

BIG FOUR GIANT LOCOMOTIVES

The Big Four railroad has recently received from the builders four 8-wheel passenger locomotives to haul their fast trains. These engines are, in every respect, models of their kind, and are probably the largest, fastest, most powerful and best looking passenger engines in any part of the country, and are a credit to the management and their designer, Mr. Wm. Garstang, superintendent of motive power of the Big Four, and the Schenectady Locomotive Works, their builders. The engines are now in ser-unnecessary pipe or rod to mar their symmetry. The material used in the construction of these machines is the finest of its kind, and the greatest care was exercised in both the tests and workmanship to insure every part being perfect. The driving wheel centers, steam chest and covers, cylinder heads, foot plates, auxiliary dome, driving boxes and spring seats are all of cast steel, while the dome castings stack base, boiler front, cylinder castings and tender truck frames are pressed steel. The boiler is extended vice between St. Louis and Cleveland, on the fastest and heaviest trains, making the time and doing it easier than was ever accomplished before on this run. In designing these engines it was necessary to make a machine combining great power with high speed and easy running avoiding all jerk to the train, an unnecessary strain on the track. This has been accomplished to such an extent that both engine and tender, while at the highest speed, ride with the greatest steadiness and so soft and easy a motion that the engineers claim not to be at all tired at the end of their run. These noble machines stand 15 feet high from top of rails to top of cab and 9 feet 9 1/2 inches to center of boiler, which, with driving wheels 78 inches and truck and tender wheels 36 inches in diameter, show trim and powerful, without an wagon top with taper back, 62 inches diameter at smallest ring and 78 inches diameter at the throat built to carry a wagon pressure of 200 pounds per square inch. Among the special articles are Richardson's balance valves, Jerome metallic packing, Coale muffler, Kunkle open pops, air operated bell ringer, French springs, Leach pneumatic sanding device, gold steam heat, monitor injector, Janney couplers and Fox pressed steel tender truck frames. Some of the principal dimensions are as follows: Weight 130,000 pounds; cylinders 20x26 inches; boiler diameter 62 inches; tubes diameter 2 inches; tubes number of 320; fire box width 41 inches; fire box length 108 inches; working pressure 200 pounds; heating tender water capacity 5,000 gallons; tender coal capacity 10 tons; tender trucks, pressed steel.

CAN'T LIVE WITHOUT DOGS.

Eskimos Find the Faithful Animal a Necessity to Their Miserable Existence.

"Without dogs the larger portion of the great Eskimo family pooping the barren northeast coast of America would find it impossible to exist in its chosen home." So writes E. W. Nelson, in his "Mammals of Northern Alaska." They are used in the winter for hunting, sledge-drawing and the like, but in summer are mostly left to shift for themselves. They receive much hard usage, as well as do much hard work, but are described, nevertheless, as a rollicking set, full of play, fond of human society and quarrelsome as schoolboys. Mr. Nelson credits them with a vein of humor and declares that their varying characteristics can be read in their faces. They are worth from $2 to $15 apiece, according to age, size and intelligence. For sledge drawing they are harnessed in teams of either seven or nine—three or four pairs and a leader. The load is from 350 to 700 pounds and the course mainly through unbroken snow or over rough ice. With a team of seven dogs and a load of more than 300 pounds Mr. Nelson made a journey of more than 1,200 miles in about two months. The last sixty miles were made over a bad road in a continuous pull of twenty-one hours. They are much affected by the moon. During full moon half the night is spent by them in howling in chorus. "During the entire winter at St. Michael's," says Mr. Nelson, "we were invariably given a chorus every moonlight night, and the dogs of two neighboring villages joined in the serenade. He speaks of its 'wild, weird harmony,' and seems to have found it agreeable rather than otherwise. The influence of the moon is also very apparent when the dogs are traveling. They brighten up as the moon rises, and pricking up their ears start off as if they had forgotten their fatigue. The fur traders take advantage of this fact, and sometimes lie over during the day and travel at night. The dogs endure an astonishing degree of cold. Mr. Nelson saw a female with two newly-born puppies lying upon the snow near a hut, with no signs of shelter, when the thermometer ranged from thirty to thirty-five degrees below zero.

An Old Railroad Man.

William M. Reed, who died in Cecil county, Maryland, the other day at the age of 90 years, became fifty-four years ago an employee of the Newcastle and Frenchtown railroad, one of the earliest railroads built in this country. The line was an important link in the route from New York and Philadelphia to Washington, and before there were railroads it was a turnpike with lumbering coaches that sometimes occupied many hours in making their journey of about sixteen miles. Then came a tramway with horse-drawn cars, and at length a true strap-iron railway with queer little cars and engines. Reed remained an employee of the company till the building of the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railway brought the abandonment of the older route. The embankment of the abandoned line still runs, a green ridge, through many miles of cultivated farm land.

DARK AND COLD AS ZERO.

An Experiment Showing the Vast Pressure in the Ocean's Lowest Depths.

The peculiar physical conditions of the deep seas may be briefly stated to be these: It is absolutely dark so far as actual sunlight is concerned; the temperature is only a few degrees above freezing point; the pressure is enormous; there is little or no movement of the water; the bottom is composed of a uniform, fine, soft mud, and there is no plant life. All of these physical conditions one can appreciate, says the Philadelphia Press, except the enormous pressure. At a depth of 2,500 fathoms the pressure is, roughly speaking, two and one-half tons per square inch—that is to say, the pressure per square inch upon the body of every animal that lives at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean is about twenty-five times greater than the pressure that will drive a railway train. Professor Moseley describes an interesting experiment in point made during the voyage of the Challenger. Mr. Buchanan hermetically sealed at both ends a thick glass tube full of air several inches in length. He wrapped it in flannel and placed it in a wide copper tube—one of those used to protect the deep sea thermometers when sent down with the sounding apparatus. This copper tube was closed by a lid fitting loosely and with holes in the bottom of it, and the copper bottom of the tube similarly had holes bored through it. The water thus had free access to the interior of the tube when it was lowered into the sea and the tube was necessarily constructed with that object in view, so that, in its ordinary use, the water would freely reach the contained thermometer. The copper case containing the sealed glass was sent down to a depth of 2,000 fathoms and drawn up again. It was then found that the copper wall of the case was bulged and bent inward opposite the place where the glass tube lay, just as if it had been crumpled inward by being violently squeezed. The glass tube itself, within its flannel wrapper, was found, when withdrawn, reduced to a fine powder, like snow almost. What had happened was that the sealed glass tube, sinking to gradually increasing depth, had held out long against the pressure, but this at last had become too great for the glass to sustain and the tube had suddenly given way. So violent had been the collapse that the water had not had time to rush in at the perforations, but instead had crushed the copper wall and brought equilibrium in that manner, and this process is exactly the reverse of an explosion and is termed by Sir Wyville Thompson an "implosion."

The Senate Is Eternal.

There is no such thing as a "next senate," and so long as the constitution lasts there never will be. The senate of the United States is an eternal body. It never dies. It is to-day exactly the same assembly which met for the first time in 1789. Every second year it undergoes a change of membership, the terms of one class of members expiring. But that change neither ends the old body nor makes a new one.

Half of a Bible.

Among the treasured relics of an ex-Confederate now living in a border state is half of a red morocco bible. When he and a companion in arms were hungry and very solemn on the retreat after the fall of Petersburg, they shared equally a small quantity of parched corn, their only food, and tore the bible in two, so that each might have a part.

Why is it harder for the average man to bear prosperity than adversity?

CAME TO DO MURDER.

JUAN ROSSI HAD SWORN VENDETTA AGAINST HIM.

Fond of Long Standing—Policeman Foley Had Prevented a Previous Murderous Attempt by the Italian—Kept a Dagger for the Purpose.

By the merest chance John Foley, a New York policeman for years connected with the Mulberry street station, is alive today, and Juan Rossi, a bad Italian, is behind the bars. It was a case where the vendetta, sworn years ago, failed in its fulfillment at the last moment because chance, or perhaps Providence, stood in the way. Twelve years ago Foley, at the risk of his life, entered a home at 27 Crosby street, that city, in answer to cries for help, and grappled two powerful men just finishing a bloody murder. Juan Rossi and his swarthy father had cut Juan's mother literally into pieces and strewn the parts about the floor. That jealousy prompted the deed was brought out at the trial, in which the father was sentenced to Sing Sing for twelve years. The policeman had every reason to believe that the stabbing was done by the younger man, but there was no evidence to prove it, and he escaped punishment. Foley's wounds had not entirely healed when one night he saw Juan with two companions enter a store not far from the house where the murder had been committed. He arrested the trio and they were all sentenced the next day to three months on Blackwell's island.

"I have the dagger that you saw the night you arrested father," declared Rossi, "and I swear that it shall yet find your heart."

Three days after his release the young man left for Italy, saying he had had enough of this country, but adding that he would some time come back and kill the policeman. The other morning, before daylight, Foley saw two men in the shadow of a building on Mulberry street. He watched them for a moment, and seeing them steal into a hallway he barred the doorway. Later he caught one of the men and dragged him into the street. As the half-light fell upon the man's face the policeman recognized him as Juan Rossi.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded. Rossi shrugged his shoulders and reached for the opening in his blouse. But he was not quick enough. Even as his hand clutched the handle of the stiletto Foley hit him a sharp blow with his right stick that caused him to fall. The struggle that ensued was short but fierce. Three times Rossi reached for the weapon and three times the night stick saved the officer. Rossi made no attempt to escape. His one purpose seemed to be to draw the knife and stab the policeman. When he was finally subdued and taken to the Mulberry street station he refused to talk. Foley says that he recognizes in the dagger the weapon that Rossi held in his hand the day he was arrested for assisting his father to murder his mother.

WON THE BET.

Then He Stuttered to His Heart's Content and Without Penalty.

A confirmed stutterer went into a restaurant and met a few casual acquaintances, who at once commenced chaffing him most unmercifully respecting the impediment in his speech. At last one of them, a pert little fellow who had been making himself rather conspicuous by his remarks, said: "Well, old man, I'll bet suppers round you can't order them without stammering." "D-d-d-d-d," says Brown, and to the astonishment of the company and the discomfort of his challenger (all of whom were unaware of his being, as is often the case with stutterers, a first-class singer), he beckoned the waiter, and sang the order without the slightest hitch. Then, turning round to his little tormentor, said: "N-n-n-w, y-y-y-you c-c-c-car p-p-p-pay."

Salaries of Royalty.

One hears from time to time such wild shots as to the incomes of different members of the English royal family that a few reliable figures are never without interest. The duke of Edinburgh, for instance, whose financial affairs have so often been made the subject of gossip, had an allowance of $75,000 a year on attaining his majority, and another $50,000 a year on his marriage, but he voluntarily ceded this latter item on succeeding to the duchy of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The duchess of Edinburgh brought her husband a dowry of $1,500,000 and an annuity of $56,250, which goes to her children at her death. The duke of Connaught has $125,000 a year and his pay as general is nearly $15,000. The duchess brought a dowry of $75,000 and the duke settled $7,500 a year upon her at her marriage. The queen's daughters, Princess Christian, Princess Louise and Princess Beatrice, all have $30,000 a year and each has a dotation of $150,000. Prince Christian has $2,500 a year as ranger of Windsor Park and the Marquis of Lorne $6,000 a year as governor of Windsor Castle. The duke of Cambridge has $60,000 a year and Gloucester House rent free, which is equal to another $15,000 a year, and, although the rangerships of the Green Park, St. James', Hyde and Richard Parks are altogether worth only $550 a year, the residences which go with them are worth a couple of thousand pounds a year. While the duke was commander-in-chief, as well as colonel, of the grenadiers, he drew about $32,500 a year from the war office as well.—Chicago News.

One day, says the Chicago Record, a little son of the Rev. T. V. Gardner was playing with some boys who had a cart, and they wanted a dog to draw it. Papa says we must pray for what we want, said the minister's son, and he knelt down and said, Oh, Lord, send us a dog to draw our cart. In a little while a big one came along that frightened them, and they began to cry. A second time the boy knelt but this time he prayed, Oh, Lord, we don't want a bulldog.

Donald B. McDonald, 98 years old, and Margaret Ann O'Reagan, 84 years old, of Reno, Mich., were married the other day. McDonald had been married three times in Canada, and is the father of fourteen children. The bride had been married twice, and is the mother of ten children. The wedding was performed in the presence of great grandchildren of both bridegroom and bride.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

Ask your grocer today to show you a package of GRAIN-O, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury as well as the adult. All who try it, like it. GRAIN-O has that rich seal brown of Mocha or Java, but it is made from pure grains, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. One-fourth the price of coffee, 15c. and 25c. per package. Sold by all grocers.

Thinks Oranges May Be Improved.

A scientist thinks that agricultural chemistry should teach how to make Florida oranges better. To this end he is now engaged in a chemical analysis of the different varieties grown upon different soils, etc., fed by different fertilizers, with the idea that he can do for oranges what the Frenchmen have done for pears and what the grape growers have done for grapes.

They Are Reliable.

The American Farmer is sincere in what it says and whenever it endorses an article, be it machinery, proprietary medicine, or a man individually, we want our readers to believe that what we say we have good reason to understand is true. For a year or more there have been endorsements of the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, of 167 Dearborn street, Chicago, by this paper. People have written us to know if this company is responsible, and if its remarkable remedies, for the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, catarrh, kidney troubles, etc., really had merit. We have therefore been at extra pains to investigate, and once again we add emphasis to our former endorsement of that company. There may be isolated cases here and there which, probably through neglect in following directions, or from exposure or some unexplainable reason, the wonderful Five Drops remedy does not do the work. But it is a case where the exception proves the rule. Mr. Swanson is a gentleman of character and personal integrity, and, we believe, would no more attempt to deceive the public than the writer of this article. They still offer to send a sample bottle, 300 doses, for $1, prepaid by mail or express. Address as above.

TUMOR EXPELLED.

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been taking your Vegetable Compound, and am now ready to sound its praises. It has done wonders for me in relieving me of a tumor.

"My health has been poor for three years. Change of life was working upon me. I was very much bloated and was a burden to myself. Was troubled with smothering spells, also palpitation of the heart and that bearing-down feeling, and could not be on my feet much.

"I was growing worse all the time, until I took your medicine.

"After taking three boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Lozenges, the tumor passed from me.

"My health has been better ever since, can now walk quite a distance and am troubled no more with palpitation of the heart or bloating. I recommend your medicine to all sufferers from female troubles."

It is hardly reasonable to suppose that anyone can doubt the efficiency of Mrs. Pinkham's methods and medicine in the face of the tremendous volume of testimony.
