AGUE CAKE,

Enlargement of the Spleen Caused by Chronic Catarrh,

People who have been much afflicted with malaria or fever and ague are very liable to have a fullness or enlargement of the left side just under the ribs. This is commonly called in malarial districts ague cake. This fullness is due to enlargement of the spleen caused by the malaria. The enlarged spleen presses against the heart above, causing palpitation of the heart and shortness of breath. It also presses against the stomach and bowels, causing disturbed digestion, bloating, constipation, gurgling in left side, and the formation of great quantities of gas. As long as there is a particle of the malarial poison left in the system, not only will the ague cake continue to disturb the function of the other organs, but the enlarged organ tends to perpetuate the poison in the system. It seems to be a settled fact that Pe-ru-na is the most reliable, if not the only remedy that can be relied on to cleanse the system in cases of chronic malaria. It never fails to bring relief to those disagreeable symptoms, and if a regular course of Pe-ru-na is taken it does not fail to permanently cure. In order to furnish the public a complete knowledge of the effect of Pe-ru-na in old cases of chronic malaria, the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio, have published an illustrated pamphlet on chronic malaria, which will be sent free to any address.
