WHAT THEY LOOK LIKE.

HOLDREGE, NEBRASKA, July 4.—[Special to Lincoln Journal.]—From everything gathered to the present time, the two men suspected of the murder of E. E. Drummond are described as follows: The larger is five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 170 pounds, has long hair, light complexion and long slim face, blue eyes and no beard and it is hard to catch his eye. The other is five feet eight inches, solidly built, has dark eyes and smooth, round face. Both were cigarette smokers. McCafferty's circus was traveling along the Union Pacific railroad about a week before the murder was committed, and these men were in its employ.

The gentlemen who launched the Colorado Sun about two years ago have finally consolidated their paper with the Times. It is alleged that the net loss of the venture is $460,000 to the publishers, to say nothing of the cost of the enterprise to their competitors and to the advertisers of Denver who could have reached their patrons just as well in the older newspapers. One result of the change is an advance in the subscription price of the old morning papers to $7.50 per year. This has been repeatedly demonstrated to be as low a figure as a first-class newspaper can be furnished for outside of the larger centres of population.—Lincoln Journal.

If the railroad managers would only obey the laws enacted for the protection of their patrons and employes it would be much easier to repress the spirit of lawlessness that pervades the railway strikers and boycotters. Those who live by the sword perish by the sword
