HIGH RAILWAY SPEEDS.

High speeds on railways formed the subject of the inaugural address of M. Du Bosquet, president of the French Society of Civil Engineers. He states that the reason speeds are not maintained on the level is because the engines are not sufficiently powerful for this. Some experiences with the dynamometer made with speeds from 37 to 75 miles, and of which the results have been extended to greater speeds, show that for the same motive force of 11.2 lbs. per ton, a train reaches a speed of 75 miles on a decline of one-half of one per cent., 57 miles on the level and 31 miles at an incline of one-half of one per cent. To increase the average speed by a small amount, the power of the engine must be much greater. If 800 horse power is sufficient to draw a train at 75 miles an hour up an incline of one-half of one per cent., 2,960 horse power will be required to draw the same train up the grade at a speed of 125 miles per hour. In high speeds the weight of the engine per horse power generated is important, as there is always a limiting speed beyond which the engine cannot draw itself, let alone a train. Really high speeds, the speaker stated, will be obtained only by diminishing the weight, per horse power, of the locomotive, and by limiting the load to be hauled to a minimum.—Railway Engineering and Mechanics.

The pass question is a peculiar phase of railroading. A branch train of a Nebraska railroad recently departed from one of its termini with thirty odd passengers on board. Ten paid fares for various short distances. Over twenty had passes for in the main long distance rides. To be sure this may be an isolated case. But—

The high speed cranks are never still. An elevated electric railroad is now proposed. A speed of 150 miles per hour is claimed. The line must be practically straight. The center of gravity of cars is below the rails. The lifting power of aeroplanes is used to overcome the grades.

It is probable that their irrigation convention which met in McCook, Nebraska, will awaken a deep interest in the subject of irrigation in that state. The farmers, and in general all the people of the western part of the state, are very greatly interested in irrigation, but they have only recently become aware of how much it would help them in the cultivation of their farms.—Denver Republican.

Mr. Coxe made the mistake of his life when he neglected to form the numerous Commonwealth armies into a trust and then send a powerful lobby in broadcloth to Washington. Instead of a reception with clubs the Commonwealth magnates would then have received the freedom of the city and would have been allowed to trample down the grass with the same recklessness with which other trust magnates trample down the rights of the people.—Bee.

Tuesday morning, Marion Powell discovered smoke issuing from a box car standing on the side track near Mayor Duncan's elevator. On going to the car he found that a hole had already burned through the bottom and the fire was making good progress. The timely discovery saved not only the car but also both elevators, stables, corn cribs and the Barnett lumber yard, as the were all in fair range with the wind blowing from the south. It is supposed that some tramp must have cooked his breakfast in the car and neglected to put out his fire.—Indianola Independent.
