The supreme court of Nebraska has rendered a decision of great importance to railroads. There is a law on the statute books of the state compelling engineers to whistle at every public highway crossing, and on failure to do so the railroad company is subject to a fine of $50, of which half goes to the informer. As a consequence there are many informants, particularly among farmers, who make it a business to catch the engineer. A man lets it go until he has a number of cases and then goes to court. The law has cost the Nebraska railroads several small fortunes and every suit hitherto has resulted in favor of the plaintiffs and against the railroads. The supreme court has just decided the law unconstitutional. J. H. Hale secured judgment in the lower court against the Omaha and Republican Valley, which is a part of the Union Pacific, for $3,500 of this whistling money, representing 700 failures to whistle, and it was appealed to the supreme court and the law there declared unconstitutional.

E. W. Farnam from Chicago, the company's head electrician, was at western division headquarters, last Saturday, testing the working of the telegraph wires of the division. With a set of delicately adjusted instruments he sat in the telegraph office at this place and located defects at different points on the main line and branches with marvelous precision. There was a leak at this given point, a switch was dirty at this station etc. C. Thompson of Lincoln accompanied him, and between them they left Mr. Brown, who is in charge of the telegraph lines of this division, enough work to keep him busy a few days at least.

C. E. Eldred of McCook was in the city, first of the week, as attorney and representative of the B. & M. R. R., and entertained the county commissioners with a lecture on railroad taxation.—Imperial Enterprise.
