EDITOR TRIBUNE.—You have doubtless noticed the manner in which the jury sustained the lawless acts of the three Caseys who seized my house without permission, and have lived in it for several months without paying rent, and still remain therein in defiance of my wishes and the laws governing ownership. Will you allow me through your columns to ask the public if such a state of things is to be approved of. Is anarchy to be the motto of our courts? If so it is time to cease from labor. If we take the acts of the Caseys for a criterion we may take possession of whatsoever we desire and retain the same without fear of molestation. Whether are we drifting when property owners are unable to protect themselves from unscrupulous men.

Last evening, Lawyer Moore and Night Policeman Frey had a personal encounter on lower Main avenue, in which the policeman took the sweepstakes, although neither of the combatants were injured very much. The difficulty grew out of the recent arrest and fining of the demimondaine who has been occupying a room in the rear portion of the Lewis saloon building, Moore alleging that the policeman had in some way associated his name in the matter.
