

Decline of the Dance in Hawaii.
Honolulu Advertiser: In looking over the polished floors of the Kamehameha school for girls one almost wishes that its founders had directed that dancing should be taught and practiced upon them by the student girls. It certainly was a narrow and superficial view of the native life which held that these child-like people who did not have story books and couldn't go wild over the old Catechism should have been deprived of one of their chief sources of amusement. Though the native dances were objectionable in many ways, they could have been greatly modified and made respectable. The early teachers not only deprived themselves of amusement from the dictates of conscience, but they failed to provide the natives with any. It was the result of the Puritan inheritance which quickly gives way when the Puritan stock gets out into the world.

GRASS IS KING!
Grass rules. It is the most valuable crop of America, worth more than either corn or wheat. Luxurious meadows are the farmers' delight. A positive way to get them, and the only one we know, is to sow Salzer's Extra Grass Mixtures. Many of our farmer readers praise them and say they get 4 to 6 tons of magnificent hay per acre from Salzer's seeds. Over one hundred different kinds of Grass, Clover and Fodder Plant seeds are sold by Salzer.

If You Will Cut This Out and Send It with 7c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will get a sample of Grass & Clover Mixture and their mammoth seed catalogue free. wnu

Too Smart for the Doctor.
The daughter of a well known jockey was very ill, having caught a severe cold. A doctor was sent for and was bethrothed by the mother, who requested him to favor her by advising her daughter not to wear low ankled shoes. The daughter was sent for, and, after her tongue had been given the usual out of door exercise, the man of medicine said: "Ah, you are suffering from what we medical men call a low shoe cold, and I must prohibit you from wearing such shoes in the future." The young lady started, and, taking off one of the offending shoes, exclaimed: "Since you are so clever, doctor, as to look at my tongue and tell me what is amiss with my feet, will you be kind enough to look at my feet and tell me whether my fringe is properly adjusted?" He gave up prescribing for smart girls.—London Tit-Bits.

Vines Indoors.
A few vines among other plants and to train about the sides of the windows may be used to good advantage. The common English ivy and the moon flower are excellent for the purpose. They can be supported up the sides of the windows and festooned across the top, to form a green covered bow, and when in this shape their value is apparent. It is as well to start with strong ivy plants, as they are somewhat slow to grow at times. Two plants of slowly creeping habits are Panicum variegatum, a plant of angular growth, but of exceedingly pretty variegated foliage, and the wandering Jew. The latter sends out runners as strawberries do, which hang over the pot, rooting when they touch soil, explains a Country Gentleman correspondent.

Deafness Can Not Be Cured by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are cured by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Slept in the Bath tub.
A good story is told of a lazy and loquacious farmer whose farm lies along the John Day river. He called at a neighbor's house recently. "Sit down; sit down," said the neighbor. "I don't know as I ought," replied the farmer, but nevertheless he sat down. After some talk about the crops and the value of an adjoining piece of ground the farmer said, slowly: "I don't know as I ought to be sitting here. I came over to see if I could get a ladder; our house is afire."

A Perfect Judgment.
"My father," said the small boy to the woman who was calling on his mother, "is a great man. He knows what time it is without even looking at his watch." "What do you mean, Tommy?" queried the visitor. "Oh, when I holler out and ask him what time it is in the morning, he says it's time to get up. An' when I ask him what time it is in the evening, he allus says, 'time to go to bed, Tommy.' Oh, I tell you my father is a great man!"—Waterbury.

WAS TAKEN FOR A BURGLAR.

The Fix of a Man Who Used an Old Latch-key to Look Up a Friend. The bestowal of a latch-key is a sacred trust not always appreciated by tenants. It is the commonest thing in the world for a boarder to walk off with his door key, thus retaining to himself the power to enter a former dwelling at any hour of the day or night he pleases. Of course very few tenants hold onto their keys with any such possibility in view, but for the safety of herself and the future tenants the landlady should be more particular than she averages at present in redeeming the means of entry to her household.

A couple of nights ago, says the New York Herald, a young man arrived from the West about 11 p. m. and promptly betook himself to look up an old friend, whose room his own had adjoined in a house on Forty-eighth street. The house was closed up for the night, so the young man took out his erstwhile latchkey, and letting himself in, mounted to his chum's room. He was out, the gas was lowered, and without waiting to turn it up the traveler stretched himself out on the sofa to wait, and in doing so fell asleep. When he awoke it was to find himself face to face with the basilisk stare of a strange man, and with a revolver. The room had changed tenants, that was pretty plain, but it wasn't equally plain how he was to make clear that he was neither a burglar nor an assassin.

"If you'll lay down that thing," he said, after a hurried explanation to the man with the revolver, "I'll call up the landlady and prove my case." With man and revolver in pursuit he did find the landlady's door, only to be confronted by a strange woman, who immediately went into hysterics. Then every other woman in the house raised her voice in hysterics, and more men with revolvers gathered in the passageways, until things began to look pretty blue for the young man. At last the final man, armed to the teeth, joined the boarders, and as he did so the poor excited traveler gave a cry of relief.

"Put down your firearms," called the last comer, "and stop your shrieks. You were looking for Dick, weren't you? He's gone to Europe. The whole house here has changed hands. I'm the only one of the old crowd left. Good Lord, it's well I'm here! You'd have spent one night in jail, at least, if I'd not been."

"There," shouted the besieged man, flinging the key at the scantily robed landlady, "there's the key of this blank, blank, blankly blanked shanty, and may I never again see the key of this or any other boarding place shanty as long as I live."

Court-Martialing an Elephant.
It is the business of a court-martial to try soldiers and sailors accused of offence, but sometimes strange prisoners come before it. At the battle of Sabraon, Feb. 10, 1846, the 9th Lancers were required to escort some twenty-four pounders, which were to be dragged by elephants into position. One of them turning obstinate and refusing to draw, the men in charge of the animals had it brought before them, under the guard of two other elephants, to be tried. The court sentenced it to twenty-five lashes, which were duly inflicted by a fellow-elephant. Taking a big double chain on its trunk, at the word of command it gave the rebel elephant five-and-twenty tremendous whacks. The culprit was thoroughly cowed, and no longer declined to draw the gun.

He Knew It Is Own Home.
A Detroit young man with a fancy for horsemanship and a knowledge of the same not commensurate therewith, some time ago went horse hunting on his own responsibility, and picked up what he thought was a crackerjack. He was a Blue Grass horse and was as lively as a cricket; so lively, in fact, that the young man was sure he had a 3-year-old. Several days after the purchase, and he had been showing the horse around and crowing over him, he met the colored man who had had charge of him.

"By the way, Sam," he said, "what's the horse's name?"
"Lexington, sah."
"Does he know it?"
"I spec he do, sah," said Sam innocently; "he's had it fer eighteen yeahs, sah."

Increasing Use of Fruit.
New York Press: Yesterday I met a gentleman who is engaged in the business of raising fruit in Honduras. His steamers deliver freight at Mobile, and from that point his dates, bananas, coconuts and oranges are distributed all over the country. He told me that the prices on fruit are now better than ever, and that the volume of trade is expanding enormously every year. He thinks much of this is due to a radical change in the national taste. As a people we eat less pastry and more fruit than ever before, and to our great benefit. In spite of the tariff on oranges, these are the most popular. A development of their medical properties in the minds of the public has perceptibly affected their price. Orange eaters are long lived. Oranges are excellent for all internal organs and the best known remedy against an appetite for strong drink. Many men have been cured of the habit of drinking stimulants in the morning by eating plentifully of oranges before breakfast. All of which conduces to the profit of the fruit growers.

Betting Down to the Skin.

Two Oklahomans, Britt Kline, a fast horse man, who has a claim six miles west of Tokawa, and D. O. Brown, secretary of the Tokawa Town Site company, engaged in a discussion as to the time required to prove a certain piece of land. Each thought he was right, and the following is the way the wager was made on their opinions. Brown bet Kline $25 he was right. Kline met the bet and raised it a horse. They kept on betting in this way until Brown was asked and Kline had only a shirt on. Kline borrowed a horse and rode home, six miles, to his claim, with nothing on but his shirt, while Brown went home naked. Kline won the bet.

He Was.
A duds looking youth was walking down the Bowery, looking in at the shop windows, says the New York Sun. A Bowery sport, intent on having fun with him, tapped him on the shoulder, and said: "Say, young feller! Are you wid me or ag'in me?"
"I'm wid you, an' ag'in you, and to you!" replied the duds looking youth, and when they picked up the Bowery sport and carried him away he looked as if he had mistaken a cable for an all-night owl lunch wagon.

How it May Happen.
"Jeminy crickets, she's got the rick-ets," whispered one bean to another in the company of a very pretty girl. Truly she was very beautiful, but there was a twitching about the nerves of the face which showed suffering. "No," said the other, "it's neuralgia and she's a martyr to it." St. Jacobs Oil was suggested as the world-renowned cure for it. Did she try it? Yes and was cured by it and—married "one of the fellows" afterwards. The use of the great remedy for pain will not bring about a marriage, but in its cure of pain it will bring about conditions of health to make life more enjoyable. No man or woman ought to marry who is a sufferer from chronic pains. We should not wed wed to win only wretchedness.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Many years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., compounded this medicine of vegetable ingredients which had an especial effect upon the stomach and liver, rousing the organs to healthful activity as well as purifying and enriching the blood. By such means the stomach and the nerves are supplied with pure blood; they will not do duty without it any more than a locomotive can run without coal. You can not get a lasting cure of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, by taking artificially digested foods or peeps—the stomach must do its own work in its own way. Do not put your nerves to sleep with so-called celery mixtures, it is better to go to the seat of the difficulty and feed the nerve cells on the food they require. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness and Nervous Affections, such as sleeplessness and weak, nervous feelings are completely cured by the "Discovery." It puts on healthy flesh, brings refreshing sleep and invigorates the whole system.

Mrs. K. HENKE, of No. 895 North Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I regard my improvement as simply wonderful. Since taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in connection with his 'Pleasant Pellets' I have gained in every respect, particularly in flesh and strength. My liver was dreadfully enlarged and I suffered greatly from dyspepsia. No physician could give relief. Now, after two months I am entirely relieved of my disease. My appetite is excellent; food well digested; bowels regular and sleep much improved."

Leaky Poultry House Roofs.
A small hole in the roof will do incalculable damage to a flock by keeping in the house damp and cold. Evaporation of moisture is always at the expense of loss of warmth, and the failure to stop a crack may cause an expense for more food, as the body of the fowl is kept warm by the food, and the more comfortable the quarters the less food is required. Dry cold, where the fowls are not exposed to the winds, will not cause as much sickness as dampness, and especially when the rain not only leaks down on the floor, but also on the fowls as well. Close the leaks before the weather becomes cold.—Farm and Fireside.
