Indian Instruments.

The only instruments known to these tribes were the drum, the rattle and a kind of flageolet.

The drum and ratt's were used in accompanying the voice, to accentuate the rhythm and to assist in interpreting the emotive impulse of the song. Shaking the rattle and beating the drum with clear, sharp strokes served not only to mark the time, but to secure the co-ordination and unity of movement of the numerous voices in the choral or to enforce precision of motion in the dance. The tremolo of the drum or rattle was to express the awe and trepidation felt when approaching the supernatural or when invoking the aid of the occult power.

The flageolet was a rather rude instrument, having a range limited to eight or ten notes in the treble clef. curacy in its manufacture, this range varied with every instrument, as did The Chicago Tribune says: It is pob also the quality and value of the tone ble that the Chicago, Burlington & relations. What It Means to Walk.

The man who is content with a modest average of six miles' wa'king a day scarcely realizes that every 12 years he walks a distance sufficient to girdle the earth at the equator.

Startling as this simple calculation is, he may be excused a feeling of incredulity when he learns that in walkpower; that of the Manhattan elevated ing this distance he has expended sufficient energy to raise our 38 first class battleships a foot high.

It is calculated that in walking an average mile a man uses sufficient energy to raise 171/2 tons to the height of a foot, or conversely a ton (of coals. say), to three times his own height. The mere thought of such a feat is sufficient modest constitutional.

Thus every year the man who walks six miles a day does sufficient work to raise a tou weight to a height equal roughly to 11/2 times that of Mont Blanc, or to raise all the gold current throughout the world a foot higher than his own head. A tramp of 18 miles a day involves as much exertion as the EPISCOPAL-Sunday morning at 11:00 day's work of an ordinary laborer.

A Woman's Worries.

the little things of life. Look at the mother and housewife as she goes about her tasks and observe how often she utters an impatient exclamation, how often she sighs over her servant's shortcomings, how often she starts nervously at a noise from one of the children. And each time that she loses control over herself, her nerves, her temper, she loses just a little nervous force, just a little physical well being, and moves a fraction of an inch farther on in the path that leads to premature old age and to invalidism."

The Dean's Restriction.

If The English Ecclesiastical Gazette reports correctly, eminent English divines are not above a little fooling, of a Scriptural tenor, of course.

The dean of the Chapel royal was one day seated in the Synod hall, at Dublin, when a scent bottle, falling from the strangers' gallery, happened to alight upon his somewhat bald cranium. Rising from his chair, he asked permission to make a personal explanation.

"My lord primate," he said, "I am speak on foreign missions at II Junior always glad to see strangers at our de-Union at 2:30. Divorce by Candles. When a Burmese husband and wife decide to separate, the woman goes out and buys two little candles of equal length, which are made especially for this use. She brings them home. She and her husband sit down on the floor, placing the candles between them, and light them simultaneously. One candle stands for her, the other for him. The one whose candle goes out first rises and goes out of the house forever, with nothing but what he or she may have on. The one whose candle has survived the longer time, even by a second, takes everything. So the divorce and division | of the property, if one can call that a ARTISTIC division, are settled.

An Economical Cook. A Chinaman will bake a dinner for a dozen with a mere handful of fuel. The boiler he uses is large and cone shaped, being sometimes two feet in diameter and one foot deep. It covers the fire with merely a small portion of the lower part of the case, but the heat and flames infold the rest. Vater and rice are put at the bottom with a frame over them, and on this are placed dishes of fish, fowl and vegetables to boil. The whole is covered with a wooden cover, in the center of which is a hole about four inches in diameter, and in this another dish is often placed, the contents of which are cooked by the steam.

Striking Contradictions.

A great contrast will often be found to exist between authors and their works, melancholy writers being the most jocular in society usually and humorists in theory the most lugubrious mortals in practice.

"The Comforts of Human Life," by R. Heron, was written in prison under the most distressing circumstances. "The Miseries of Human Life," by Beresford, was, on the contrary, composed in a drawing room where the author was surrounded by the best of everything, and Burton, the author of the "Anatomy of Melancholy," was extremely facetious in conversation.

If Dot had played with common soap What wreck there'd be to-morrow! Her hands all chapped, her dress past hope, Her toys a tale of sorrow.

But mother lets her play like this And wash whate'er she chooses, For not a thing will go amiss When Ivory Soap she uses.
