VETOED!

A telegram announces that Governor Boyd vetoed the maximum freight bill at 10:30, this morning.

PERHAPS the best thing that has befallen the Republican party in a decade is Paul Vandervort's flop to the independents. Here's hop-in' he will never return.

JUDGING from the amusing show of spunk exhibited by the Italian government, in recalling their minister from this country, as a result of the late Mafia matter, our Italian friends are suffering for just such a sound spanking as Uncle Sam is built for to administer.

THE charges of bribery in the election of United States Senators have of late years come to be matters of such frequent occurrence that they have ceased to excite surprise, and humiliating as the admission may seem, these scandals no longer appear to shock the moral sense of the people. It is now a recognized law of politics that the "longest pole knocks the persimmon," and the protest against this corrupt rule has, unhappily, become enfeebled with its continued practice. In these latter times the attainment of which was a distinguished honor in the days of Webster and Clay depends upon the financial ability of the aspirant to purchase a seat in the Senate. The presence in that body of the millionaires who constitute the bulk of its accessions during the last twenty years indicates the venal level to which the highest legislative body in the land has descended. The personnel of the United States Senate to-day furnishes ample justification of the alarm which is beginning to possess the people and which is awakening a sentiment in favor of electing the members of the upper house of congress by popular vote. The late Senatorial scandal at Sacramento is only one of the many incidents of a like character in other states which show the urgent necessity for a thorough purification of American politics, and which reveal, alas, the long step downward which the country has taken since the days of the fathers of the Republic, when integrity, competency, and pure and undefiled patriotism constituted the qualifications for public service.

THE president has nominated Hon. Thomas H. Carter to succeed Judge Groff as commissioner of the general land office. The appointment is commendable. Mr. Carter is a representative western man. He is less than 37 years of age, but he has won his spurs in the judicial forum of Montana and achieved some distinction in a brief term in congress. He is a man of recognized capability for the important office to which he is appointed, and will be a worthy successor of Judge Groff. He is an industrious man, broad minded and thoroughly conversant with western land matters. The state of Montana includes a wide area of the public domain, and is besides largely interested in the administration of laws governing mineral lands. In so far as the commissioner can direct the policy of the bureau it will be in the interest of the actual settler and the great west. From the standpoint of practical politics, the selection of Mr. Carter is also worthy of commendation. It is a just recognition of the importance of the six new states. They have by far the largest local concern in the transactions of this officer. They came into the union too late to participate in the recent national struggle for national supremacy, but they represent a stronghold of political power whose influence will be felt in subsequent elections. There can be no adverse criticism of the president's action from either party, for the appointee has the respect of both and deserves it. The Bee regretted to see Judge Groff resign his position, but it is gratified to know his successor is a man of character, of legal ability, of general popularity and is from the west.—Bee.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS.

There is to be instruction given in Botany at our coming summer Institute, and in order that our teachers and students may be prepared to profit thereby, I would suggest that you begin the work by gathering the different varieties of leaves as they develop, and when practicable the stem and blossom as well as the leaves of trees.

Those of you who have access to the North Western School Journal will find in the March number Chancellor Bessey's directions for pressing plants. I have attained very good results by pressing the plants in several thicknesses of newspaper, that being always convenient. Use a weight heavy enough to keep the plants unwrinkled while drying. Press and preserve specimens of the different flowers as they appear. Let the specimens be as complete as possible, i. e., the root, stem, leaves, flowers and fruit. Bring your prepared specimens to the Institute and from them we will derive our lessons. These lessons are not only preliminary to the study of the book, but of special assistance in its study, giving us the "thing before the word."

Do not let the painstaking care required deter you from the undertaking. I feel like promising you not only an enthusiastic interest in Botany, but a self-development that will aid you materially in other studies and labors.

Beginning with the first Saturday in May I will be at the brick school house in McCook every Saturday, (except the third of the month,) and shall be ready to see directors on school business or teachers in regard to their studies.

"A GOOD many people have been laughing in their sleeves at the independent members being obliged to stay here after the limit of their compensation expires." Representative Ruggles remarked yesterday, "but the laugh is a little premature. The alliance out in my county has made up a purse of $30 to pay me my per diem, and I am going along just the same as ever with instructions to stay as long as there is any necessity for me here." It is probable that other alliances have taken like steps, so that their representatives can "stay by her, boys," until the last horn blows.—Journal, April 1st.

A prominent member of Lebanon Alliance suggests that they go after Taylor of Loup with a rope. I believe that it is about one hundred years since the Alliance under another name in France went after their former friends with the guillotine. My advice would be before our dear Alliance friends from here start after Taylor with a rope they had better go up to the Loup and make some inquiries. This man Taylor may be a hard one to rope, and from what I have heard about the kind of grub roped out by Roper at Indianola during the past winter I don't think my Alliance friend is in a physical condition to tackle a tough job.

It is reported that a dyed-in-the-wool Republican has loaned himself to the Alliance as their candidate for P. M. at Lebanon. I was told that a warm personal friend of mine from the east end of the precinct signed a petition lately and added ex-county commissioner. It is to be hoped that his many friends throughout the county will not follow his example. For instance let us see how it would work out. Old High in the east end would sign "R. P. High, ex-shoemaker, ex-loan agent," P. B. Garrett, "ex-maker of sorghum molasses;" a majority of the residents of Indianola precinct, "ex-patrons of 'The Cheap Store,' managed by the county clerk;" myself, "Jake Harmon, ex-worker on the section or ex-section hand." THE Keith County News makes the direct charge against Representative Purnell, author of the irrigation bill, that he purposely permitted its defeat in the interest of a "ditch" company at North Platte, after pledging the people of Ogalala that he would notify them if the bill was in danger. The inference is that he was bought off from the support of his own bill, and the News makes a pretty strong case against him. The indications have been strong that the bill was being "monkeyed" with; there is now no doubt of it; and if it is true that Purnell betrayed the trust reposed in him by western Nebraska he is just as odious a traitor as the absconding Senator Taylor.
