

A smart Chicago operator advertised that he had discovered a process by which old and rancid butter could be made over as good as new, but that he could only handle large quantities. Some dealers sent him samples to try and in return received perfectly fresh creamy butter. Then they sent agents all over the state, bought heavily and sent the stuff to him. To their consternation he declined to operate on it, but offered to buy it at a small figure, much less than they had paid for it, and as, in the open market it would be graded as axle grease, they were obliged to let him have it.

When Andrew D. White, now United States ambassador at Berlin, was minister to Germany nearly twenty years ago he received some queer letters from Americans asking for his influence in their behalf in court circles. Perhaps the funniest of all was a very mandatory epistle from an old lady living in the west, who inclosed in her letter four pieces of white linen, each some six inches square. "We are going to have a fair in our church," she wrote, "and I am going to make an autograph quilt. I want you to get me the autographs of the emperor and empress, the crown prince and Bismarck, and tell them to be very careful not to write too near the edge of the squares, as a seam had to be allowed for putting them together."—Youth's Companion.

THE NAGGING WOMAN.

How She Destroys All Peace and Comfort for Husband and Children.

The mistress of a house feels that it is her duty—none the less clear because it is disagreeable—to point out the faults of those in her charge, says the Philadelphia Ledger. Beginning with the maids and ending with her husband—or sometimes vice versa—she thinks it her mission in life to find and condemn imperfections. And from this attitude it is but a short step to the position of a family "nagger"—a character which destroys all peace and comfort. Business men often make a similar mistake and act upon the belief that no man does his best work unless under the constant dread of sarcastic and bitter fault-finding. The work in general may be far above the average—but that the way to keep it so is to pick flaws in every possible weak place is the decision of certain minds. Because a fault exists is no reason that it should be mentioned without regard to time or place, and to one open to conviction it would not be difficult to prove that there is wisdom in allowing people to make mistakes unobserved, or at any rate unrebuked; but this wisdom can only flourish in the faith that the evil of today is not a finality. No mother, for instance, really believes that her little daughter is necessarily to be a life-long slattern because at 12 years of age she keeps an untidy room and her boots are often seen without the proper button, nor does she think that a lie in the mouth of her 3-year-old boy condemns him to a future of fraud and deceit. These things must be met, of course, but if they are met by the constant inculcation of better habits and better principles the evil in itself needs little or no comment. Indeed, a word of censure withheld often is a more effective rebuke than a storm of angry fault-finding. To grow in the wisdom of this judicious silence we must first of all cultivate in ourselves a just perception of values and proportions, we must learn what to see and what not to see, what to leave out and what to put in our mental pictures. It may be, too, that then we shall often give sympathy where others deride, or encouragement where the sternly just would condemn; but we should at least relieve those around us from a very irritating insistence upon trifles.

Cheapest Place to Shop in Russia. "Thieves' Market," a traveler declares, "is the cheapest place to shop in all Russia, even for a foreigner. It is in Moscow, which is the railroad center of the empire, and quite likely the clearing house or exchange for stolen goods. The merchants tell the buyer frankly that the reason they can sell things cheaply is because they are all stolen. 'Everything—everything, monsieur; all are stolen. We deal only in that which costs us nothing. We charge you for storage, that is all.' Curious from the whole Eastern world are there. It is a desperate place for one to go if one would not spend money. Do not buy presents for friends at home until you have looked through the 'Market.'"

Embarrassing. "Wash came downtown with his overcoat pockets full of potatoes and turnips." "How did that happen?" "Well, their flat is so small that his wife hasn't any place to keep vegetables and she had forgotten to take them out."—Detroit Free Press.

Too Far. "This is going too far." Her voice had a haughty ring; she was evidently much offended. Then the trolleyman meekly apologized for having carried her 'steen blocks beyond her destination.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

ON THE STAGE.

A new variety of chrysanthemum, rich purple in hue, has been named after Lillian Russell. Henry Arthur Jones has sold to Charles Frohman the American rights to his latest play, "The Liars." Augustin Daly is apparently much incensed at the action of Beerbohm Tree in offering Ada Rehan the part of Katherine in "Katherine and Petruccio" and is freeing his mind with considerable vigor.

Maude Adams was for several years known as the youngest leading lady on the New York stage. Her successor to that title is pretty Florence Rockwell of "Cumberland, '61," who is said to be just 18—a couple of years younger than was Miss Adams when the distinction was hers.

A day or two ago Miss Olga Nethersole received a parcel containing the manuscript of a play, which has been following her around for two years. The first legible date on the cover is Sept. 23, 1895, Sydney, N. S. W., and the last Oct. 19, 1897, Liverpool. It was marked by the Dublin postoffice, "Received at Grafton Street Walk in this condition." The parcel was originally addressed to Miss Nethersole, in London, and forwarded from her former residence to Daly's theater and thence to the Savoy hotel. Being returned to the dead letter office, Sydney, it was indorsed there "January, 1896," and lay dormant some months. Then it set forth on its travels again—to New York, May 18, 1896; to Chicago, June 10; to New York again. Thence, in July, it came to the Gaiety, London. Several other addresses in London were tried, and again the unlucky parcel got to the Sydney dead letter office on November 26, 1896. Not until March, 1897, was another attempt made at delivery. Then it made a journey through America, crossed the Atlantic and followed Miss Nethersole on her English tour, with the result now recorded.

YOU CAN'T STOP 'EM.

The Fury of an Unfettered Element Falls to Crush Them—The Fire Fiend Defied.

The news comes from Attica, Ind., of the destruction, by fire, of the big laboratory and office building of the Sterling Remedy company, makers of Cascarets Candy Cathartic and No-To-Bac, the original guaranteed tobacco habit cure. The preparations made by this big corporation are known throughout the world.

The fire broke out in one of the packing rooms on the third floor during the noon hour, and had made considerable headway before it was discovered. The Sterling Remedy company is the principal industry of the beautiful little city of Attica, employing several hundred people, besides being affiliated with the interests at the Indiana Mineral Springs, the famous Magno-Mud Cure. The entire population was worked up to a frenzy of excitement.

Meanwhile the almost proverbial energy and presence of mind of "Hustling" Harry Kramer, the general manager of the Sterling Remedy company, was displayed. He was the coolest man at the scene. He quietly walked away, and secured a big carriage show room near by, and had all office furniture, charred and delapidated as it was, taken there. Several shipments were made the same evening from goods saved, and on Friday morning, all departments were at work in various rooms about town, while a gang of men were cleaning away the wreckage preliminary to rebuilding.

The actual damage amounts to many thousands of dollars; the loss due to interruption of business and confusion of detail is incalculable, but pluck and energy of one man will turn defeat into victory and move the wheels of business to ever-increasing speed. Nothing can stop the success of Cascarets and No-To-Bac with such characteristic force behind them.

George Dudley Seymour, of New Haven, will soon give an interesting lecture to Yale. It consists of the double doors of the house of the late Rev. William Russell, of Branford, Conn., where in the year 1700 the trustees of the future Yale college met and presented forty books each trustee as he laid the volumes down, said according to tradition, "I give these books for the founding of a college in this colony." The original house was built in 1675, and was bought by Mr. Russell twelve years later. It was torn down in 1835, but the doors were secured and kept in a garret by Mrs. Mary E. Russell Mann, of Branford, a descendant of William Russell, and from her they have been obtained by Mr. Seymour, who will have them handsomely framed and presented to the university, possibly in 1901, in connection with the two hundredth anniversary of the founding.

An English paper tells of a tory army officer who trained his Scotch collie to bark and growl whenever Mr. Gladstone's name was mentioned. He lived to bury his favorite pet, and ever thereafter used to decorate the dog's grave with primroses on Lord Beaconsfield's birthday. Now, the old tory is dead himself, and he left instructions that his body should be cremated and the ashes buried in the garden beside the grave of his dog.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

How baldness begins.

How to prevent it.

Every person, male or female, shrinks from baldness. It adds to the appearance of age and is a serious discomort. The cases are rare when the falling out of the hair may not be stopped, and a new and healthy growth of the hair is promoted. The hair grows in the scalp like a plant in the soil. If a plant flourishes, it must have constant attention; it must be watered regularly and find its food in the soil where it is rooted. It is so with the hair. Neglect is usually the beginning of baldness. Dandruff is allowed to thicken on the scalp. The hair begins to loosen. The scalp loses its vitality. The hair, insufficiently nourished, begins to fade and to fall. The instant need in such a case is some practical preparation which, supplying the needed nourishment to the scalp, will feed the hair, give it strength, and so produce a strong and healthy growth. All this is done by Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, the most practical and reliable preparation for the hair that can be obtained. It tones up the scalp, does away with dandruff, stops the hair from falling, restores the original color to gray or faded hair, and gives an abundant and glossy growth. Those who are threatened with approaching baldness will be interested in the following voluntary statement, made by Alderman S. J. Green, of Spencer, Iowa. He writes: "About four months ago, my hair commenced falling out so rapidly that I became alarmed, and being recommended Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor by a druggist, I began using it for three months, and am much gratified to find that my hair has ceased falling out and also that hair which had been turning gray for the past five years has been restored to its original color, dark brown. It gives me much pleasure to recommend this dressing."—S. J. GREEN, Alderman, Spencer, Iowa.

Those who are interested in preserving and beautifying the hair will do well to send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured. This book of 100 pages is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.
