H. RUSSELL WARD A SUICIDE

HE ELOPED WITH MRS. BRADBURY.

HE TAKES HIS OWN LIFE.

Insane Actions on an Overland Train Ended by a Headlong Dash From the Window of a Pullman Sleeper—The Body Found Later—Was on His Way to His Family.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—H. Russell Ward, the Englishman who created a sensation a short time ago by eloping with the wife of John Bradbury, the young millionaire of Los Angeles, Cal., committed suicide some time last night by throwing himself from a sleeper of the Chicago & Northwestern overland train. The fact was not known until several hours later, and as the result of a search, which was immediately begun, the body of Ward was found at Wheatland, Iowa.

It is not known at what hour Ward leaped from the train, but according to Conductor Calloway, the act was committed after 3 o'clock this morning.

Ward was evidently insane when he threw himself out of the car window, as he had been acting peculiarly a greater part of the trip. When the train was at Fremont, Neb., he sent a telegram to the police in Chicago, requesting them to meet the train this morning. He signed the telegram "R. W." and for several hours the police in this city endeavored to find out who "R. W." could be. The telegram gave the police no information, but the sending of it makes the police believe Ward intended to commit suicide on the train and sent the telegram for the purpose of having the police find his body when the train should arrive here.

Ward boarded the train in San Francisco at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon and was assigned to drawing room B, car 2, and had tickets through to Chicago. Yesterday and last night he left his apartments at intervals, creating consternation among the passengers by his peculiar actions. He furnished two revolvers in the train several times, almost creating a panic among the passengers. He told the conductor of the train who he was and at nearly every stop the train made he would get off and send telegrams. One of these messages he sent to a resident of Los Angeles, Cal., saying that if Mrs. Bradbury wanted him she could come to him, but for the present he would have to go to England and visit his wife. Another telegram was the one he sent to Chicago from Fremont, Neb., reading as follows: "Please send a good man to drawing room B, car 2, of the eastbound overland Northwestern train, arriving in Chicago at 7:30 to-morrow morning." He refused to retire until 3 o'clock this morning, when he approached the colored porter and told him he was going to sleep. He then went to his room. When De Kalb, Illinois was reached the porter knocked on the door of his room but got no answer. He made several efforts to get into the room but without success and then abandoned the idea. When the train pulled into the Northwestern depot Detective Broderick endeavored to gain entrance into the drawing room, but in vain. The train crew finally managed to get in through an annex, and when the detective was admitted the room was found to be empty. A pile of clothing which Ward had worn was found scattered about the room, but no trace of him could be found. It was decided that he had jumped through the window, and all his effects were taken in charge by the Pullman company.

About July 1, the very day that his wife and little daughter left for a visit to England. Ward and the beautiful wife of John Bradbury, a multimillionaire of Los Angeles, eloped. A few days later they were arrested in the Cafe Farmand here on complaint by Mr. Kane, secretary of the local Society for the Prevention of Vice. Mrs. Bradbury was soon afterward released and went East. Bradbury had been away when the affair took place, but when he returned and learned the particulars he went after his wife and a reconciliation took place in Chicago under the management of Mrs. Bradbury's mother, Mrs. Banning. The Bradburys then went to New York and under pretense of going for a drive, to avoid publicity, took a steamer for Europe.

There were several queer features of the affair. While Mrs. Bradbury is beautiful, Mrs. Ward is considered far more so. Ward was bald, ungainly and 40. He had no money beyond an allowance from his wife's family, and if this was to have been shut off, as it was gossiped that it would be, this may have contributed to unbalance his mind and driven him to self-destruction.

BRYAN ON INJUNCTION.

He Thinks the Cause Inadequate for a Party Foundation.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 4.—When asked as to his position on the question of "government by injunction," Mr. Bryan said: "That is not an issue upon which political parties can be formed. The sentiment against government by injunction is widespread. It is confined to no class of people. It is not a great economical question, however, like the proper issue of money. It has not the power to cause a line of cleavage. Even the Republican party will not declare in favor of injunctions, and the man who is not directly affected by a federal injunction does not appreciate it as an issue of sufficient moment to cause him to change his political affiliations. If appealed to on that line he simply says: 'O, well, my party is opposed to government by injunction, the same as yours. The money question goes deeper. It is a fundamental economic question affecting every man, woman and child in the country. It is of sufficient force to cause new alignments or to harmonize differences on minor or other matters; it can divide the voters into two great parties. The tariff bill will be discussed and criticized as before and the Dingley law will make no friends for the Republican party, but I still consider the tariff question as subsidiary to the greater and more fundamental question of the money issue of this nation.'

"But," continued Mr. Bryan, "silver is still, and will be, in this and the next campaign, the fundamental economic question at issue. I see no signs of weakening in its hold upon the people. My trip West was most satisfactory. I found everybody on hand to greet me. I did not get the rest I needed and expected to get and have come back as tired as I went away, or more so. I spoke all the way out and all the way back and on my arrival here, of course there was no chance to rest with the question of fusion still unsettled."

HAS OTHER DESIGNS.

THE AMBITION OF JAPAN ENLARGING.

She Wants Now to Control the Nicaragua Canal—Negotiations Said to Be in Progress With the Greater Republic of Central America—Duty of the United States.

Japan's Latest Dickering.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—A special to the Herald from Washington, says: "Japan, not content with interference with President McKinley's Hawaiian annexation policy, now has designs upon the Nicaragua canal. According to semi-official advices just received here from Nicaragua, the Japanese government is secretly negotiating with the Diet of the Greater Republic of Central America, which recently met in San Salvador, for the construction of the Nicaragua canal, independent and in defiance of the interests and influence of the United States or other nations."

"This action of Japan, taken in connection with her recent attitude in regard to Hawaiian annexation, is of the greatest significance, showing, as it does, to the authorities that there is no limit to the ambition of the nation, and her aggressive policy may yet get her into trouble with the United States. That the Administration will resist any interference with the Nicaragua canal project, as it did in the case of the Hawaiian annexation treaty, goes without saying."

JAPAN'S SECRET DICKERING.

"If Japan can encompass it, according to the Nicaragua advices received here, she would like to obtain the abrogation of all treaty rights possessed by the United States in relation to inter-oceanic transit and the forfeiture of the American canal concessions from Nicaragua, and to immediately make a treaty with the Diet of the Greater Republic of Central America, giving her control of the canal route through Nicaragua. In the negotiations Costa Rica has not been consulted, it being well known that she would not assent to a violation of treaty rights."

"It has been suspected in some quarters that England, which has always been anxious to acquire at least a joint control of the canal, might be working in collusion with Japan in the 'dickering' with the Diet now understood to be in progress, but nothing has yet come to the surface to indicate that she has encouraged Japan in the move. It is said that the agent of the Nicaragua canal here has laid the facts before Mr. Hitchcock, the president of the canal company, in New York, with the suggestion that the State department be apprised of the secret negotiations that are now being carried on between Japan and the Diet. Senor Zelaya, the president of Nicaragua, it is understood, has admitted to close personal friends that Japan is negotiating with the Diet, but in each case he advised the strictest secrecy."

IS NICARAGUA PLAYING FALSE?

"A private letter just received in this city from Nicaragua says: 'Among Americans in Central America the belief is general that the Greater Republic of Central America, which is represented in its diplomatic affairs by a Diet composed of three members (one each from Nicaragua, Salvador and Honduras) was organized principally in order that Nicaragua might absolve herself from individual responsibility as a nation, and thereby abrogate her interoceanic transit treaty with the United States. The so-called Greater Republic, resenting the failure of the United States to recognize the Greater Republic (on receiving Senor Rodriguez as minister) and its failing to accredit a United States minister to the Greater Republic, is likely to try and make a treaty with Japan, granting her concessions for the construction of the canal. The United States minister here believes that when this news reaches Washington the State department will send a note to Japan asking if she is seeking to interfere with our treaty rights in the premises. The Americans in Nicaragua believe that the United States government will insist that her interoceanic treaties with Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras and Columbia are yet in force, although the Diet claims that Nicaragua and Honduras are no longer separate and individual nations, and are therefore irresponsible.'"

KLONDIKE A LOTTERY.

Thousands Find Nothing — About 200 Out of 4,000 Have Made Strikes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—A letter dated Dawson City, July 26, from Charles Haines, a well-known newspaper writer, was received here yesterday. It is the first letter written by a trained newspaper man to come out of the Klondike gold regions. He says:

About me are scores of men who can weigh their gold by the bucketful, and who value their claims at millions. Four hundred valuable diggings are stretched along the creeks and in every diggings there is a fabulous mine of gold, yet there are weary men who have gone and returned to Dawson after searching the great country hereabouts, and never a nugget do they show for their toil, their long tramp over the broken ground into a country whose disadvantages are exceeded by no other place on earth. This Alaska Northwest territory is an odd prize drawing proposition that I can liken to nothing that admits of a better comparison than a lottery. A number of spots are selected on the creeks and rivers and for one year the miner labors. The year closes, the water runs, and the season's output barely pays expenses. Not two miles away from the unfortunate one works a man who has taken from an uninviting bit of earth a sackful of gold. The lucky one did not strike the pocket because of his ability as a miner; chance favored him, and that was all. In short, the miner guesses at it and locates any and everywhere. In nineteen cases out of twenty he misses it, and has to wait another year for a new trial. Dawson is merely a collection of log huts, saloons and a mass of tents, about 600 in number. When the long nights come and the glass goes down to 65 degrees below zero, there will be intense suffering here, and I shudder to think of the results."

IN BED FOR 21 YEARS.

Case of Joseph M. Lilly, a Missouri Farmer, Recalled by His Death.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Sept. 3.—Joseph M. Lilly, a wealthy farmer of Jackson township, died last night, aged about 64 years. He retired, after a hearty supper, at 9 o'clock. An hour later his wife found him dead. In 1868 Mr. Lilly told his friends that he had heart disease, and in the autumn of that year took to his bed and lay prone there for twenty-one years, telling his physician and friends that if he raised his head or chest above a slight angle he would instantly expire. Nothing could expel this idea from his mind, and his family had to make the best of the situation. His general health was good, but it was not until late in 1889 that he could be induced to get up. Once during that time his dwelling caught fire, but he refused to move and was carried out on his cot. At last he announced that he had worn out his ailment, and ventured to get out of bed, and was assisted to walk across the room. Since then he has been up most of the time managing his business affairs, for he was a shrewd business man, and grew rich even while lying in bed.

Twenty years ago the regiment held its reunion here and the corner stone of the city hall was laid upon the site of Fort Stevens. The late President Hayes presided and President McKinley was orator of the day. The attendance to-day is greater than on that occasion. At noon there was a grand parade and at 2 o'clock the exercises began in Spiegel grove, which adjoins the Hayes mansion.

Patent Pointers.

Some years ago, in building an envelope-making machine, an inventor found that he needed a shaft that would revolve slowly at first and then increase in speed, and then suddenly go slow again. After much experimenting, the new well known scroll gear was evolved, as shown above. A simple escapement movement at the lower end of a pendulum is also shown, which is provided with two shoulders, upon which the three arms fall in rotation. Where a patent for mere improvements was granted during the pendency of an earlier application for the broad invention, the United States court recently held, that a patent subsequently granted on the earlier application is not invalid, though the elements covered by its claims were shown and described but not claimed in the earlier patent. For free information in relation to patents, address Snes & Co., Patent Experts, Bee Building, Omaha, Nebraska.
