The Call Leads the Procession.
We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of The Call in another column. Since its reduction in price The Call is the cheapest daily in Nebraska, and its spicy and independent policy is too well known to need comment from us. In reducing the price of The Call so as to put it within the reach of everybody, the management have placed themselves a decided step in advance of all other publishers in the state. This is an era of popular prices for the newspaper, and The Call is, as usual, at the head of the procession.

Burned Building and Contents.
BARTLEY, NEB., December 5.—[Special.]—F. A. Jackson's house took fire on Sunday night from a defective flue. Fortunately the noise awoke the son, but in trying to save the house they lost nearly all of their furniture, and also the vegetables and farm implements stored in the large cellar. There was no insurance, but E. M. Wolf, J. R. Harry and other neighbors started a subscription to aid him in rebuilding. Mr. Jackson came here from Fillmore county, but he lived on Stephen's creek, a few miles from Lincoln before that city was started.—Journal.

The President's Message.
PRESIDENT HARRISON takes grim satisfaction in his annual message to congress in demonstrating to the democrats in that body and to the country in general that this nation has reached an extraordinary degree of prosperity under the rule of the republican party. In order that there may be no mistake about it he quotes a long array of figures showing the exact industrial situation of the country at present and the wonderful progress made in the last few years. He contrasts the conditions prevailing here and abroad, notes the great increase in the number of our manufacturing establishments since the passage of the McKinley bill, calls attention to the flattering record made by the working classes on the books of the saving banks of the country, and declares that work has never been more abundant and the rewards of labor never more ample, whether measured in dollars or in necessities and luxuries of life, in the history of the government.
That this satisfactory condition of things has been brought about without the destruction of our foreign commerce is also clearly demonstrated. He shows that the exports of the fiscal year 1892 were the largest ever enjoyed by the nation, reaching the magnificent total of $1,030,278,148. The imports for the same year entering free of duty were also the largest on our history, reaching a total of $457,999,65. Of the total imports of merchandise, over one half, or 55.35 per cent, came in absolutely free of duty in 1892, against 43.35 per cent in 1891, and 33.66 per cent in 1890. The president presents these figures in a clear and convincing manner, arguing with his usual ability that the present law is not a "Chinese tariff wall" but a scientific arrangement of duties for the protection of American people and the American laborer.
The result of the election is alluded to briefly as an order for a reversal of the policy of protection which has given the country so much prosperity in the last thirty years. The president remarks that it would be offensive to suggest that the incoming administration will not carry out its pledges to substitute a tariff law drafted solely with reference to the revenue it will produce for the present law giving protection to American industries. As the country has reached a high plane of prosperity under the protective laws and is in a most gratifying condition industrially and commercially at present, President Harrison sees no necessity for making changes, and therefore recommends that the consideration of tariff alternations to be left to the next congress.
The section devoted to the tariff is one of the clearest and strongest arguments presented during the entire discussion of this great question, but it is not the only interesting part of this admirable message. Every phase of the work of the government is discussed with the ability which characterizes all of the president's state papers, and with his usual thoroughness and good sense. It is strong and clear in every feature, and especially pleasing to his party on account of the manly way in which it upholds the republican policy notwithstanding the recent political upheaval.—Journal.
An energetic effort is to be made the coming session of congress to make the census bureau a permanent organization. It is proposed to retain the superintendent, not necessarily the present one, for he is a republican, and probably a score of the principal chiefs, statisticians and clerks, who as soon as the eleventh census is out of the way shall begin the preliminary work upon the next census, to be taken in 1900. A great deal of time and money are lost every ten years in training the leading clerks in the office and beginning the preliminary work. It is believed that the work could be completed in half the time at much less expense if a skeleton organization was maintained at the census bureau.
Two Harrison electors in North Dakota literally got through by the skin of their teeth. One had three and the other twenty-five plurality.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood, Lowell, Mass.
"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. KINCHLOZ, Conway, Ark.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ANCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular produce, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
