Newsy Notes About Nebraska Places and People.
Freemont has let the contract for more street paving.
Saline county has seventeen criminal cases on her court docket.
Diphtheria has broken out at Friend and is creating great alarm.
Fairmont's water works system will be completed before snow flies.
The North Bend schools have been closed on account of diphtheria.
From every section of the state come reports of a great yield of winter wheat.
Fifty-two quarters of land have changed hands in Cass county this fall.
The Kearney cotton mill is unable to fill all its orders and will be forced to enlarge.
The state Christian endeavor convention will be held at Beatrice, Oct. 7, 8 and 9.
Great interest is awakened in the Presbyterian revival at York. The lamp still burns.
The Norfolk sugar factory is turning out 40,000 to 50,000 pounds of granulated sweetness per day.
The immense crop in Hitchcock county has necessitated the building of a new elevator at Culbertson.
Walt Mason, the Nebraska genius of poetry and song, has taken the contract to change the tune of the World-Herald.
Alma Gustafson of Geneva had her arm broken and her face badly bruised by a windlass crank. Cranks are dangerous things.
Badker Allen Gerard, one of the oldest settlers, is authority for the statement that cholera found a few victims in the Platte valley in 1852.
The city jail of Wilber is no more. An inmate set fire to it and came very near having all the fun he wanted. He was released barely in time to save his life.
For peddling on the streets of Fremont without a license, Frank Smith was fined $50. Not having that sum about his person, he will languish in jail.
While romping with her play mates at school the little daughter of Isaac Wilson of Fairmont, was injured internally and her life is despaired of.
George Saylor, who lived on a farm near Superior, fell dead in his field from heart disease. He was thirty-two years of age and leaves a wife and four children.
White Handley of Nebraska City has a number of vicious dogs that have lately bitten several people, and the offended public is arranging for a general canine killing bee.
Mrs. Armagost, charged with poisoning her husband and several other people at David City, has been held to answer in the district court for murder in the first degree.
The fair at Columbus this week was the most successful of any ever held in Platte county. The fruit display was astonishing.
George Niles of Plattsmouth, while visiting at Council Bluffs, was bitten by a vicious dog and to guard against possible results has gone to Chicago for treatment at a Pasteur.
At McCool Junction small boys set fire to burn weeds and destroyed a lot of lumber and bridge material. About the same time a farm house five miles distant, belonging to Matthew Osterhandt, was burned.
The four years' course of the C. L. S. C. embraces the subjects taken up in an average college course, and in this way the circle gives to its readers the college student's general outlook in history, literature, science and art. The study of the languages and of the higher mathematics, however, does not form a part of the work of the C. L. S. C. The circle is not in any sense a college, either in its course of study or in its methods of work. Yet it puts into the homes of the people influences and ambitions which will lead many thousand youths to seek colleges and universities. The circle is unsectarian and unsectional, promoting fraternity and inspiring help to the home, the church and the state. The C. L. S. C. is for busy people who left school years ago and who desire to pursue some systematic course of instruction.
In fact, Chautauqua is for every one who wishes to improve. No one can read the books of the course without learning something.
The required books for 1892-1893 comprises the following:
"Grecian History," by James R. Joy, A. M.
"Callias, an Historical Romance," by Professor A. J. Church, London university.
"The United States and Foreign Powers," by W. E. Curtis, of the United States state department.
"Classic Greek Course in English," by Professor W. C. Wilkinson, the university of Chicago.
"Greek Architecture and Sculpture," (illustrated), by Professor F. H. Smith and George Redford, London.
"A Manual of Christian Evidences," by Professor George P. Fisher, Yale university.
"The Chautauquan," (12 numbers, illustrated.)
Any one wishing to become a reader or in other ways in need of information concerning Chautauqua, may write to either of the following addresses: W. E. Hardy, Lincoln, Neb.; Chautauqua Central Office; Drawer 194, Buffalo, N. Y.
