

John Bryant, a brother of William Allen Bryant, is living in Princeton, N. J., in good health. A reative living in Bellevue, Pa., writes of him: "John Bryant was ninety-one years old last July, I think. He writes me quite often, though it is some time now since he went north in the spring. I suppose if he is well he will be in St. Nicholas, near Jacksonville, this winter; that is where he usually goes. His mind is bright as ever, and for his age he is quite active; cannot see to read evenings, so some of us used to plan to have a few games of whist to while away the long hours for him."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup
For children teething, soothes the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25 cents a bottle.

No shopkeeper ever makes the mistake of giving too much change.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists return the money if it fails to cure. 50c. The genuine has L. B. Q. on each tablet.

The northern Methodist conference have adopted equal lay representation by the vote of 2,278 yeas to 937 noes.

Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons? From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

AYER'S PILLS

They daily insure an easy and natural movement of the bowels.

You will find that the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla with the pills will hasten recovery. It cleanses the blood from all impurities and is a great tonic to the nerves.

Write the Doctor.
Our Medical Department has one of the most eminent physicians in the United States. Tell the doctor just how you are suffering. You will receive the best medical advice without cost. Address: Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

WHEAT WHEAT WHEAT

"Nothing but wheat; what you might call a sea of wheat," is what was said by a lecturer speaking of Western Canada. For particulars as to routes, railway fares, etc., apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Department Interior, Ottawa, Canada, or to W. V. Bennett, 801 New York Life Building, Omaha, Neb.

CURE YOURSELF?

Use Big 4 for unnatural discharges, inflammations, irritations or ulcerations of the mucous membranes of the nose, throat, and not acting. Sold by Druggists, or sent in plain wrapper, by express, prepaid, 25c. per box, or 3 bottles, $2.75. Circular sent on request.

W. N. U. OMAHA, No 53-1893
When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

THE SUCCESS OF THE SEASON

THE LEDGER MONTHLY

A $1.00 Magazine for 50 Cents.

A Richly Illustrated and Beautiful Periodical Covering the Whole Field of Popular Reading.

THE LEDGER MONTHLY is the marvel of the age for beauty and low price. With its Artistic Lithographic Colored Covers, Superb Pictorial Illustrations, Serial and Short Stories by Leading Writers of the World, and Special Departments of Decorative Art, Embroidery, Home Employment for Women, and, in fact, every Department of home improvement which adds to the economy and charm of home life, be it indoors or outdoors, the Ledger Monthly is beyond question, and, according to the most wonderful production for its price. Simply to see a copy of the LEDGER MONTHLY is to be firmly convinced that no such costly periodical has ever been offered to the public for so little money.

Comments of the Press of the Whole United States

Send us 50 cents for a year's subscription, or 2-cent stamp for a sample copy.

Your Postmaster will show you a sample copy of the LEDGER MONTHLY and also take your subscription for the Ledger Monthly for a whole year for only 50 cents.

Don't fail to ask your Postmaster to let you look at a sample copy, and you will be sure to give him your 50 cents for a year's subscription to the LEDGER MONTHLY, the Great Family Magazine.

Robert Bonner's Sons, 158 Ledger Building, New York City.

Burglar Bill (to his new cell mate) — "So you're a musician, are ye, an' got sent here for stealing a pianny? Well, ye won't do much musical practicing in dis place, I'll bet." Newcomer — "Oh, I don't know. If I get hold of a file I'll probably try a few bars." — Ex.

"I have an invention which will revolutionize the world," said the boaster. "There ought to be a great demand for something like that in Central and South America," replied the matter-of-fact man. —Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

HEALTH WITH WEALTH.

New Western Canada Districts Adapted to Rancheing and Mixed Farming.
Calgary, Alberta, Nov. 4, 1893.

To the Editor of the Duluth Evening Herald, Duluth, Minn., Dear Sir—As to many replies to the home-seeker of Minnesota, I can cheerfully say this country is better for a poor man than Minnesota if he wants to farm and raise stock. I have spent one winter and two summers here, which I find more pleasant than any winter I have seen in Minnesota for eight years. The seasons are short, but the effect of a few days of bright sunshine produces a very rapid growth of vegetation. There is good money in raising coarse grains and feeding to hogs and cattle, for pork and beef always bring a good price here. Hogs are worth from $4 to $4.50 live weight per cwt., and beef about the same. There is plenty of railroad land to be had very cheap and on long-time payments. A man does not want to think he can pick up money on the ground here, but there is lots of it in the ground, and labor will take it out. There is a vast scope of country north of Edmonton, Alberta, which can be settled, and a large scope of country west of Edmonton adapted to rancheing and mixed farming. This country is the best place I have ever seen for the cure of consumption. I could refer you to different people here who were in the last stages of consumption, who are now in perfect health and able to do any kind of hard work and are very prosperous. Hoping this may benefit home-seekers who are willing to work for an honest living, I remain, yours very truly,
(Signed) CHARLES N. SCOTT.

Why does a girl with a dimple in her chin always learn to work it at an early age?

FIT'S Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE 24-page trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

It's always hard to please a man who doesn't know what he wants.

Coughs and Colds Cured Quick
With Dr. Sash Arnold's Cough Killer. All Druggists and Country Stores. 25c. a bottle.

Nearly all of the new freight equipment ordered by Receivers Cowen and Murray of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad during the past few months will be delivered by January 15th. The orders consisted of 3,000 standard box cars, from the Michigan Peninsular Car Company; 1,000 box and 1,000 gondolas from the Pullman Company; 2,000 box cars from the Missouri Car and Foundry Company; 1,000 steel coal cars of 109,000 pounds capacity from the Schoen Company, and five 50-foot modern mail cars from the Pullman Company. Each of these cars is equipped with the Westinghouse air brake and H. O. P. automatic couplers.

Russell Sage takes the keenest pleasure in horses, and although he seldom rides now, he is very fond of driving the best horses. Following the custom of his younger days, he prefers to "trade" horses to buying them.

It's easy to convince the plain woman that handsome is as handsome does.

Go to your grocer to-day and get a 15c. package of Grain-O

It takes the place of coffee at 1/4 the cost. Made from pure grains it is nourishing and healthful.

Just that your grocer gives you GRAIN-O.

ROUNDS UP CATTLE.

A TRAINED ASSISTANT OF RANCH COWBOYS.

Takes Part in Executions—El Rey Holds the Captive with Locked Horns Till the Gleaming Knife Lets the Life Blood Spurt.

The greatest "cowboy steer" in the world has his home on the San Marcos ranch, near Santa Barbara, says the San Francisco Call. By some people he is simply called a trained steer; by others a "cavresto." But, as he does the hardest kind of cowboy work and a good deal of a nature the cowboys cannot do, it would seem as if the Texas name, "cowboy steer," is the most appropriate. On every well-regulated cattle ranch in the west there is at least one steer trained to help the cowboys in their work. But there is none as proficient in his business as the one on the San Marcos ranch. The cowboys have named this fellow El Rey (the king) and he is certainly deserving of the title. He holds his title and his throne by the power of brain and muscle. The many manifestations of extraordinary intellect exhibited by dogs and trained horses are surprising enough in themselves, but they dwindle into commonplace when one considers the peculiar accomplishments of the cavresto El Rey. The fierceness of wild cattle is simply appalling. The credit for the conquering and education of El Rey is due entirely to the pluck and patience of a vaquero named Louis Ruiz. And when his labors were finished a wonderful work had been accomplished. From the wildest and most vicious of them all El Rey had become as docile and obedient as a dog. As we know, the ordinary cavresto is trained, when the riata has captured one of the following, plunging, maddened animals, to range himself alongside the captive and permit the vaquero to secure him firmly to the horns of the captive by means of the riata. When the rodeo takes place these trained animals are sent into the dense undergrowth and forests to rout out the hiding and terrified cattle. Even the cowboys, strong and skilled as they are, would never be able to drive them into open country. But with the best of the cavrestos a great deal of prodding, pushing and swearing is considered necessary to make them perform their duties. With El Rey all is different. At the word of command he is off through the thickets, driving from their hiding places the stubborn cattle. He waits for no riata. Locking his own big, strong and crooked horns into the horns of his indignant brother, he hauls and tugs and pulls until victory is his. Many and fierce are his fights. Wild is his rage when, after a terrific struggle, with victory almost in reach, the captive succeeds in slipping from the terrible crook of El Rey's horns and dashes off once more to the shaparral and freedom. But the wild steer's liberty is short-lived. El Rey never falters in his pursuit and never returns except in company with his struggling prisoner. Having brought in his captive, El Rey resolutely stands by and holds him with his horns till he is identified, branded, marked, killed or whatever the cattlemen elect to do with the animal. All the while the captive is held steadily and stoutly till the cattlemen have finished and El Rey is ordered to "let go." Perhaps the most remarkable thing is the coolness with which El Rey stands quietly holding down the head of the captured animal, while the vaquero deftly touches a knife to the captive's throat. The sight of blood does not seem to affect him in the least. When one of the refractory cattle is brought in by a cavresto he is immediately thrown to the ground and his hind legs are securely tied together by the strong riata. His head is held down by the trained steer and it is then the executioner operates. The ordinary cavresto does not like the operation of holding another steer to be killed. He would willingly get away if he could, but he is usually too tightly bound and must play his part to the end. But El Rey needs no riata to compel him to do his duty. With his terrible horns locked of his own accord into the horns of his captive he stands a sturdy and interested participant until the gleaming knife of the vaquero lets the lifeblood spurt forth. With his master, the Vaquero Ruiz, El Rey is as gentle as a favorite horse could be. To the home vaqueros he is calmly indifferent, but with strangers all his native fierceness and viciousness come into life again. King of his kind is El Rey and gold cannot buy him.

Within the last 20 years the French have annexed no fewer than 2,000,000 square miles of Africa.

Hawaii has 24,000 Japanese.

Success of "Zone" Railroad in Ohio. The cheapening of railway fares in Hungary in accordance with the "zone tariff" has been immensely profitable. In 1888, the year before the new system was introduced, 2,140,000 passengers were carried. In 1896, without any great increase in mileage or population, the number of passengers was 35,442,000.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

BRITISH TRADE IS DECLINING.

Significant Figures Called Attention To by a Londoner.

Letter to the London Times: For some time past, and during the last two years more particularly, we have been so much mentally engrossed with imperial questions that we have had very little time to spare for looking carefully into the items of the national ledger. They require looking into always, and it would be difficult to instance a time when the necessity for looking into them was so urgent as it is at present. You, sir, notwithstanding the pressure on your space, have generally been able to find a corner for these questions of the shop. And I will remember that in a leading article on Aug. 29 last you strongly recommended to the attention of our merchants the debit balance of this country to the United States, and I happen to know that this arrested the attention of many people who had not thought on the subject before. That debit balance goes on increasing threateningly every month. Few people even yet apparently regard it, and still fewer recognize the meaning of it. But it has a very significant meaning, which he who runs may read, if he wishes to read. The trouble is that no one in England ever will read anything that shows in the slightest degree a retrogression in any department of our national activities. That does not seem to me to be true courage. We ought to face the fact and to look steadfastly where we are going. For some time past it has appeared to me that our course in trade has been somewhat open to unfavorable comment, and a statement which you publish today on the comparative growth of foreign trade confirms these apprehensions. For what do we find in comparing the exports from Great Britain and from other countries, taking the years 1891 and 1897, as given in the returns? We find that the United Kingdom is the only country among the really great trading countries of the world whose exports are materially smaller in 1897 than they were in 1891, and I am sorry to say that 1893 (so far as it has gone) shows no better results than in 1897. Or, again, taking the excess of imports over exports, we find from this same return that it amounted to £157,000,000 in 1897 for the United Kingdom, against £126,000,000 in 1891. Of course, no other country in the world has anything approaching these figures, because no other country has such an amount of capital loaned abroad, with interest, freights, commissions, etc., to receive. But have the amounts for interest, freights, etc., increased by £30,000,000 since 1891? It is a very large figure in the eyes of grave men of business, equal to 3 per cent interest on £1,000,000,000 capital. Looking to the recall of capital from the United States and from Australia during the past few years and looking also to the reduction in rates of interest on investments in these countries and in the Argentine, it would surprise me to learn that there was as much interest due to the United Kingdom from abroad in 1897 as there was in 1891. I cannot say anything useful in regard to freights, as I know nothing about them. I am therefore at a loss to explain this increase of £30,000,000, and there is undoubtedly going to be a still greater increase in 1898. Is there a satisfactory explanation, or what is the meaning of it?

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant and a guard are put over the victim to see that he does not stop walking or drop the shot. A man is sometimes kept at this "shot drill" for six hours.

General Kitchener is a martinet in the observance of rules, says a writer in a London weekly, and is severe in punishments. He comes down rather heavily on drunkenness, and for this reason has made himself to a certain extent unpopular with some of his soldiers. Rogers, his body servant, is a teetotaler, which is an exceedingly rare thing to find in the ranks of Tommy Atkins. "Kitchener's cure for drunkenness," is a byword among his men. Once taken, it is never forgotten. The culprit is togged out in full marching equipment, which is a matter of sixty pounds, and is then compelled to carry in each hand a bag of shot weighing fifty pounds. A sergeant