SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of an order of sale in degree of foreclosure of mortgage, issued out of the district court of Red Willow county, Nebraska, and to me directed, I was, on the 15th day of January, A. D. 1892, at one o'clock P. M., at the front door of the court house in Indianola, Red Willow county, Nebraska, that being the highest bidder for cash, the real estate, described in said order of sale as follows, to-wit: The northwest quarter of section twenty-six, (26) in township two, north of range thirty, (30) west of the 6th P. M. in Red Willow county, Nebraska. Said property to be sold to satisfy J. Lovell Moore the sum of nine hundred and seventy dollars and forty-two cents judgment, with interest thereon from June 6th, A. D. 1892, to satisfy the Globe Investment company, as defendants, to the sum of ninety-three dollars and forty cents judgment, with interest thereon from the 6th day of June, A. D. 1892, and twenty-nine dollars and seventy-eight cents costs with interest thereon from June 16th, 1892, until paid, together with accruing costs, according to a judgment rendered by the district court of said Red Willow county at its June term, A. D. 1892, in an action therein pending wherein J. Lovell Moore was plaintiff and Joseph A. Brower, and G. O. Brower and others were defendants. Dated this 14th day of December, A. D. 1892. E. R. BANKS, Sheriff of Red Willow county, Nebraska. J. E. KELLEY, Attorney.

First publication December 23, 1892.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of an order of sale directed to me from the district court of Red Willow county, Nebraska, on a judgment obtained before Hon. D. T. Welby, Judge of the district court of Red Willow county, Nebraska, on the 20th day of October, 1892, in favor of Mary J. Cole, as plaintiff, and against Stephen Tuttle et al., as defendants, for the sum of five hundred and fifty-five ($555) dollars, and 50 cents, and costs taxed at $39.73 and accruing costs, and C. C. White, receiver, on his cross petition obtained a decree for $553.41. I have levied upon the following real estate taken as the property of said defendant to satisfy said judgment, to-wit: Commencing at the southeast corner of lot 7, block 10 original town of McCook, thence north 8 feet, thence west 25 feet, thence south 80 feet, thence east 35 feet to place of beginning, and being a part of lots seven and eight in block nineteen. And will offer the same for sale to the highest bidder, for cash in hand, on the 23rd day of January, A. D. 1893, in front of the south door of the court house, in Indianola, Nebraska, that being the building wherein the last term of court was held, at the hour of one o'clock P. M., of said day, when and where due attendance will be given by the undersigned. Dated December 21, 1892. E. R. BANKS, Sheriff of said county.

A PROFESSIONAL "WEEPER."

A Young Scamp Who Finds Begging More Profitable Than Working.

"Jack the Weeper" is well known about the lower part of the town. He has been exploited in the newspapers in connection with arrest and incarceration, has been interviewed and had his picture taken, and on various occasions has sworn off from professional weeping. "Jack the Weeper" is a diminutive looking specimen of a seven-year-old boy with a twenty-year-old face and a stock of experience and cunning rarely accumulated by mankind this side of fifty. He is ostensibly a newsboy, but the fraternity hold him in great contempt or know him only to thump him. His "racket" has been to get a bundle of papers together late in the evening and weep at the foot of the elevated stairs down town.

Sympathetic people cast him pennies and nickels and dimes, and sometimes an occasional quarter or half dollar found an abiding place in the weeper's inside pocket—all on the supposition that he was an honest lad who had been "stuck." Thus the weeper found that tears could be coined into cash more easily and profitably than by the ordinary course of the news trade. But just as Jack had worked up a fairly regular trade in came a policeman, a cold and calculating man of the world, with a club, and broke up business by arrest, examination and consequent publicity.

At the foot of a down town stairway of a Sixth avenue elevated station in the most fashionable part of New York recently occurred a scene which demonstrated that "Jack the Weeper" had not only not gone out of business, but had vastly improved upon former methods.

It was about the fashionable shopping hour and the swell women and diletante young men were flocking to the down town trains. A delicate lad, with a consumptive cough and a bundle of castoff morning newspapers, stood shivering at the foot of the stairs, two great big homemade tears ploving their way through the dirt on his cheeks as the muddy waters of the Missouri seek the sea. Several of us stopped out of sympathy and began to question the boy. At the same time nearly every hand in the crowd instinctively sought for change. An exceedingly sharp eyed lady impulsively pulled out a bill and pushed it into his trembling fingers, accompanying the act with an appealing look around upon the rest of us. It worked.

Everybody in sight gave silver, and an old lady who came in later on the scene pressed a two dollar note upon the child. I missed two trains to note the goodly sight, and felt proud of my fellow creatures and the beautiful sympathy of my kind. The boy never said a word. He merely coughed and wept and scooped in the coin. In the excitement of the moment I forgot an errand I had at the next station and went past it. Then I got out, went up the other side and rode back.

There was a little mob gathered on the down town side at the foot of the stairs. So nearly like the other mob was it that at first I thought I had made another mistake and gone back to my starting point. But no; it was the next station.

Well, "shiver my timbers!" as the old salt says, if there wasn't the same boy with the same graveyard cough, the same weep, the same old papers, and what was more astonishing, here was the same sharp eyed, benevolent lady in the midst of a group of sympathetic women, just starting a liberal subscription.

My first impulse was to jump in and grab her and yell for the police, but I conquered it and walked away, wondering how much money there was in this new snap of the woman and the weeper.

—New York Herald.

Are Scott and Dickens Obsolete?

Who reads Scott and Dickens now? To that question what is the true answer? The implied answer of course is that no one reads them or that their readers are getting yearly fewer. It may be said at once, and it may be said flatly, that it is not the case. They are not only still read by many people, but they are read by more people today than they ever were before. This fact is substantiated by the copies of their works that are sold; indeed it stares us in the face at every railway book store.

Scott and Dickens, if measured by the number of their readers, are growing in popularity, not declining. I should certainly say that, so far as my own observation can inform me, no two writers are more universally familiar at this moment than Scott and Dickens. The old have read them; the young are reading them, nor need any one doubt the fact because they are not discussed like novelties.—W. H. Mallock in Forum.

A Famous Expression.

"There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip" is a very old saying, and was first uttered to the king of Samos, an island in the Grecian archipelago. This king, Aeneas by name, planted a vineyard and treated the slaves who cultivated it so badly that one of them told him he would never live to taste the wine made from it. When the wine was ready and a cup of it poured out for the king he sent for the slave who had prophesied his death, and asked him what he thought of his prophecy now.

The slave replied, "There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," and just as he had spoken the words Aeneas received warning that a wild boar had broken into his vineyard and was ruining it. Putting down the wine untasted, he rushed out to attack the boar and was killed.—Harper's Young People.

Athletics and Corsets.

Miss Homans, the head of the Normal School of Gymnastics in Boston, gives in a recent interview these statistics concerning the influence of athletics upon dress. "Two years ago," she says, "out of a class of thirty-seven there were but two of the young women at the end of the school year who continued to wear corsets, and no one continued to wear French heels. Last year out of a class of seventy-one seven-eighths gave up wearing corsets."

By sending $1.75 at once you will obtain the paper free for January and for a full year, to January, '94. Address The Youth's Companion, Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Ina Potts on Tuesday retired from the management of the Benkelman House and in company with her idolized hotel clerk, Al Dean, and waiter girl, Maud Bell, skipped by the light of the waning moon for McCook, leaving a number of creditors in Benkelman to mourn over her departure. One of her creditors John Smith, the proprietor of the Eagle Grocery, did not relish being the victim of her unscrupulous business methods and he secured authority as deputy sheriff and left on the passenger Wednesday noon for McCook for the purpose of bluffing the recreant landlady into a settlement of the bill he held against her. But she had seen bluffing before and John's best bluffing efforts failed to have the desired effect upon her. John then arrested her and also took Dean and Miss Bell in custody and brought the outfit back to Benkelman on the flyer yesterday noon. Mrs. Potts was arranged before Judge Israel on the charge of attempting to defraud her creditors, but she was acquitted. She and her dear Dean left together this morning on the east bound passenger. They are a pair of bad character and Benkelman is grateful for being rid of them.—Benkelman Bee.

The Call Leads the Procession.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of The Call in another column. Since its reduction in price The Call is the cheapest daily in Nebraska, and its spicy and independent policy is too well known to need comment from us. In reducing the price of The Call so as to put it within the reach of everybody, the management have placed themselves a decided step in advance of all other publishers in the state. This is an era of popular prices for the newspaper, and The Call is, as usual, at the head of the procession.
