To the People of Red Willow County:

The managers of the fair have been fortunate in securing for exhibition a large collection in natural history, consisting of over 200 different varieties of eggs, over 1,000 eggs in all, two sets alike, containing almost every kind known, from that of the ostrich egg, measuring 18 inches, down to that of the hummingbird, no larger than a small sized bean.

Snake eggs, alligator and turtle eggs, all kinds of birds' nests. A large collection of sea shells, petrified woods, barks, snails, snakes etc.

Six kinds of coral, sea ferns, sea grass, sea cow-fish, porcupine fish, sea beavers, etc. A large collection of bugs, beetles and butterflies.

50 specimens of snakes, spiders, lizards etc., in alcohol.

A large variety of fruits and vegetables grown in large bottles with small necks.

This will be a rare opportunity for the children of our public schools, and students of natural history, to study the great book of nature. The owner, Mr. Pyfer, will be in attendance to answer all questions with reference thereto.

Rev. James Lisle will also exhibit his large collection of Indian relics, consisting of tomahawks, pipes, war-clubs, bows and arrows, earthenware, etc. In fact the collection contains all articles and instruments in use and manufactured by the "red men".

No one should fail to come to the fair if for nothing more than to see these two special attractions.

FRENCH WOMEN JOURNALISTS.

Some Are Ranked Among the Notables of Paris—Their Work and Manners.

The newspaper women of France are comparatively few. They are constantly accused of a total lack of the critical faculty and of a want of perception of the ridiculous. Furthermore, their ideas on ethics and philosophy are said to be "stale." Nevertheless it is true that their contributions to magazines and periodicals are impatiently awaited and widely read, after which many of the masculine writers go into mental convulsions and tear their vocabularies in tatters in trying to prove that these feminine effusions were worse than worthless.

The women who, in spite of this, persist in writing do not have sinecures. Not long ago at a celebrated criminal trial a woman journalist presented herself at the court as the judiciary reporter of a leading morning newspaper in Paris. The police are said to have been aghast when Mme. Severine drew forth her pad and pencil and demanded admission to the press tables. The guards were somewhat taken aback, and with a deplorable lack of French chivalry, wanted to turn her away. But, by wit or wiles of some sort, she gained her point and cleared a pathway for all women reporters who shall come after her.

Mme. Edmond Adam is another woman journalist, perhaps the leading one in Paris. She is a politician, author and editor. She has been honored by the municipality of Paris in having her name given to one of the streets of the capital, an honor rarely bestowed on a person during her lifetime. It isn't much of a street, to be sure, the Rue Juliette Lambert but it is young and may grow some day. Under Napoleon III Mme. Adam had a salon in opposition to the imperial government, and there she reigned. She was young and handsome then, with soft, pretty hair and bright blue eyes. She was an intense republican and a great friend of Garibaldi. At the close of the Franco-Prussian war she had no one in France to particularly oppose, so she selected Bismarck. Such phrases as these have been attributed to her: "Bismarck and me!" "Bismarck was to have been overthrown by me!" "At last the czar condescends to follow my political views!"

She is a good speaker and can talk on almost any subject. Her dinners are decidedly interesting. One-fourth of her guests are usually officers of the French army, another fourth is composed of political men, and the others are artists and literary people. The dinners are usually followed by receptions, which are attended by cabinet ministers, deputies, senators, diplomats and journalists. There are, except on special occasions, few women.

Mme. Severine is both more valiant and more sentimental than Mme. Adam. Severine, as she is familiarly called, is a well known figure in Paris. She has been nicknamed Mamzelle Gavroche and Jenny L'Ouvriere, and although she is much given to literary floods of tears, she writes vigorously and well. She has her own particular conceptions of good and evil. Severine imbibes her political views from The Cri du Peuple (The Voice of the People), and Mme. Adam drinks of the fountain of La Republique Francaise, founded by Gambetta. Severine's ambition is to secure the abolition of capital punishment.

Mme. Yver is a curious figure in the newspaper world. She frequents the prefecture of police, and is remarkable for her persistent praise of the police and the justice they dispense. "Good," in her mind, is represented by the prefect of police, the detectives and the gendarmes, but never by the prisoners. Gyp is another woman journalist, but her name—Mme. de Martel—is better known in connection with novels on Parisian high life and as author of a few comedies. She is a noted contributor, in a very light vein, to that lively publication, La Vie Parisienne. Gyp is popular, and, besides being a writer of great talent, paints with success.

Perhaps the most successful newspaper women in Paris are those who write about the thing they know best—fashions. But men are encroaching somewhat upon this territory, and altogether woman's place in French journalism is not all that could be desired.—New York Sun.

Why Is It?

Why is it that a woman can struggle until she is red in the face and worn out both in temper and body by a window in a railroad train in her vain endeavors to close or open it when all that a man has to do is to walk up and go over exactly the same line of action that she has already exhausted, and down comes the refractory window in a jiffy? It is a most humiliating fact, but a very true one nevertheless, that not five women out of a dozen ever succeed in arranging a window to their satisfaction. They pull and tug until they are embarrassed, and finally, in a pleading manner, look around at some slip of a man, who, without any nonsense, brings about the desired effect, while the woman looks on in silent wonder at his marvelous skill and dexterity.—Philadelphia Times.

Birds Enjoy a Shower Bath.

A friend reports a pretty incident. During the hot, dry weather the birds about her house were apparently much in need of bathing places, and the lady discovered that every day when she went out to water her flowers a little bird hovered about as if he wanted something. Presently he revealed what he did want by getting under the sprinkling of the water pot or beneath the dripping plants, and fluffing his feathers in this shower bath just as he would in a pool, and plainly enjoying it in the highest degree. He began to watch for the daily coming of the lady to water her plants and gave himself up to his bath with gay abandon.—Boston Transcript.

Love Is Love Forever More.

Fanny—He said he loved me with a love that could triumph o'er the grave.
Nanny—Yes. That engagement ring he gave you was buried with his first wife, I know.—Truth.

We Mean Business.

The public is quick to appreciate an article of merit, and when the publishers of The State Journal began offering their Semi-Weekly at only $1.00 per year, the same price that others ask for their weeklies which only give half as many papers, the subscription list doubled in a few months, and has since been growing with wonderful rapidity leaving the old-fashioned weeklies away behind. People don't see any use in waiting a whole week for the news when they can get it fresh twice a week for the same money. Readers of The Semi-Weekly Journal get 104 papers a year for only $1.00, which is less than one cent per copy, and they find the paper almost as good as a daily. If you have not yet tried this great paper, do so at once. It gives you the market twice each week, which alone is worth the price. Some of our special offers are: The Journal and either The Standard History of the United States, Stanley's Adventures in Africa, Life of Spurgeon or Life of Harrison, handsomely bound books, postage all paid, for $1.40. The Journal and weekly New York Tribune both one year, $1.25. For $2.00 we will send The Journal two years and one of the above books free; for two new subscribers (your one may be one of them) we will send you any one of the above named books free for $1.65 we will send The Journal and Tribune, and any one of the books. We mean business and our offers are down to hard-time prices. Send for a free sample at once. Address, Nebraska State Journal, Lincoln, Neb.

Harvest Excursions.

It is with satisfaction that the Burlington Route makes the following announcement regarding this year's Harvest Excursions.

The dates which have been fixed for these excursions are August 22, September 12, and October 10. On them, all railroad agents west of St. Louis and Chicago will sell round-trip tickets to Burlington Route stations in Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, South Dakota and Wyoming at extremely low rates. Tickets will be good for twenty days and will admit of stop-over on the going trip at any point west of the Missouri River.

These facts are brought to the notice of the residents of the different States reached by the Burlington Route in order that they may inform their friends in the East that, during the next few months, three unequalled opportunities of coming West will present themselves.

The Passenger Department of the Burlington Route will gladly aid the people of the towns along its lines in their efforts to induce Eastern people to avail themselves of the advantages of these Homeseekers' Excursions. The undersigned, on request, will not only mail to any desired address a supply of advertising matter, but he will also be pleased to put interested parties in the way of obtaining the most favorable rates of fare.

J. FRANCIS,

General Passenger Agent, Burlington Route, Omaha, Neb.

More Students Will Be Taken.

To all County Superintendents: I am informed that the report is being generally circulated throughout the state that the limits of registration at the University have been reached, and that no more students need apply for enrollment in September.

Will you kindly give the widest possible denial to this in your local press and otherwise. We have been obliged to limit the number of students for the year to fifteen hundred, but that number has not yet been enrolled. Estimating a certain per cent. of failure to attend, on the part of those who have already asked for recognition, it is safe to say that three or four hundred students can be accepted between this date and the opening of the semester, Sept. 18.

Notwithstanding the unusual personal effort that must be put forth by every member of our faculty to care for the great increase in numbers, we are not willing to have a single child deprived of the advantages so wisely and freely offered by the state. Very cordially yours,

J. A. CANFIELD, Chancellor, Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 10, 1893.

Remember that Perry Stone will bring fresh meats of all kinds, right to your door, every day.

My Dearest Kate:

Owing to an unexpected visit from some distant friends I will be unable to call to-night. I am so sorry it happened but will not disappoint you about the ring. I found the loveliest one where you suggested, at Carruth & Son's. They had such a nice assortment and so cheap. I was puzzled to know Over.

BALD HEADS

What is the condition of yours? Is your hair dry, harsh, brittle? Does it split at the ends? Has it a lifeless appearance? Does it fall out when combed or brushed? Is it full of dandruff? Does your scalp itch? Is it dry or in a heated condition? If these are some of your symptoms be warned in time or you will become bald.

SKOOKUM ROOT HAIR GROWER

is what you need. Its production is not an accident, but the result of scientific research. Knowledge of the diseases of the hair and scalp led to the discovery of how to treat them. "Skookum" contains neither minerals nor oils. It is not a dye, but a delightfully cooling and refreshing Tonic. By stimulating the follicles, it stops falling hair, cures dandruff and grows hair on bald heads. Keep the scalp clean, healthy and free from irritating eruptions, by the use of Skookum Skin Soap. It destroys parasitic insects, which feed on and destroy the hair. If your druggist cannot supply you, send direct to us, and we will forward promptly, on receipt of price. Grower, $1.00 per bottle; 6 for $5.00. Soap, 50c per jar; 6 for $2.50.
