VAULTON NOTES.

Mrs. C. S. Ferris and daughter Maggie have been on the sick list.

One of our old time stockmen reports stock looking as well as at any time in previous years.

Mrs. Carpenter has been spending a few weeks visiting friends in the east, we understand.

Andrew Fauss suffered a severe sprain of the ankle last week, which confines him to the house for a season.

Is not this a winter long to be remembered? No need of seeking a southern latitude, from the present outlook.

Dennis Dutcher had a little wire fence experience with a cap-tious horse but escaped without serious injury.

Mr. Esher found a frolicsome pony in his chicken house the other morning it having strayed down through the roof.

Protracted meetings are held both east and west of Vailton, giving all a chance to attend at either place. The outlook is very promising, we are pleased to note.

Miss Jennie Teete has returned to her home near Bartley. She assisted her sister, Mrs. Pate, through her severe illness. We are pleased to note that Mrs. Pate is about again.

The Tribune's wondering when the promised benefit would materialize from the repeal measures reminds the writer of the promise that "Every spindle would turn and every furnace would roar" if the tariff was just so more or less. Also we think the observations on the school apportionment ought to set one and all to thinking, not so much politically, but practically. While we do not pose as an all round grumbler, the situation is rocky and we believe wholly unwarranted.
