I was suffering ten years from shocks in my head, so much so, that at times I didn't expect to recover. I took medicines from many doc-tors, but did not get any relief until I took Pas-tor Koenig's Nerve Tonic; the second dose re-lieved and two bottles cured me.

ARTIFICIAL GOLD.

IT IN THE OLDEN TIME.

It Brought to Most of Them an Unhappy Fate-If One Failed to Carry Out an Extravagant Promise He Lost His Life. An American Turns a Trick.

It has often been stated, and with truth, that modern chemistry is indebted for much of its knowledge to the althe purpose of making gold by artifice actually attempted to imprison the sun's rays, which they tried to calcine and to obtain the philosopher's stone, which the was to transmute all other metals into gold, from honey, sugar, wine, blood, and grew from seed, other metals merely furnishing a fruitful soil in which the vellow germs developed like plants.

In a work now rare, called the "History of Ancient Pharmacy," it is mentioned that Raymond Nully was said to have transformed 50,000 pounds of mercury into gold for the English King Edward III, and that from this supply of the yellow metal the first rose nobles were coined. The credibility of the story is somewhat diminished, however, by the circumstance that the same monarch was soon after obliged to coin money from his own and the queen's crown, and from the golden vessels of churches and cloisters. It is gravely recorded that the Emperor Frederic III, on Jan. 15, 1648, at Prague, changed three pounds of mercury into two and onehalf pounds of gold by means of one grain of a lead powder given to him by a man named Richthausen. He created this man Baron of Chaos, and from the gold a medal was made which bore an inscription referring to its artificial origin. This medal was long preserved in the Vienna treasury. In 1705 a Saxon lieutenant named Paykull was taken prisoner by Charles XII at Warsaw and condemned to death. of gold each year if his life were spared. In the presence of witnesses Paykull changed six ounces of lead into gold by means of a tincture which contained antimony, sulphur and saltpeter among other ingredients. Out of this gold class in concert. medals were stamped. But Paykull must have failed in subsequent attempts, ain't never hed anythin to say about ecause he was afterward executed. If this goose had been able to lay real golden eggs it is to be presumed that he would not have met with so melancholy a fate. The business of manufacturing gold tremely dangerous one, commonly bringing persons who pursued it to a violent death. George Honauer promised to transform thirty-six hundredweight of iron into gold for the prince of Wurtemberg. The prince detected a boy, who had been concealed in the laboratory, in the act of putting gold in the crucible. He thereupon ordered an iron gallows to be constructed, from which the imprudent fakir was hanged in 1697. Two other goldmakers were likewise hanged from this same gallows at Stuttgart in 1606 and 1738 respectively.

In 1677 a man named Krohnemann entered the service of the marquis of Brandenburg with the rank of colonel. He soon won reputation as a goldmaker, and was given charge of the mint and mines. Subsequently he was suspected of fraud, and on his trial it was proved that he had stolen gold and silver from the treasury of the margrave for use in the deception. He was condemned to be

A quack named Daniel supplied Italian apothecaries with a wonderful gold powder called "usufur," which was supposed to have astonishing medicinal value. Pretending that the art of compounding this usufur with other drugs was a mystery known only to himself, he directed his patients not to permit the apothecaries to mix the ingredients of his prescriptions, but to buy them, including the usufur, and bring them to him for putting together. He mixed the drugs, omitting the usufur, in which manner he succeeded in having restored to him the gold powder, previously sold by him at a high price to the apothecaries. The powder soon became famous, and the quack finally offered to art of making gold. The duke paid | mouth. Daniel 20,000 ducats for the secret, and the swindler fled to France with the Count Cajetan in 1705, in the presence of Frederick I of Prussia, changed one pound of mercury into gold by means of a red tincture. Subsequently he promised to make $6,000,000 worth of gold in six weeks, but, failing to keep his word, he was hanged, draped in gold leaf, which became the customary method of dealing with alchemists. The tribe of alchemists is not yet entirely extinct. In 1880 an American named Wise duped a member of the Rohan family and a collateral descendant of the "necklace cardinal," whom Cagliostro deceived by pretending to make gold. Wise got a considerable sum of money from Rohan and decamped. Only a few days ago the writer picked up a little pamphlet on a bookstall in New York which contained several pages of advertisements of a substance for transmuting other metals into gold, the price being only five dollars.-Washington Star.

Uncle Silas was the best posted man on general topics in the village, and a hunter of renown as well. He also had a virago for a wife. Dear, dear, what a temper that woman had! She was the only thing on earth of which Uncle Silas was afraid.

One day a class of school children called on the old man. They were sent by their teacher to get some facts in natural history.

"We've come," said the spokesman of the class, "to ask you some questions, Uncle Silas, about the habits and customs of the wildcat."

Uncle Silas had been very glad to see them, as the broad smile on his face He promised to make $1,000,000 worth | testified. But now he looked very much alarmed.

Japanese Dentistry.

"The Japanese use no instrument for extracting teeth, but lift them out with the thumb and forefinger," said Henry Baker to a guest of the Southern, who was wearing his jaw in a sling as the result of a pair of forceps slipping and getting more than they were sent for. "While jolly Dick Hubbard was minister to Japan I visited that country and spent a pleasant week with him. One day I was troubled with the toothache, and Mr. Hubbard took me to a dentist and explained to the saddle colored operator that I wanted the grinder extracted. I was placed in a bamboo chair and tilted slightly back. The dentist examined my teeth, talking volubly meanwhile to Uncle Sam's representative. Suddenly his thumb and forefinger closed on the troublesome tooth, and before I had the faintest idea of what was going to happen he lifted it out and held it up before me, smiling at the same time that vacant smile peculiar to the children of the orient. 'You were waiting for the forceps, were you? said Minister Hubbard, with a laugh. 'They don't use 'ein here.' "-St. Louis Globe-Democrat,

A Strange Feasting Custom. There was a strange custom in the Isle of Lewis, when the people used to gather to the church of St. Mulvay at night, each family bringing provisions, and each family furnishing a peck of malt, which was brewed into ale. One who was chosen for the purpose waded into the sea up to his middle and poured out a cup of ale, calling on a sea god called Shony to favor the people through the coming year. The people, after seeing the ceremony performed, returned to the church, and then went to the fields to spend the rest of the night in revelry.-New York Tribune.

The Clever Bheel Robbers. It is said that once, before the English had become used to the maneuvers of the robbers in India, an officer with a party of horse was chasing a small body of Bheel robbers and was fast overtaking them. Suddenly the robbers ran behind a rock, or some such obstacle, which hid them for a moment, and when the soldiers came up the men had mysterisearch, the officer ordered his men to dismount beside a clump of scorched and withered trees, and, the day being very hot, he took off his helmet and hung

THE New Orleans Picayune demands the instant repeal of the McKinley tariff bill and a return to the schedules put in force in 1883. It is significant that the best thing the people of the south can find to take the place of the republican robber tariff of 1890 is the republican robber tariff of 1883, which was some $50,000,-000 higher in the aggregate than the much abused McKinley bill The change is desired because if the bill of 1883 quietly slips back into effect the duty on sugar will be restored. But that duty will not be put back on the schedules in the present generation. No party would dare fly in the face of public opinion by making any changes in the sugar duty, further than taking off the last farthing on refined sugars and making

But at all events, now the prohibitionists have, as they claim, a testimonial from the people as to the efficacy of the law, it is to be hoped that they will, so far as politics is concerned, let it go at that and not mix the matter up in any campaign for a number of years. The matter of temperance in Kansas, however, prohibition or not, is of course always worthy of attention, and, if the Kansas temperance people for the next year or so institute a genuine temperance revival, with the blue ribbons instead of the political attachment, they may do a great deal of good.
