COLEMAN.

Two weeks vacation in dist. 58.

Bert Wales has bought a team.

Our farmers are all reasonably hopeful and full of courage.

Bert Schnedeker of Dundy co. spent a few days here, last week.

Rev. McBride commenced a protracted meeting at Zion hill church on New Year night.

H. B. Wales, whose home was recently destroyed by fire, moved into his new house, the other day.

Jacob Betz has bought the old John Everts' dwelling, just east of McCook, and moved it onto his farm in this precinct.

Frank Coleman, who has been attending college at Orleans, is spending the holidays at home. He went up to Dundy county, Friday last, to visit a few days.

For "concentration" the preaching services at the Coleman school house have been transferred to Zion hill church, where there are two sermons every Sunday now, and none at all at the school house. We understand a move is already on foot to secure a preacher of some denomination to minister in holy things at said school house, once in two weeks.

There was a Christmas tree at the Coleman school house, Christmas eve. It was a great big tree, reaching from floor to ceiling. It was nicely decorated with string and bali popcorn, and fine red apples, and pretty well loaded with presents. While the presents were not costly, they carried with them love and good will. They were quite a lengthy program consisting of songs, recitations, select readings, etc., which were remarkably well rendered, considering the very short time had for preparation. The house was full and the happy, smiling faces indicated happy, joyous hearts. It was a time that will be looked back to with unalloyed satisfaction and pleasure. The tree was an evergreen, a very appropriate emblem of the Sunday school it represented, as that school is an evergreen; blooms winter and summer, and has scarcely missed a lesson since starting four years ago, and just recently decided by unanimous vote to continue right along, every Sunday, at 10 o'clock, a. m., fast time.

THIS is a nation of more than 70,000,000 people. It is the richest country on the globe, its resources are practically exhaustless, and there exists no good reason why it should not take advantage of the opportunity which seems about to offer itself, to shake off forever the bugaboo that Great Britain has it in her power to make or mar as. Speculation in Wall street is likely to be excited for a time, but there exists no real cause for alarm. This country took care of itself financially against the billions of Great Britain when it was only a collection of villages along the Atlantic coast with a total population of 3,000,000. It can certainly do so at the present day with a population of more than 70,000,000 and a wealth of $75,000,000,000.
