FOR SALE—Part of my irrigated farm near McCook, in small lots to suit purchaser. Private ditch. No water rent. Good chance for small fruit farms. Have had two years' experience in Colorado and two in Red Willow county with irrigation.

ANDREW CARSON,
P. O. Box 311, McCook, Neb.

Attorney LeHew of McCook, Neb., was a Denver visitor, last week. In speaking of irrigation he remarked that the farmers of western Nebraska are pinning their faith on irrigation and all are enthusiastic over the new ditches that are being pushed ahead this season. He instances the fact with the statement that the McCook irrigation bonds were carried, five to one, during a week of the heaviest rains that have visited the western part of that state.—Age.

The principle of reciprocity is worthy the brain of the greatest American citizen—Hon. James G. Blaine. There is another great idea, however, of no small importance to McCook, it is the encouragement of manufacturing establishments to locate in our midst and the proper support of the same when they have cast their fortunes with us. It is highly business like and when carried into effect results in the wonderful up-building of a city. THE TRIBUNE wants to suggest in passing that it is about the proper caper for the smoking public to remember that Reizenstein manufactures some of the best brands of cigars to be bought in McCook. Go and reciprocate. Joe will meet you half way.

The new law, which returns to the county treasurer the interest paid on county funds when on deposit, will take out of county politics one of the largest bones of contention.

The number of patriots who are willing and anxious to be slain on the altar of their country, as candidates for county sheriff and clerk of the district court, is unusually large already.

The late heavy rains have revived the old question of paving the gutters on Main Avenue. We will have to come to it sooner or later. But just at present we are hardly prepared to assume the expense necessary to do the work properly.

The question of free school books and supplies is now agitating the minds of the members of the board of education. The purchase of both books and supplies will require the outlay of $1,500 to $2,000 on the part of the district. Hence the agitation.

The Independents are the first to announce the date for their County Convention. It will be held in Indianola on Tuesday, August 11th. Doubtless the results of the deliberations of that day will be looked forward to with more than passing curiosity by the politicians.

The board of education were in special session, Tuesday evening. Among the topics discussed were, a school building for South McCook, and the free text book and school supplies matter. The board decided that they would handle the books through the superintendent of schools.

Just now with the most promising prospects for an unprecedented harvest in sight, there never has been as much politics to the square inch in Nebraska since she donned the garments of statehood. And the truth in the situation compels the admission that the other fellows are in it or thereabouts.

The postponed meeting of the building association was held in the city hall, Monday evening, the routine business of the association being transacted. $200 of the surplus funds were sold at 10 per cent. premium. J. A. Wilcox was elected one of the board of directors vice F. H. Fowler, deceased.

The land deal of the Great Western Watch Factory "boom" has cost our unfortunate Indianola friends about $6,000; of which almost must be placed in the experience column of the ledger. Captain Phillips has the land, Shellenberger has the watch factory in his vest pocket, and Indianola, well, Indianola has the experience.

We have not heard of the existence of a gang of grave robbers in this section, but we evidently have some people in this city or neighborhood mean enough to belong to such an organization. Complaint comes that flowers are being stolen from graves in Longview cemetery. There is no place referred to in the Good Book too sultry for such individuals.

This morning, Frank Harris received the sad and unexpected news, per telegram, of the death of his sister Laura at Galva, Ill., following an illness of a few weeks. Miss Laura has made repeated visits to our city, where she has many warm friends who will be deeply pained to learn of her untimely death, and who will join us in expressions of profoundest sympathy for the bereaved ones of the family. The funeral will occur at Galva, tomorrow.

The case of the state against Clarence Lackey, wherein Cora Bryan was complaining witness, and the charge that of Clarence having had carnal knowledge of Cora who is under the consent age, was dismissed by County Attorney Dodge before Squire Colvin, Wednesday, for want of evidence. The facts indicate that the degraded mother of the little girl is responsible for the downfall of the daughter, who is a mere child, of unusual development.

In the case of Freeman Kelley vs. George W. Irving and Thomas Keely vs. George W. Irving for the preference of the right to make homestead entry on section 21, McCook, Neb., Assistant Secretary Chandler modified the land commissioner's decision and remanded the case for a rehearing upon the question whether the firm of LeHew & O'Donnell were authorized attorneys of Kelley August 3d, 1888, and if they were, preference of the right of entry of said section should be awarded to Keely.—Monday's Bee.

Mrs. Jos. Reizenstein, Mrs. Hager and Mrs. C. L. Gray, Trustees.

Forty-five ladies have already paid charter fees.

THE HEWETT MUSETTES.

"The entertainment at the Paddock opera house, last evening," says the Beatrice Express, "was a pleasant surprise to those in attendance. The company is making its first tour of Nebraska cities, and is not, therefore, well known to local amusement lovers. The program consists of comedy interspersed with musical and other specialties. The music, especially, is fine, and other specialties catching and pleasant. No better cornet playing has been listened to in Beatrice in a long time than that by Charles Hewett, and the violin, cornet, flute, piccolo, and clarinet solos by Frank Hewett were warmly applauded and encored, as were the plantation melodies and operatic selections by the 'Nuggett Nell' quartette, consisting of Charles and Frank Hewett, Zetta Reigan and 'Nuggett Nell,' or Miss May Hewett. In her specialties, 'Nuggett Nell' was very effective, as was Miss Reigan. Both are blessed with pretty faces and dress in becoming costumes."

At the Menard Opera Hall, Tuesday evening, July 30th.

NOTHING TOO RICH.

Gray & Maddux of The Circle Front Livery go on the splendid business principle that there is nothing too rich for their patrons; and they are constantly on the lookout for new attractions. Their latest purchase of Sheriff McCook's handsome and rangey team will doubtless be appreciated by all who take delight in drawing the ribbons over something in the horseless line which is stylish and spirited as well as safe and reliable. This recent acquisition fills all the requirements, and sustains the deserved popularity of The Circle Front.

NOTICE TO STOCK OWNERS.

MCCOOK, NEB., June 26, 1891.

By order of the Mayor and Council, I am instructed to put in the pound all horses and cows found on picket rope, said rope extending across any street or alley of the city.

CITIES INTERESTED IN IRRIGATION

The Age recently called attention to the fact that the city of McCook, Nebraska, had voted $10,000 in bonds to aid an irrigation enterprise designed primarily for the benefit of the farmers, and that the fact had provoked wide and favorable comment. The supreme court of California has recently rendered a decision which finally settles the point that cities are included in irrigation districts, and that municipal tax payers must meet their share of the expenses of district irrigation works. The action of the Nebraska city and the California supreme court thus agree in proclaiming the fact that the towns dependent on surrounding agriculture can afford to assist farmers dependent on irrigation.

Experience in forming irrigation districts in California has developed the singular fact that the heaviest vote in favor of organization comes every time from the property owners of the town included. In the case recently decided an owner of town property set up the objection that the city of Modesto was included in the district by the supervisors for the express purpose of compelling the land owners outside to form a district.

However this may be, it is certain that the people of the towns who can not irrigate are not half so afraid of the tax as some of the outside land owners whose property would remain forever tenth-rate sheep range without water. The vote at Tulare, Escondido, Fallbrook, Anaheim and other places came largely from the town, and as the law requires a two-thirds vote to organize the districts they could not in such case be formed without the vote of the town. Yet in every case where a town has been included the town vote has been overwhelmingly in favor of organizing. All of which shows that town people are pretty good judges of what makes trade. And these are cities where almost to a man the voter is a taxpayer, and are not like the big cities having a large floating or irresponsible voting element that will vote for anything to put a little money in circulation.—Irrigation Age.

THEY WANT A SCHOOL HOUSE.

The late school census shows that there are 108 persons of school age in South McCook. As this number largely exceeds the total attendance upon public schools from that section of the city, the question naturally arises, why? Perhaps there are two reasons more prominent and worthy of consideration than others. In the first place, poverty keeps some away. The late legislature provided relief for such in the law passed which makes it the duty of the school board to provide books and supplies free. Secondly and in all likelihood the most pressing is the distance from the school houses and the danger attendant upon crossing the railroad yard. As many of the children are quite young this is a real peril. THE TRIBUNE takes the liberty of suggesting that this cause may be removed in part at least by the establishment of a school in South McCook for the primary pupils. As the west ward school house is vacant it could be moved down there and utilized with good results. We believe that the people of South McCook are entitled to consideration in this matter. They have broached it before.

IN SHIP SHAPE.

Mr. E. H. Doan, the new proprietor, but well known to the patrons of the mill, is hard at it these quiet crop-sowing days putting the McCook Roller Mill in ship shape for the fall trade, which he confidently expects to be brisk and large. He will be prepared to take care of the rush when it comes, too.

In the meantime they are ready to promptly dispose of all business which comes, and are keeping their popular brands before the public as usual.
