is here from Decatur, Ills., looking after his large interests out of capital city realty, was a city visitor, Monday.

G. E. Wallin came from Oskaloosa, Ia., yesterday noon. He will remain a few days looking after his real estate interests down in Red Willow precinct.

O. P. Smith, brother of Frank Smith, the pharmacist, has removed to this city from McCook and will assist Frank in his drug business.—Beatrice Express.

Capt. R. O. Phillips, the handsome and clever manager-in-chief of the Lincoln Land Co., came in from Lincoln on yesterday's flyer on business in the "Lalla of the Valley."

U. J. Warren and W. S. Kimmell drove up to Culbertson, Sunday, and enjoyed the matchless hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Hughes of the Commercial House of that burg.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Silbrey, en route home to Indiana from a visit to Portland, Oregon, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Scott, this week. They journeyed eastward this morning.

County Attorney Dodge was before the supreme court, Wednesday, using his best efforts to show that August body that Indianola's costs in the county-seat skirmish ought not to be taxed to Red Willow county.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. DeLand of Sheboygan, Wis., en route home from a visit to California, stopped over in the city, yesterday, to see Mrs. E. G. Nettleton, county superintendent, an old friend and acquaintance.

John F. Majors left, Monday morning, for Wyoming, to assume the duties of his office, special agent of the general land office. His jurisdiction covers the entire state, and his headquarters will be at Cheyenne. His family will remain here for the present.

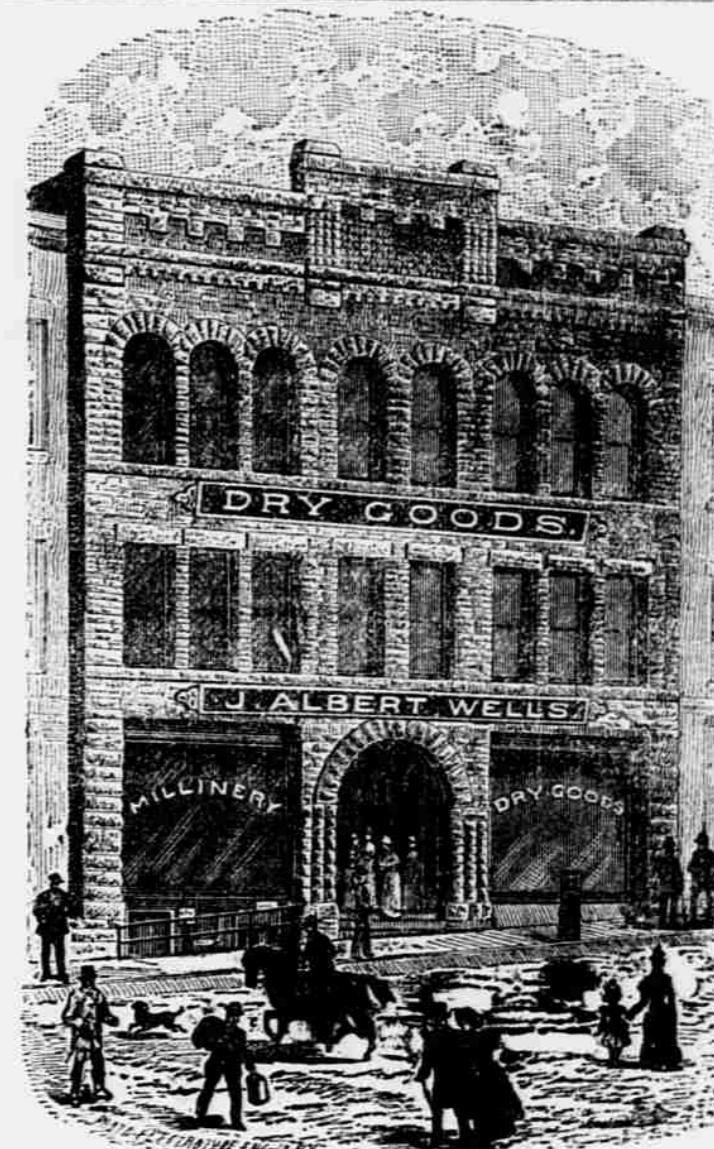

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Rowell enjoyed a visit, the closing days of last week, from their son John and family, who left, the fore part of the week, for Hastings where Mr. Rowell will engage in merchandising. His clerk and brother-in-law, Mr. Anderson, and wife, who were also here, accompanied them.

Mr. Hocknell returned Sunday from the Northwest. He visited, during his brief absence, those marvelous municipalities of the sound, Seattle and Tacoma; also charming, prosperous Portland-on-the-Willamette. To say that he is sensibly impressed with the wondrous progress of that famous and favored section of Uncle Sam's fair domain is putting it strictly mildly.
